EAST ST. LOUISAN KILLS ESTRANGED WIFE AND HIMSELF

Louis Brandt Shoots Her in Bathroom, Then Takes Own Life on Porch, His Body Falling to Ground.

VISITED MATE OFTEN DESPITE SEPARATION

Had Threatened Suicide Several Times, Woman's Daughter Tells Police.

Mrs. Barbara Brandt, 54 years old of 514A North Nineteenth street, East St. Louis, was shot and killed yesterday afternoon by her estranged husband, Louis Brandt, 51, an unemployed laborer, who then killed himself.

Both were shot through the heart. Neighbors who entered the home immediately after the shooting, shortly before 5 o'clock, found Mrs. Brandt's body on the floor of the bathroom.

Brandt had gone to the rear porch, shot himself and had fallen over the railing to a concrete driveway below. His revolver, with five empty shells, lay on the ground about 15 feet away.

Married Seven Years.

Mrs. Brandt, the mother of five grown children by a previous marriage, married Brandt seven years ago. They separated four months ago and she had since lived with one of her sons at the Nineteenth street address. Brandt lived with another of her sons in the 1700 block on Hall street.

A daughter, Mrs. Mary Bruno, 405 North Nineteenth street, said her mother and stepfather had continued on friendly terms in spite of the separation although Brandt had occasionally threatened to kill himself, telling his wife, "When I do, I'll take you with me."

Visited Her Frequently.

It was Brandt's custom to visit his wife two or three times a week and take dinner with her. Apparently that was his supposed intention yesterday, for in the kitchen of the home police found food prepared for cooking. There were no signs of a struggle and no evidence that more than two shots had been fired.

2-CENT REDUCTION IN PRICE OF GASOLINE IN ST. LOUIS

Overproduction Ascribed as Reason for Cut by Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

Overproduction of crude oil and gasoline has resulted in a reduction of 2 cents a gallon in the price of gasoline and kerosent, effective tomorrow, by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, which other distributors are meeting.

The new price for "straight" gasoline at filling stations in St. Louis and Missouri suburbs will be 15.9 cents a gallon, and from tank wagons 14.9 cents, including State and city taxes. The Sinclair Refining Co. announced it was making the same reduction, including a cut at the stations formerly owned by the Pierce Petroleum Corporation. Texas Corporation officials, lacking formal notice, said they would meet competitive rates.

The Standard Oil reduction is effective throughout Missouri, Illinois, Kansas, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota and South Dakota, except where local adjustments to meet competition have been made already.

IRIGOYEN IS GRAVELY ILL

Deposed President in Serious Condition Aboard Ship.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 27.—The newspaper, La Razon, today, reported that former President Hipolito Irigoyen is gravely ill aboard the cruiser General Belgrano, aboard which he has been confined by the provisional Government that overthrew him.

The paper says Dr. Landa, who visited the deposed President this morning, advised the Government to have him brought ashore immediately for treatment.

"Sea Serpent" Only a Log.

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 27.—A fearsome "sea serpent" sighted at various points along the coast of New South Wales caused expeditions to be financed by newspapers and moving picture interests. Night and day they kept a lookout and then they found a 60-foot log encrusted with barnacles and overgrown with sea weed. A bough protruding from one end looked like an ugly head and waves rippling over the object gave it the appearance of writhing through the American Who Escaped Russia Tells "Behind-the-Scenes" Story Of Experiences and Hardships

Moscow and Leningrad "Shirt Front" Cities Which Tourists See, 160,000,000 Live in Squalor Outside, He Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 27.—An aspect of Soviet Russia behind the scenes was disclosed here today in the report of a skilled American workman, caterpillar tractor specialist, who escaped from Russia after a fight of months to regain his confiscated American passports.

He is Peter Grant Sutherland, 44 years old, native of San Diego, Cal., employed by a Soviet agent, who, at the caterpillar tractor factory, San Leandro, Cal., near San Francisco, recruited a group of 19 American tractor experts to go to Russia to instruct Soviet workers in operation and repair of the thousands of American tractors the Soviet is buying in its Government grain-growing campaign.

Sutherland sailed from New Orleans Saturday on the United Fruit steamship Coppename for Puerto Castilla, Spanish Honduras, to take charge of the company's fleet of tractors on its banana plantations in the Truxillo division of that country. His Russian revelations came in his report to P. D. Parks, assistant general manager of the United Fruit Co. here, answering the corporation's questions as to his earlier employment.

Sutherland exhibited his Soviet credentials and contract.

The Story Sutherland Tells.

These are the outstanding points of his story of his six months of residence, experience and observations in Russia from December, 1929, to May, 1930.

Several hundred skilled American workmen, hired as he was hired through Amtorg, the Soviet trading corporation in the United States, are now prisoners in Soviet Russia, their passports confiscated by the Red police on their arrival in Russia; Soviet officials telling them they cannot leave Russia without a passport, and passing them from bureau to bureau in a vain search for those passports which have always, been sent on to some other Soviet official, or so they say.

Soviet officials, while they still thought Sutherland was caught in Russia for life, told him that these confiscated American passports, doctored, altered, counterfeited and forged, were being used to slip Communist agitators into the United States, "to keep on stirring up trouble until we overthrow your capitalist Government at Washington."

Famine, fifth, open immorality, unspeakable hardships, reigned in Russia during his six months there. He entered Russia, a husky six-footer, weighing 180 pounds. He emerged six months later weighing 137 pounds, he said.

What His Diet Was.

His diet these six months, his statement continues, was cabbage water soup and sour black bread. The only additions to this diet in six months were when he was issued two and a half pounds of rice, three-quarters of a pound of China tea and six salt herring, these three "bright spots" coming weeks apart. He saw babies three months old sucking at pieces of this sour black bread. Their mothers were too weak to nurse them. Months apart came three-ounce issues of pulped camels' meat mixed with potato starch and fried in sunflower-seed oil. He couldn't eat it. He stood in line hours once for a promised issue of salted raw fish-roe smeared on black bread. He saw Russian men trample down women and children to get to it, and the supply gave out quarter-way down the line.

Moscow and Leningrad, said Sutherland, are the two "shirt front cities" where visiting delegations and tourists are shown the Soviet's sunny side. Outside them, nearly 160,000,000 Russians are living in filth and squalor.

His headquarters in charge of 180 tractors and 400 students were down by the south coast of Russia, near the foothills of the Ural Mountains, some 36 hours by express train from Moscow eastward toward Turkestan. The district station was Demiyas. The nearest city was Saratov. Arriving here in December, 1929, he found thousands of Russian villagers starving, their wood fuel supply gone with the thermometer hovering between 35 and 65 below zero. All wore heaviest sheepskins and slept in them. Nobody bathed. There were no facilities. Sanitation did not exist.

All Lands Sovietski.

All land, all buildings, were "sovietski"—owned by the State. Unmarried men were allotted one room, married men two, regardless of the size of families. Huddling together for warmth, they slept promiscuously packed on the floors of the rooms so they could keep warm. Communists ate at Soviet mess-halls. Homes had vanished.

TWO ST. LOUIS BUSINESS MEN MEET ZEALOUS CONSTABLE

Robert C. Newman, Banker, and S. W. Sauers, Insurance Officer, Arrested; Released With Apology.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 27.—Four business men came to Minnesota to inspect rural property with a view to investing, but almost landed in jail when an overzealous Constable at Atwater, Minn., had them arrested as suspected bank robbers.

The four, Robert C. Newman and Sidney W. Sauers, St. Louis, and Meredith Caldwell and Brownlee O. Curry, Nashville, got an apology from the St. Paul Police Department today and a promise of greater hospitality on their future visits.

The suspicion of the Constable was aroused when the bankers hurried away in another car after their machine had been damaged in a collision near there.

Newman is vice president of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co.; Sauers, financial vice president of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. Caldwell and Curry are president and sales manager, respectively, of the Fourth National Bank of Nashville.

DISORDER IN PALESTINE OVER A YIDDISH TALKIE

Spectators at Show Throw Ink at Film Which Is Then Barred; Many Arrested.

By the Associated Press.

TEL AVIV, Palestine, Sept. 27.—Many persons were arrested here today after disorders broke out over the showing of a Yiddish talking picture, "The Jewish Mother," produced by the Judea Company of New York.

A section of the populace considered that the film in Yiddish endangered the Hebrew language, and at the first words of the talkie the audience threw ink at the screen and set off stench bombs.

A big crowd gathered outside the movie theater and mounted police made several ineffective charges before it was dispersed. The evening performance was prohibited by the authorities, and all those arrested were released later.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 27.—Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Lieut. Maurice Bellont, French aviators, landed at the Municipal Airport at 3:40 p. m. today, in their trans-Atlantic plane, Question Mark.

The flyers will remain until Tuesday. They came here from San Francisco.

Boy, 4, Kills Father Accidentally.

MARTIN, Ky., Sept. 27.—Dayton Frame, 35 years old, a merchant, died today from a bullet wound inflicted by his four-year-old son. The boy walked into his father's store last night and playfully picked up a pistol back of the counter and shot his father through the head.

11 LIVES, 3 SHIPS ARE LOST IN GALE ON LAKE MICHIGAN

All Hopes of Fruit Packet, With Six Aboard, Having Survived Storm Are Abandoned.

CAPTAIN AND BRIDE AMONG THE DEAD

Two Men Rescued After Clinging to Wreckage of Barge for 16 Hours—Crew of Seven Saved.

By the Associated Press.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Sept. 27.—Grape baskets were being washed ashore in great numbers between Holland and South Haven tonight, thought to come from the wreckage of the fruit packet, North Shore. Commander W. M. Wolff of the Coast Guard said this was an almost certain indication the packet, missing since it left St. Joseph, Mich., yesterday morning with a cargo of grapes for Milwaukee, went down with Capt. E. J. Anderson, his wife of four weeks, and four men.

With the sinking of the North Shore in yesterday's 40-mile gale, the loss in the storm has been increased to 11 lives and three ships.

Five on Barge Perish.

The death list of the barge, Salvor, that went down at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon off the harbor entrance here, was reduced to five today, when two of four men who had clung to a derrick on the vessel for 16 hours, were taken off by Coast Guards. Seven other persons, including two women, were taken out of the water alive at a point 14 miles north of here.

Harry Smith of Newark, N. J., one of the two men rescued this morning from the wreckage of the Salvor, described as "a tough fight" the efforts of the two men to prevent being swept to their deaths in the turbulent waters.

"Our great fight was to keep from freezing in that northwest gale as the giant waves rolled over us every few seconds," Smith said. Smith disclosed that in addition to Clinton Lane, who was found dead aboard the barge, a fourth man, Clarence Brunett, had sought to live through the storm by clinging to the derrick. After fighting several hours with the waves, Brunett dropped into the water.

Women Lashed to Life Raft.

"It was a tough fight," said Smith. "For about three hours after midnight it seemed the sea was breaking over us all the time. Nedeau and I and Lane climbed onto the frames as soon as the ship went aground. We had lashed the boy, Lornie Olmstead, and the two women (Mrs. Ida Olmstead and Alice Le Plaut) to a life raft and pushed them off. Several others went the same way. Brunett and two other men were hanging onto each other and trying to stay on deck. Brunett wanted to climb up with us, but every time a big wave came along he was washed to the other side of the ship. Then he would crawl back only to be washed away again.

"Darkness came and we could see the lights on shore. It seemed ages. About dark we saw Brunett drop into the water. We still clung to our place.

"Lane kept talking to us all the time until about two hours after midnight. About the last thing I remember him saying was that he wanted to come down where we were and get warm. All the poor kid had on was a bathing suit, a vest and one sock. The sock was still hanging to his foot this morning. I went up there and felt of his pulse at daylight. He must have been dead since he last spoke at 2 o'clock."

When coast guards arrived at 6 o'clock this morning, Smith and Nedeau dropped into the lake and were picked up.

Seven Taken Off Schooner.

The third vessel caught in the storm was the old schooner, Our Son, last of its type on the lakes. It foundered off Ludington yesterday afternoon and went down after its crew of seven men had been removed by the freighter, William Nelson.

Besides Capt. Anderson and his wife, those aboard the North Shore when it left St. Joseph were Joseph Tekus, Milwaukee; Royal Ritcher of Washington Island and two others whose names were not available. The vessel is 64 feet long and powered with a Diesel engine.

LAWYER INDICTED FOR GASOLINE TAX FRAUD IN CHICAGO

Prosecutor Asserts State Has Lost $1,000,000 in Cook County Alone—Politicians Involved.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Assistant State's Attorney John Holman, in announcing today the return of a true bill against Wilbur J. McGinness, an attorney, said that the State had been defrauded in Cook County alone of more than $1,000,000 gasoline tax money.

Holman said he is still investigating the situation and that his efforts "will reveal the doings of several local politicians."

The true bill returned against McGinness charges him with operating a confidence game and with larceny as bailee. Holman said McGinness handled tax matters for the Crescent Refining Co.

The true bill alleges that he failed to pay into the State Treasury $3121 given him for that purpose by the company as gas tax and that he offered to save the company $700 of its tax through his political influence. A $700 check he gave the company to bear out his statement was returned marked "insufficient funds."

Gasoline Tax Nets Illinois $27,640,600 in First Year.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 27.—Illinois' 3-cent gasoline tax netted the State $27,640,604.98 in its first year of operation, Director Garrett Kinney of the State Department of Finance announced today.

Gross collections for the year on 940,156,606 gallons of gasoline brought in $28,204,698.74. From this amount $564,093.93 was deducted for the collections allowance of 2 per cent. A total of $565,128.25 was paid out in refund claims, mostly to farmers using gasoline for motive power in farming operations and to contractors building roads.

Two-thirds of the money received through the tax went into the State's road fund and the rest was distributed to counties for road building.

LAKE SEARCHED FOR FLYERS

Manufacturer and Pilot Missing; Plane Found Wrecked.

By the Associated Press.

CONNEAUT, O., Sept. 27.—Men and boys, Coast Guardsmen, and Sheriff's deputies searched the shore line of Lake Erie from Conneaut to Ashtabula today, but failed to find the bodies of William McNulty, Columbus salt manufacturer, and Willard Parker of Cleveland, his pilot, whose wrecked plane was found four miles west of here this morning.

The cabin of the plane with wings and motor gone, and the cover ripped off, was wedged in a clump of fallen trees at the lake edge and partly hidden by an overhanging cliff. For a mile along the shore parts of the plane were picked up, but there was no trace of the bodies.

SUGGESTS MILLIKIN U. HIRE CLERK INSTEAD OF PRESIDENT

Dr. M. E. Penney, Ousted Head, Calls School Mere Toy for Few Ignorant Men to Play With.

By the Associated Press.

DECATUR, Ill., Sept. 27.—Dr Mark E. Penney, fifth president of James Millikin University to resign in the last 17 years, declared in a report made public today:

"The authorities concerned in running the college really do not need a president, but a clerk who will do their bidding, take no credit for any achievement and quietly and meekly assume responsibility for everything that goes wrong.

"The outline I have submitted here indicates a condition the like of which probably could not exist in any other institution of learning in the world. Had the college been placed in competent hands 17 years ago and allowed to remain there to the present time, it would not now be the brow-beaten, struggling thing it is. If the college is to continue in the future, it must become more than a mere toy for a few ignorant and self-opinionated men to play with."

Dr. Penney was succeeded at James Millikin this fall by Dr. Jesse White, former head of the department of psychology at University of Pittsburg.

HOOVER TO MOTOR TO LODGE TODAY TO SEE SICK SON

President Postpones Tour One Day to Complete Address; Wife to Return With Him.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—President Hoover plans to motor to his mountain camp during the forenoon tomorrow to visit his son, Herbert Hoover Jr., who is ill there. Mrs. Hoover went to the lodge today and will return with the President late tomorrow or early Monday.

Originally having planned to spend the week-end at the lodge, the President was forced to forego his trip today by the pressure of work. He completed the address he will deliver next Thursday in Cleveland before the American Bar Association.

It was said at the White House that he expected to finish drafting the other three speeches he is to deliver early next month before he departs for Cleveland. The other talks are to be made before the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor at Boston, Oct. 6 and at the Kings Mountain Battlefield Sesqui-Centennial, Oct. 7.

KANSAS CITY TROLLEY REVENUE FALLS DESPITE HIGHER FARE

Decrease Compared With Same Period Last Year, but Greater by $3000 for First Week.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 27.—The first week of the new experimental street car fare of the Kansas City Public Service Co., shows a loss in daily revenue as compared with the corresponding period of last year, but for the week an increase of about $3000 over the preceding week.

The experimental schedule differs from that in effect in St. Louis, but both cities now have a 10-cent fare for riders not having weekly tickets. The weekly ticket used here is called a "permit." It is sold for 35 cents and upon showing it the holder may ride for 5 cents. A new permit is required each week. Thus seven rides in a week cost 10 cents each, but for a greater number the cost is reduced progressively. The first week 67,991 permits were sold.

The reduction in daily receipts below a year ago is from $1200 to $1500, John V. McKinney, vice president of the company said.

3 CHILDREN, NURSE DROWNED AS AUTO PLUNGES IN BAYOU

Car of Thomas C. Raley Goes Off Bridge, Upsets in 10 Feet of Water Near Pascagoula, Miss.

Three young daughters of Thomas C. Raley, 5138 St. Louis avenue, president of the Getz Exterminator Co., and their nurse, were drowned in Bayou La Fontain, a mile west of Pascagoula, Miss., late Friday afternoon, when the Raley automobile, crowded by a truck approaching at high speed, crashed through a wooden guard rail on a toll bridge and sank in 10 feet of water.

Those drowned were:

Jane Elizabeth Raley, 7 years old.

Edna Frances Raley, 4 years old.

Nancy Lee Raley, 2½ years old.

Maude Christman, 15 years old, a distant relative of Mrs. Raley and formerly of Iberia, Mo.

Mrs. Raley, who was driving the car, a Studebaker coach, was rescued by her husband, who had been riding in the front seat with her and who climbed out through a window after the car sank. He held her above water until fishermen pulled them out 10 or 15 minutes later.

Bridge a Mile Long.

"We were driving from New Orleans to Atlanta, by way of Mobile," Raley told the Post-Dispatch over telephone from Pascagoula yesterday. "When the accident occurred we were almost in the middle of a mile-long wooden bridge across the bayou. We had been driving about 30 miles an hour, but my wife saw a truck coming fast toward us and slowed down.

"The truck stayed in the middle of the bridge and Mrs. Raley, fearing a collision, swerved to the right. The car struck something at the right side of the bridge just as the truck passed us. Whatever it was we struck forced our car to lunge across the bridge. It crashed through the guard rail on the left side and fell into the water, about five or seven feet below the roadway of the bridge.

"As it struck the water, the car turned over and settled on bottom, upside down. The water was about 10 feet deep. It rushed into the front windows, which were open, and I struggled to get out. After several minutes—it seemed to me to be about 10, but I was confused by my struggles—I got through the window beside me, and pulled Mrs. Raley out after me. I swam with her to one of the bridge piers and held on, holding her by the hair.

Pulled in by Fishermen.

"She was almost unconscious and I had to hold her until help came. One of her arms was badly cut. After some time, a group of fishermen came up and pulled us on to the bridge. Then they dived in and brought up the children and the nurse. But it was 30 minutes after the accident before they got them out, and it was too late.

"The truck didn't stop on the bridge. I was told, however, that the driver went on to the end of the bridge and turned around and came back. I saw a truck driven by a young fellow, standing there after the accident, but I don't know if it was the same one that crowd-

SAYS AMTORG SENT NEWS TO SOVIET ABOUT U.S. DEFENSES

B. W. Delgass, Former Head of Russian Trading Body in New York Testifies of Code Messages on Military Topics.

CHARGES PERJURY BY ITS OFFICIALS

Tells Congressmen Moscow Planned to Force Recognition by Taking Advantage of Business Depression in America.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Basil W. Delgass, resigned vice president of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, told the Fish Congressional Committee today that code communications concerning the army and navy defenses of the United States had passed between Amtorg and the Soviet Government.

This statement was not followed further by the committee, which is conducting a nation-wide investigation into Communist activities. It was given in response to a question whether messages between the Russian agency and Moscow contained anything of a political nature.

Makes Perjury Charge.

Delgass in further testimony accused Peter A. Bogdanov, chairman of the Board of Amtorg, and other of its officials of perjuring themselves in previous appearances before the committee. He said that prior to the hearings all Amtorg employes were rehearsed in the testimony they should give. They were instructed to say that there were no Communists connected with the agency, he testified, and that Amtorg was not involved in Communist activities.

Delgass said his life had been threatened "because I wouldn't participate in the perjury."

"Advised" by Bogdanov to return to Russia before the Congressional Committee began its hearings, Delgass said he refused and resigned. Since then his property had been forfeited and he had been ordered outlawed and shot by the Supreme Court in Moscow. Moreover, he declared, his mail had been opened here, his home visited by detectives sent by Amtorg, and friends still in that organization had warned him not to go out of the house alone.

Asserts Job Is Political.

Delgass charged that the office of business manager of Amtorg was a political job and that all its incumbents had been closely allied with the OGPU, the Soviet secret police.

Questioned as to the authenticity of so-called Whalen documents, Delgass replied: "Whether or not they are forgeries, I don't know. Some of the statements made by Amtorg about them I know to be untrue."

In answer to a further question he replied that if they had been authentic they would have been in code.

Delgass testified the Soviet Government had begun a policy late in 1929 by which it hoped to force recognition from the United States by taking advantage of the business depression here and withholding Russian trade.

Short Selling of Wheat.

I. V. Belitzky, vice president of All-Russian Textile, also a Soviet agency, preceded Delgass on the stand and denied that the short selling of 7,755,000 bushels of wheat in the Chicago pit was done to break down the market. He said it was a protective measure for wheat growers in Germany.

Belitzky said the order to sell came from the Chiertorg Grain Corporation, also a Soviet group, of Hamburg, Germany, and "we decided we had a right to hedge part of our wheat crop on the Chicago Board of Trade."

Asked whether his company would continue its short selling operations, the witness said he had received no further orders.

"Well, I guess the exchange took care of that," said Representative Hamilton Fish Jr., chairman of the committee.

Representatives of three New York brokerage houses, Bache & Co., Waschman & Wassell and A. Norden & Co., testified to handling the All-Russian transactions in Chicago. They said the deals were

WHAT GROCER'S CAMPAIGN CHIEF TOLD COMMITTEE

Victor Seymour, at Senate Inquiry in July, Denied Having Any Connection With Nebraska Primary.

NEVER HAD MET NORRIS, HE SAID

Retiring Western G. O. P. Manager Also Testified He Gave No Funds to Aid Candidate Against Senator

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 27.—The resignation of Victor Seymour as Western manager for the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee caused no surprise here. It was considered inevitable among those familiar with the Nye committee's recent disclosures concerning Seymour's connection with the brief senatorial candidacy of George W. Norris, youthful Broken Bow grocer.

Interest here centers now on the future course of the United States District Attorney in the matter, and on the continued efforts of the committee to ascertain the source of the mysterious "checks from the East," which apparently financed Seymour's secret plan to eliminate the veteran Senator George W. Norris from the national political arena.

Examination of Seymour's testimony before the committee in July shows it to be in direct conflict with that given this week by his former stenographer, Miss Esther Alton, and by Grocer Norris and his personal advisor, Paul Johnson. A full transcript of this conflicting evidence is now being awaited by United States Attorney Sandall.

Reversed Previous Stories.

Miss Alton's unexpected appearance on the witness stand, and her colorful narrative of Seymour's activity during the six months preceding the senatorial primary, prompted young Norris and Johnson to reverse their previous stories. She testified, it will be recalled, that Seymour's object was "to beat Senator Norris"; that he conducted a straw vote "to find a man who could beat Norris"; that he was in constant conference with the Senator's political enemies, and that the announcement of Grocer Norris' candidacy was written in Seymour's office.

Johnson then told how Seymour urged him to get the grocer into the race, how Seymour paid Norris' $50 filing fee and wrote the announcement of his candidacy, and how, following a telephone conversation with Seymour, Johnson received a $500 bond which he gave Norris to compensate the grocer for his time and expenses. Norris, recalled to the witness stand, admitted that this story of his candidacy was correct.

Seymour's Testimony in July.

When Seymour appeared before the committee in July, his testimony, given in response to Chairman Nye's questions, was as follows:

Q. Mr. Seymour, have you had any contact with the pending senatorial campaign in Nebraska? A. None whatever. No personal contact—no connection.

Q. Have you been called into conference in relation to that particular campaign? A. Oh, no; not at all, except as someone may have spoken to me on the street casually.

Q. Have you heard that htere was money available for use in this particular campaign? A. Only through the press.

Q. Have you spent anything, Mr. Seymour, in connection with the pending senatorial campaign? A. Not a penny.

Q. Have you made any contributions? A. Not a penny.

Q. Do you know George W. Norris of Broken Bow? A. Never saw him; never heard of him until I saw it in the paper.

Denied Knowledge of Funds.

Q. What knowledge do you have, Mr. Seymour, of contributions made for or against the candidacy of any candidate for the United States Senate this year? A. Why, Senator, I have no knowledge whatever—none whatever. I have not taken any part in this campaign, except as a private citizen. Naturally I am interested politically.

Q. You have taken part in no conferences? A. No sir: Not at all, in reference to any political situation.

Q. When did you first know anything of George W. Norris of Broken Bow? A. Well, when I saw his filing in the paper.

Q. That was your first information of his whereabouts? A. That was my first information concerning him.

Q. You had no part then, in view of what you have said, in encouraging the candidacy of George W. Norris of Broken Bow? A. Not a bit.

"Only Gossip of the Street."

Q. Do you have information, or have you heard anything, as to who did occasion the candidacy of George W. Norris of Broken Bow? A. No, only just the gossip of the street—that is all.

Q. Has there been any money or any credit placed at your disposal for use in this campaign? A. No. sir.

Q. I think that is all, Mr. Seymour, unless you have some statement you wish to make. A. No, I haven't any; I don't know anything about it.

Seymour's bank records, which the committee obtained by subpena this week, show that he received a succession of $500 checks drawn on Chicago banks, in addition to one $500 check from New York, checks for $500 and $1000 on Omaha banks, and a cash deposit of $700. When the committee resumes the investigation here a week hence, it expects to show who sent the checks.

Nye Thinks G. O. P. Had Hand in Fight on Norris.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27—Voicing suspicion that the Republican party had a hand in the attempt to run a second George W. Norris against Senator George W. Norris in the recent Nebraska Republican senatorial primary, Chairman Nye of the Senate Campaign Funds Investigating Committee said here today he would seek to trace money spent in that campaign.

Returning to the Capital from Nebraska inquiry, Nye said he was confident United States District Attorney Sandall at Omaha intended to file perjury charges against Seymour and the George W. Norris of Broken Bow.

The Broken Bow Norris was ruled out of the primary. Senator Norris was opposed in the primary by a regular Republican candidate. Norris won.

On Republican Payroll.

"I am bound to lean to the opinion that maybe the Republican party had a hand in the Nebraska fight against Senator Norris," said Nye: "I say this in view of the apparent connection of Seymour with the Broken Bow Norris and in view of the activity in Nebraska of W. E. Murray who was on the payroll of the Republican National Committee."

Nye intimated a belief by the committee that the $500 Liberty Bond given the Broken Bow Norris might be traceable to the famous batch of Liberty Bonds involved in the operations of the extinct Continetal Trading Co. of Canada. Bonds were used in dividing the profits of this company among its organizers, including Harry F. Sinclair. Sinclair later made a contribution to the Republican campaign fund using some of these bonds.

Investigate McKelvie's Activity.

The committee chairman also said "some traces" had been found in Nebraska of activity by Samuel McKelvie, former Governor and member of the Federal Farm Board, against the candidacy of Senator Norris.

Nye said charges have been made of the use of outside money in the successful campaign of Josiah W. Bailey for the Democratic senatorial nomination in North Carolina.

Inquiry in North Carolina.

"Our men in the field have substantiated the fact," he added, "that there is room in North Carolina for a wide inquiry."

The committee has adjourned until Oct. 14 when it will go either to North Carolina or to Tennessee to investigate expenditures of candidates in the recent Democratic senatorial primaries in those states.

ed us. Mrs. Raley wasn't sure either. We were so confused.

"Mrs. Raley is suffering from shock and the cut on her arm. A doctor took nine stitches in it. I wasn't hurt and am all right, except for the shock. The car was pulled out of the bayou about 9 o'clock Friday night, but we're not going to drive it back. We're leaving for St. Louis on the first train, and we'll be in Sunday noon on the L. & N., No. 4.

Probable Funeral Plans.

"I don't know about the funeral. It probably will be held at St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, Kingshighway and Washington boulevards, but I don't know when. Maude Christman probably will be taken to Iberia for burial. She is a distant relative of my wife, and had been with us since last June."

Raley, whose office is at 1139 Pine street, had been touring the South, checking the business of his branches. Mrs. Raley, the children and their nurse, left St. Louis Aug. 21 and drove to San Antonio, where they met Raley and accompanied him through Texas and Louisiana to New Orleans. They had planned to return to St. Louis next Saturday.

FAST COTTON BELT TRAIN DERAILED AT IDALIA, MO.

Three Last Cars Leave Track of St. Louis-Memphis Limited; None Seriously Hurt.

IDALIA, Mo., Sept. 27.—Traffic over the Cotton Belt Railroad was delayed eight hours today when the three last cars of fast St. Louis-Memphis train were derailed four miles north of here at 4:30 o'clock this morning. The accident was caused by a broken rail. So far as could be determined no passengers were hurt seriously.

The cars, two Pullmans and a chair car remained upright. It was at the scene of two serious wrecks during the last two years.

GERMAN CABINET HEAD WILL FIGHT FOR HIS PROGRAM

Chancellor Bruening Said to Plan to Ask for Dissolution of Reichstag Unless It Supports Him.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—Chancellor Bruening's word to party leaders in the Reichstag, when his new government program is ready for an announcement, will be "take it or leave it." If the Reichstag should refuse its support, the Chancellor will simply ask President Von Hindenburg to adjourn Parliament.

Friends of the Chancellor assert that this program, although dictatorial in the extreme, has been decided upon as the shortest route to the attainment of his aims for the restoration of Germany to a condition of economic stability.

Once the President has adjourned Parliament, observers said today, Dr. Bruening's resourcefulness will find a way to prevent its reconvocation until the Government's program has been put fully into effect.

Such action would be the equivalent of a dictatorship, but with Germany's national election only two weeks past and the political situation more muddled than before the polling, Dr. Bruening's friends say he is determined to remain aloof from party bickerings and keep on sawing wood and saying nothing.

Bruening Silent.

Thus far the Chancellor has made no statement regarding the forthcoming program of readjustment. Announcement of this program was withheld from discussion even among Cabinet members and it is asserted in Government circles no statement can be expected before Monday.

Observers point out that if the resolutions and motions of the many party caucuses could be taken as irrevocable, it would seem Dr. Bruening had no chance of remaining at the head of the Government, but this is nullified by the fact that all parties are trying to get the maximum price for their support.

Bargainnig for Support.

The People's party voted last week to support the Bruening policies only if his cabinet ceased making compromises with Socialistic ideas. This was intended as a notice to the Chancellor he must invite neither Fascists, with their pseudo-socialistic, nor Social Democrats, with socialistic tennets, into the Cabinet.

The Economic Party also demanded that the Government put an end to socialistic influence and policies and proceed to revise the Versailles treaty, while the Farmers' League boldly came out for a coalition with the National Socialists.

This was the motley assortment of wishes the various parties would have the Chancellor satisfy. It was generally admitted that if he mastered all of these difficulties and at the same time prevented the spread of radicalism he would emerge from the present crisis an outstanding figure in European politics.

Union Head Against Violence.

Peter Grassmann, president of the General Federation of Trade Unions, expressed confidence that if the Fascist party of Adolf Hitler should attempt a putsch (violent coup d'etat) or other subversive action, the trade unions would rise to a man to checkmate it. Discussing the Hitler program, Grassmann said:

"If, despite the Leipsic assurances that the Fascists would seek to seize power by legal means only, Hitler or his followers should attempt a putsch, they will find Germany's organized workers ready to defend their democratic republic to the utmost just as they defended it in 1920 when the Kapp rebellion collapsed through the concerted action of the workers."

As head of Germany's largest trade union with a membership of more than 5,000,000 or 70 per cent of all organized German labor, Grassmann is thought to be in a position to speak with authority on the attitude of labor.

Stand by Republic.

"At the Reichstag election, the Social Democrats polled more than 8,500,000 votes," Grassmann said. "That is less than in the previous election, but these millions are in their great majority organized workers, identified with our trade unions. They can be depended upon to go through thick and thin for the republic. The Communist and Fascist promises weaned some voters from us, but they could not be depended upon in time of need, anyway. Democracy is not only an ideal for us, it is a question of existence. Dictatorships in Italy, Lithuania, Poland and Spain have all played havoc with trade unionism. I therefore feel confident our members will stake everything on preserving the republic."

Asked how labor would look upon Fascist participation in the Bruening Government, he replied:

"That would be unbearable to the trades unionists. Hitler and his followers have not the faintest conception of the realities of life, if they blandly talk about abrogating the Versailles treaty. We of the organized labor movement know what that would mean."

Grassmann characterized as equally unbearable any veiled dictatorship, but admitted that it would be exceedingly difficult to bring the bourgeois parties of the middle and the Social Democrats together on a common platform.

"We have social questions such as invalid insurance, sick benefits, unemployment relief, price reductions and wages to face upon which it will be hard for the representatives of capital and labor to agree," he said. "Nevertheless, I am not pessimistic concerning the future of our republic."

RUN ON BANKS OF HAVANA DUE TO CLOSING OF TWO

Police Reserves Called to Maintain Order at 10 Major Depositories.

HAVANA, Sept. 27.—A general run on Havana banks was precipitated here today when two depositories failed to open their doors.

The Bank of Commerce, with a capital and surplus listed at $4,000,000, and one of Cuba's oldest banking organizations, announced that operations would be "provisionally suspended" until readjustments could be made. The Cordova Banking Co., a Cuban bank with resources of $200,000, likewise met the Saturday crowds with closed doors.

Calle Aguiar, Havana's Wall Street, became jammed with depositors as the news spread. Police reserves were called to maintain order at the 10 major banks. The largest run probably was on the Commercial Bank, but it remained open after the noon closing hour to comply with withdrawal requests.

A considerable run was in progress at the Royal Bank of Canada, but executives declared their position secure. Managers of the Chase National, Bank of Nova Scotia, Federal Reserve, First National of Boston and the National City Bank likewise stated their ability to cope with the situation.

CAPPER SAYS G. O. P. OF WEST WON'T GIVE IN TO WET EAST

Predicts Policy of "No Surrender" by "Dominant End of Party" at National Convention in 1932.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Kan., Sept. 27. — A prediction that Western Republicans would make "no surrender" at the party's national convention in 1932 "to the demands of the great wet cities of New York and other Eastern states," was made today by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas. He said that "in 1932 the West, which will control the national convention, will stand where it stood in 1928."

Senator Capper said that while New York Republicans, who have adopted a wet plank, "therefore seem to be in favor of outlawing the liquor traffic by putting the states into the liquor business, they do not represent the sentiment on this question of the Republican party throughout the West, which today has come to be the dominant end of the party."

GOTHENBURG RECEIVES THE BODY OF ANDREE

Home City of Explorer In Sweden Pays Solemn Honors When Ship Arrives.

By the Associated Press.

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, Sept. 27.—The Swedish warship Svensksund, bearing the body of Salomon August Andree back to its homeland, reached this city this evening and was met with solemn honors.

Gothenburg harbor was filled with craft and the shores were lined with the people of the city. Bells tolled and huge torches marked the pier where deputations to greet the ship had gathered.

The Swedish liner Kungsholm was held after its time of scheduled departure that it might pay honor to the men of the Andree expedition.

AMERICAN WHO ESCAPED RUSSIA TELLS EXPERIENCE

Churches were used as stables, warehouses, bed houses, bootleg calves, pigs ,chickens, kept concealed from Soviet officials, lived and slept with humans.

Red police were everywhere. No man knew when he would be reported as anti-Soviet, arrested, given a mockery of a secret trial and disappear, executed and buried in a cellar. Men Sutherland knew vanished.

"Red police," whispered his few friends. Censorship was absolute. He wrote nearly 50 letters. Not one reached America. He received only two letters of many written him.

His health failing, fearing the pestilence he knew would come with the spring, he tried to get back his passports the red police had confiscated on arrival.

Russian assistants laughed at him.

"We're paying you $300 a month to get your brains," his official interpreter told him. "When we have enough of you we'll kick you out. Until then you can stay here."

He Bluffs His Way Out.

He went to Saratov to demand his passports. They sent him to Polotov. There they sent him to Altata. Soviet officials, laughing at him told him the passports had been forwarded to some point five hundred miles up the line.

"I went back to Demiyas after chasing those passports nearly 5000 miles and tried American bluff," he says.

His district director was anxious to make an economical showing with superiors at Moscow. Sutherland told him he had trained two Russian assistants so they could do his work, and save the $300 a month salary Sutherland drew.

"They were the dumbest eggs I ever saw, but the bluff worked," said Sutherland.

They gave him back his passports and sent him to the railroad with a Soviet guard who tried to assassinate him on the way. Sutherland bribed the guard after assassin's gun missed fire, and got out by the way of Moscow, Warsaw, Berlin, Paris and Le Havre to New York.

"If they ever get me over the Russian border again, it will be when I'm unconscious," he says.

BAY STATE DEMOCRATS URGE DRY LAW REPEAL

State Convention Deplores Unemployment — G. O. P. Pledges Law Enforcement.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—The Democratic State convention, by almost unanimous vote, today adopted a platform containing a plank favoring the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, but urging legislation to prevent the return of the saloon.

The platform also deplored a "situation of unemployment unparalleled in our country," which, it said, the party in power views "with sinister indifference." It urged a conference of employers and employes to be called by the Governor to seek a solution.

It deplored the practice of lynching and urged Federal action to prevent it.

The Republican State convention today adopted without debate a platform including a plank favoring enforcement of all laws, without taking any different stand on prohibition.

Calvin Collidge was a guest of honor, as was Mrs. Coolidge, but the former President did not speak. Only once, when during the course of his remarks Gov. Frank G. Allen referred to the financial accomplishments of the Coolidge gubernatorial administration did the former Chief Executive acknowledge the applause of the delegates. Then, in answer to prolonged cheering, he rose to his feet and bowed smilingly.

The prohibition plank indorsed the party's stand in 1928 and called attention to President Hoover's statement that citizens as individuals had the right to work for or against repeal of any law. It called for support for the Republican party as the party which had opposed return of the saloon.

Another plank in the platform deplored lynching and recommended to Congress the enactment of an anti-lynching law. It opposed any discrimination of candidates for public office because of race or color.

Party leaders and others who have taken advantage of business depression and unemployment to attack President Hoover and his administration were taken to task by Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio before the convention.

The opposition to the administration came, Fess said, at the very moment when the President, "in the most direct and daring leadership, has mobilized the forces of production and distribution, including both labor and capital, to stay the world trend toward unemployment by securing pledges to avoid reduction of wages on the one side and strikes on the other, to maintain in the greatest possible degree the purchasing power of the American people."

Of the recently enacted tariff law, Fess said the cost of living has decreased from 4 to 6 per cent since it became effective.

HOOVER KEEPS THREE OF OLD TARIFF BOARD

Much-Heralded Reorganization Fails to Materialize—Dixon's Reappointment Surprise.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The much-heralded reorganization of the Tariff Commission, which is to administer the flexible provisions of the Hawley-Smoot act, has been completed, and it finds the commission with three members who were on the outgoing board. The whole membership is six.

After a long delay caused by declinations from men on his preferred list, President Hoover yesterday announced the appointment of the sixth member—Lincoln Dixon, an Indiana Democrat who has been a member of the commission since his appointment by President Coolidge in 1927. Dixon is 70 years old. He is a former member of the House from Indiana and had charge of Democratic headquarters at Chicago during the presidential campaign of 1924. Dixon's selection rounds out the bipartisan commission provided for by the Hawley-Smoot act.

The other members, who took office Sept. 16, are Henry P. Fletcher of Pennsylvania, chairman: Edgar B. Brossard, Utah, and John L. Coulter, North Dakota, Republicans, and Alfred P. Dennis, Maryland, and Thomas W. Page, Virginia, Democrats. Dennis and Brossard, the latter a protege of Senator Smoot, were members of the old commission, while Coulter was its chief economist.

Statements from administration sources had given the impression that the Tariff Commission was to be thoroughly overhauled. The selection of Dixon, therefore, coming on top of the reappointment of Dennis and Brossard, caused general surprise.

Fletcher, the chairman, came up in a high-protectionist school of politics and the record of Brossard, as well as the support given him by Senator Smoot sufficiently indicates his views.

Dennis has a somewhat more liberal attitude, but is not regarded as likely to antagonize the administration. Page is a low-tariff man and Coulter remains to be tested. Dixon has been a negative figure on the commission.

Bulgarians Out of Conference.

By the Associated Press.

SOFIA, Sept. 27.—The Bulgarian delegation has declined to participate in the all-Balkan conference at Athens. The secretariat of the Bulgarian delegation in a statement today said it was influenced in its decision by the attitude of the Greek press, which, on the eve of the projected conference, had been digging up painful incidents of 30 years ago in Bulgaria. Moreover, the secretariat stated, it had been informed that the minorities question would not be admitted for discussion in spite of a decision taken at yesterday's conference in Athens.

Older People must watch Elimination Constantly

AS WE grow older the bowels become more sluggish. They don't get rid of all the waste. Some days they do not move at all. So older people need to watch their bowels constantly. Only by doing this can they hope to avoid constipation.

When your bowels need help, remember a doctor knows what is best for them, and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from the nearest drug store. Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for the bowels, good for all ages.

No restriction of habits or diet is necessary while taking Syrup Pepsin. Made from fresh, laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other valuable ingredients, it is absolutely safe. It will not gripe or cause discomfort. Take a spoonful next time your tongue is coated, or you have a bad taste in your mouth. It clears up a bilious, headachy, dull, weak, upset condition every time.

When you see how good it tastes and how nice it acts, you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the world's most popular laxative.

CARDS ACCLAIMED BY THOUSANDS IN PENNANT PARADE

City Pays Tribute to Team Which Has Won National League Flag Three Times in Five Years.

PLAYERS SHOWERED WITH PAPER, POSIES

Street and Frisch Receive Biggest Cheer When Auto Stops for Photograph Downtown.

Winners of their third National League pennant in five years, the conquering Cardinals received the tribute of St. Louis yesterday in an automobile parade through massed tens of thousands in the downtown district.

If there has been a suspicion that St. Louis has become blase about baseball, that it is beginning to take its championship teams as a matter of course, it was dispelled by the demonstration.

In number of spectators, in enthusiasm and in volume of scrap paper tossed from windows, the event has been excelled only by the Lindbergh welcome, the homecomings of St. Louis World War troops and the reception tendered the Cardinals in 1926 after they had won the first baseball pennant for St. Louis in 38 years.

Only in noise did the reception of yesterday fall short of previous demonstrations, and that because the ballplayers seemed consciously to be trying to avoid any radical expressions of feelings.

Players' Reticent Attitude.

Unanimously they refused to ride on the backs of the seats in the open cars, after the manner of conquerers, and unanimously they seemed to try to remain as much in the background as possible. Most of them appeared to welcome the screen of small boys who climbed on the running boards and shielded them somewhat from the crowds.

So it was that during the entire course of the parade there was but one good, full-throated cheer. That came at Eighth and Washington when a photographer persuaded Manager Gabby Street and the bare-headed captain, Frankie Frisch, to stand up in their automobile for a picture.

When the crowd saw their favorites on their feet it burst into a spontaneous cheer. Frisch and Street sat down grinning bashfully. A short distance farther on, a Washington avenue florist presented Street with a bouquet of roses tied with a cardinal red ribbon. Both Street and Frisch smiled their thanks, but there was the suggestion of strain in their bearing. Down the street a way, the weatherbeaten Gabby put the bouquet carefully on the floor. After that he appeared more at ease.

Showered With Roses.

Following Street and Frisch past the same florist's shop the other members of the team also received roses which were showered down on them from a canopy over the sidewalk.

At 9:30 a. m., an hour before the parade started from Sportsman's Park, the crowd began to gather, first small boys and housewives from the neighborhood, then policemen to keep them in bounds, and those who went to the park from other neighborhoods because it was the best place to get a good look at the Cardinals in street attire.

Five minutes before the start, the team arrived in a body from its clubhouse, and took seats in the open cars of the parade, two to each machine. Printed pennants on each automobile carried the names of its player-passengers.

By the time the team arrived, a crowd estimated at 10,000 had gathered in the two blocks where the parade was formed. Scattering cheers marked the progress of favorites through the crowd to their machines. First Baseman Jim Bottomley and the fleet outfielder, Taylor Douthit, were followed by the usual crowd of small boys as they took their places.

Bill Hallahan, southpaw pitching ace, was bundled in a heavy overcoat to prevent aggravation of a severe cold, but he appeared to be thoroughly in the spirit of the occasion while his automobile partner, Big Jess Haines, was solemn.

A Trim, Athletic Group.

All of the players were garbed in their best and a trim, athletic group they were as they piled into the machines and the parade moved south over Grand boulevard behind a convoy of motorcycle policemen.

Along Grand boulevard from the ball park to Franklin avenue the spectators were three to 10 deep at the curbs. There were scattering shouts as the ballplayers passed slowly, but no concerted cheering. Here as well as in the crowded downtown district there were thousands of school children, most of them accompanied by elders.

In the Grand-Olive district the crowd was even heavier, but down Lindell and Locust boulevards the spectators thinned out to a solid single or double line on either side of the thoroughfare.

At Twentieth street and Washington avenue, where two bands

Winners of their third National League pennant in five years, the conquering Cardinals received the tribute of St. Louis yesterday in an automobile parade through massed tens of thousands in the downtown district.

If there has been a suspicion that St. Louis has become blase about baseball, that it is beginning to take its championship teams as a matter of course, it was dispelled by the demonstration.

In number of spectators, in enthusiasm and in volume of scrap paper tossed from windows, the event has been excelled only by the Lindbergh welcome, the homecomings of St. Louis World War troops and the reception tendered the Cardinals in 1926 after they had won the first baseball pennant for St. Louis in 38 years.

Only in noise did the reception of yesterday fall short of previous demonstrations, and that because the ballplayers seemed consciously to be trying to avoid any radical expressions of feelings.

Players' Reticent Attitude.

Unanimously they refused to ride on the backs of the seats in the open cars, after the manner of conquerers, and unanimously they seemed to try to remain as much in the background as possible. Most of them appeared to welcome the screen of small boys who climbed on the running boards and shielded them somewhat from the crowds.

So it was that during the entire course of the parade there was but one good, full-throated cheer. That came at Eighth and Washington when a photographer persuaded Manager Gabby Street and the bare-headed captain, Frankie Frisch, to stand up in their automobile for a picture.

When the crowd saw their favorites on their feet it burst into a spontaneous cheer. Frisch and Street sat down grinning bashfully. A short distance farther on, a Washington avenue florist presented Street with a bouquet of roses tied with a cardinal red ribbon. Both Street and Frisch smiled their thanks, but there was the suggestion of strain in their bearing. Down the street a way, the weatherbeaten Gabby put the bouquet carefully on the floor. After that he appeared more at ease.

Showered With Roses.

Following Street and Frisch past the same florist's shop the other members of the team also received roses which were showered down on them from a canopy over the sidewalk.

At 9:30 a. m., an hour before the parade started from Sportsman's Park, the crowd began to gather, first small boys and housewives from the neighborhood, then policemen to keep them in bounds, and those who went to the park from other neighborhoods because it was the best place to get a good look at the Cardinals in street attire.

Five minutes before the start, the team arrived in a body from its clubhouse, and took seats in the open cars of the parade, two to each machine. Printed pennants on each automobile carried the names of its player-passengers.

By the time the team arrived, a crowd estimated at 10,000 had gathered in the two blocks where the parade was formed. Scattering cheers marked the progress of favorites through the crowd to their machines. First Baseman Jim Bottomley and the fleet outfielder, Taylor Douthit, were followed by the usual crowd of small boys as they took their places.

Bill Hallahan, southpaw pitching ace, was bundled in a heavy overcoat to prevent aggravation of a severe cold, but he appeared to be thoroughly in the spirit of the occasion while his automobile partner, Big Jess Haines, was solemn.

A Trim, Athletic Group.

All of the players were garbed in their best and a trim, athletic group they were as they piled into the machines and the parade moved south over Grand boulevard behind a convoy of motorcycle policemen.

Along Grand boulevard from the ball park to Franklin avenue the spectators were three to 10 deep at the curbs. There were scattering shouts as the ballplayers passed slowly, but no concerted cheering. Here as well as in the crowded downtown district there were thousands of school children, most of them accompanied by elders.

In the Grand-Olive district the crowd was even heavier, but down Lindell and Locust boulevards the spectators thinned out to a solid single or double line on either side of the thoroughfare.

At Twentieth street and Washington avenue, where two bands, mounted policemen and the Knothole Gang drum corps joined the parade, the crowd began to thicken again, growing steadily to Twelfth boulevard. From that point eastward the broad street was for the most part crowded from curb to curb with a narrow lane in the middle of the street and a scattering crowd on the sidewalk.

The paper shower began on Washington avenue west of Twelfth boulevard and grew in intensity as the parade crawled eastward, then south on Fourth street and finally west on Olive street. At Eighth and Olive the crowd cheered lustily as a heavy fall of green, red and blue paper added a bright note of color to the jam of humanity.

Difference in Reactions.

According to their dispositions the players gaily returned the greetings of the crowd or sat impassive. Orsatti, speedy outfielder, eyed the crowds solemnly. Chick Hafey, whose throwing arm has all but outlawed the sacrifice fly to the Cardinals' left field, appeared embarrassed by the cries of small boys and young women. Flint Rhem grinned sheepishly as a wag in every block asked him if he wasn't afraid of kidnapers, a reference to the lean pitcher's statement at Brooklyn that he was kidnaped and "forced to drink straight alcohol."

Watkins, the new heavy-hitting outfielder, Mancuso, the sensational second string catcher, and Andy High, whose pinch hitting turned the tide for the team in the "little world series" at Brooklyn came in for individual applause throughout the parade. And there were occasional shouts of "Hello, Junior," directed at Sparky Adams, the dimunitive infielder.

Other players in the parade included Burleigh Grimes, pitching ace, aggressively self-confident as usual; Charley Gelbert, youthful shortstop; Earl Smith, burly catcher recently recalled from the minors; Ray Blades, former McKinley High School student who is numbered among the Cardinals' many outfield stars; Jimmy Wilson, speedy catcher now on the shelf with injures; Tony Kaufmann, Herman Bell, Sylvester Johnson, Al Grabowski and Jim Lindsey of the pitching staff; Stout, Dean and Judd, recruit pitchers; and Puccinelli and Fisher, outfielders.

From Breadon to Batboy.

From owner Sam Breadon down to the batboys, every man in the Cardinals' organization was in the parade. Also in the procession were Mayor Miller, the major city officials and officers of the police and fire departments.

Mayor Miller rode with Breadon and their conversation turned to the desirability of bringing to Sportsman's Park tomorrow enough parade spectators to fill the seats. At the deciding game of the pennant race Friday less than 13,400 cash customers went through the turnstiles.

After he had returned to City Hall, the Mayor issued an appeal to St. Louisans to attend the final game of the season this afternoon with the Pittsburg Pirates. "Of course nothing is at stake, but it's another opportunity for St. Louis to show its appreciation to the Cardinals," the Mayor said.

Only by a brief cheer and the firing of bombs was the deciding game celebrated at the park Friday afternoon. It was a perfunctory affair with the lanky Pitcher Brame standing a terrific lacing at the hands of the slugging Cardinals and looking to the dugout in vain for relief.

After dinner, however, celebrators flocked to the downtown district and for two hours, from 8 to 10 Friday evening, the business district was bedlam. Automobiles were backfired, horns were blown continuously, and cowbells and junk were dragged through the streets.

At the conclusion of the parade yesterday afternoon Manager Street and his players expressed themselves as gratified with their reception by the huge crowds that turned out for the parade and promised to try to create another occasion for rejoicing by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics for the world championship.

Mayor of Philadelphia Promises "Traditional Hospitality."

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—The Mayor of Philadelphia today congratulated the Mayor of St. Louis on the winning of the National League pennant by the Cardinals.

Mayor Mackey wired Mayor Miller that "the Cardinals will be welcomed in Philadelphia with our traditional hospitality."

not unusual, but admitted the sales had not been reported to the grain futures supervisor there.

Barring of Foreign Short Selling by Chicago Board Criticised.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—A charge that Board of Trade directors exceeded their authority and bowed to a government motivated by political expediency in barring foreign nations from trading privileges fas made today by Samuel P. Arnot, several times president of the board.

His statement presaged a possible schism among board members over the action of the directors, who yesterday unanimously took the stand that sales of grain futures by a foreign government were objectionable, and should be stopped. Their resolution was communicated to Secretary Hyde of the Department of Agriculture by John J. Bunnell, Arnot's successor last year as president of the grain exchange.

The directors "clearly transscended their authority in the resolution," Arnot asserted. "Matters of this nature are regulated by rules passed by vote of the membership and not by resolutions passed by the board of directors." He said the board of trade had been made the "catspaw" of government authorities who were "manifestly inspired by political expediency and a rather undignified exhibition of hysteria."

During the last week the specter of Soviet Russia resuming its old role of grain exporter gave a new fright to the world grain market. Wheat sold down in Liverpool because of Russian offerings today and declined in American markets also. The Russian sales so unsettled the trade that wheat prices on the Chicago Board, already sunk to depths familiar only to traders of pre-war years, dropped away this week to almost daily new low records. The final sales today found September wheat going begging at 74½ cents a bushel, and December contracts at 77⅞—losses of 1⅞ to 2¾ cents for the day. At Winnipeg, wheat touched 70 cents.

The drooping market that was compared a few weeks ago with 1914 prices was nearing now the level of September, 1906, when wheat was quoted at 69⅛ cents.

In the week's interval since the discovery of the Russian short sales, wheat has declined from 6¼ to 7½ cents on this market, shearing about $58,660,000 from the value of the United States wheat crop of 1930—which totaled 838,000,000 bushels. This loss was increased today despite the Board's ruling against foreign selling, despite drouth reports from opposite hemisphers, despite the prediction of George S. Milnor, manager of the Grain Stabilization Corporation, that grain markets of the United States would be on a purely domestic basis long before another crop was harvested.

"Some reports," Milnor said, "indicate that the losses in feed crops will practically equal the country's total wheat crop. Wheat must be substituted, and at its present low price, millions of bushels are being fed. Many commodities now are selling in the United States on a basis of world price plus the tariff, and at the present rate of consumption of grains they are likely to be on similar basis much sooner than is generally expected."

A key to the present situation, with the lowest prices in a generation attracting little interest among buyers, is seen in the uncertainty of Russian exports. Cheap cash offerings from Russia were blamed for the sag in values today, while traders showed no reaction to the Board's ban on foreign selling.

Nye Predicts Laws to Curb Trading in Grain Futures.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Investigation of any activities by American Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in foreign grain markets was urged today by Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, who charged a conspiracy existed to discredit the Farm Board.

Senator Nye reported upon his return to the capital today from the Middle West that the agricultural situation was the issue with the people in that territory. He though if the administration would inquire further into the operations of the Soviet Government in selling wheat short in this country it would be found that some American trade organizations were doing the same in foreign markets.

"I am convinced of operations in foreign markets as part of the program to depress agricultural prices in order to discredit the Farm Board," he said.

The Senator said he intended to confer with Chairman Legge of the Farm Board on this and predicted an effort would be made in Congress to obtain legislation to curb operations in grain futures. He also predicted a revival of the movement for the equalization fee principle of farm relief as a part of the Farm Board machinery. Talk of a revival of the equalization fee came as a surprise here in view of the campaign made in the Senate last session by the coalition of Democrats and Western Republican independents for the export debenture principle.

Caraway (Dem), Arkansas, has pending a bill providing for strict regulation of the grain exchanges.

ROAD WORK FOR HIGH-LIFERS

Vera Cruz Has Novel Plan to End Night Dissipations.

By the Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Sept. 27.—Night life in this city is spoiled because the authorities arrest all persons they find on the streets late at night and put them to work with a road construction gang. As a result a 10-mile road between Vera Cruz and Boca de Rio is being built without labor costs.

Because of the campaign to get free labor, theaters, saloons, dance halls, and vice centers are virtually deserted after sunset.

CRIME IS GROWING IN 772 U. S. CITIES, SURVEY INDICATES

Increase in Practically Every Type From Murder to Petty Theft—Report on St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—An increase in crime, from murder to petty theft, was shown today in the first bulletin of a crime survey covering 772 ciites in 44 states, supervised by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation.

The bulletin covers in statistical form all "offenses known to police" from January to August, and showed an upward trend in almost every type of crime.

The increase of criminal activity for August was listed by the Hoover bulletin as "slightly less than 10 per cent" over July figures previously tabulated by the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

No returns for New York City and only partial returns for Chicago were listed in August report. With these cities eliminated Detroit was shown to lead in the volume of crime, with 2280 reported offenses. Los Angeles was next with 2183; Cleveland third with 1645; San Francisco fourth with 1503; St. Louis fifth with 1323; Philadelphia sixth with 1243; and Newark seventh with 1117.

The partial figure for Chicago showed 39 murders had been reported there last month, or three times as many as were known to have occurred in any other of the major cities. A total of 13 murders was reported for Philadelphia, with Detroit and Cincinnati having 11 each. Cleveland was shown to have had 10 murders during August; Jacksonville and New Orleans, nine each; Chattanooga and San Antonio, eight each, and Baltimore, seven.

Analysis of the types of offenses disclosed petty larceny accounted for 43.6 per cent of the total; automobile theft, 25 per cent; burglary, 19.9 per cent; larceny of sums over $50, slightly over 9.0 per cent; robbery, 5.3; aggravated assault, 4.6; murder and non-negligent manslaughter, .6; rape, .5, and manslaughter by negligence, .4.

Figures for the police protection afforded various cities showed the average to run about two policemen to every 1000 citizens. Palm Beach was shown to be the best policed city, with 19 policemen to every 1000 persons. The little city of Kinsley, Kan., came at the bottom of the list, with one policeman for 4546 residents.

PANAMA ORCHIDS FOR V. P. QUEEN'S BOUQUET AT BALL

Shaw's Garden Also to Provide Rare Blossoms From Philippines and Burma.

Shaw's Garden Tropical Station at Balboa, Canal Zone, has provided most of the orchids for the priceless bouquet of the queen at the Veiled Prophet ball Oct. 8 at the Coliseum.

For five years the queen's bouquet has been selected from the garden's orchids, the world's greatest public collection of show varieties. This year, for the first time, the featured flowers will be from plants grown at the tropical station.

They are great, mauve cattleyas native to Brazil, brought to St. Louis from Balboa last year. They have thrived in the Shaw's Garden orchid houses at Grays Summit. With them in the bouquet will be rarities from Burma, the Himalayas, Colombia, Australia and the Philippines.

MAN STRUCK BY STREET CAR SUFFERS INJURY OF SKULL

Taken to Hospital, Unconscious; Carried Carpenter's Union Card Issued to Walter Eberle.

An unidentified man about 50 years old suffered a skull injury when struck by a street car in the 7300 block of South Broadway about 7:30 o'clock last night. He was taken to City Hospital, unconscious.

Henry Muntain, motorman, and witnesses said the man ran from the sidewalk into the path of the street car. A carpenter's union card issued to Walter Eberle was found in his clothing, but no one with that name was known at the address given on the card.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON SAILS

Leaves U. S. Without Yachts Prize; Will Try Again.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. — Sir Thomas Lipton, weary but smiling, sailed for home today aboard the Leviathan, again without that "old mug." He will challenge for the America's Yacht Cup again, but when, he left indefinite.

Sir Thomas left praising both American sportsmanship and Harold Vanderbilt's seamanship and had words of wonder for the Enterprise, the boat that beat him. "If my opponent has a duraluminum mast," he said, speaking of his next challenger and the metal, "I will be very pleased to try one on my boat." Shamrock V. will be taken home for more racing in England. The defeated sloop will sail next week. For the consolation cup to be given him, $3325 has been contributed.

TELLS OF $1000 PLANT ROBBERY AFTER AUTO RIDE

E. J. Delaney Asserts Two Holdup Men Got in Car, Forced Him to Drive to Factory, Open Safe.

Edward J. Delaney, secretary of the La Salle Bottling Co., 3964 Olive street, told police last night that he had been held up by two men who climbed into his automobile when he made a boulevard stop at Page boulevard and Hamilton avenue and compelled him to drive to the bottling plant, where they took $1000 in cash from the office safe.

Delaney said he left the office about 9 p. m. and was driving to his home at 5978A Ridge avenue when the two men boarded his car. Threatening him with revolvers, the men compelled him to drive back to the office, unlock the door and open the safe.

They fled on foot, he said, leaving the keys to his automobile in his possession.

Delaney said he did not recognize either of the men although they knew his name.

TAILOR ROBBED OF $450 RING AND $140 CASH ON STREET

Max Sherman, a tailor, of 5822 Lotus avenue, reported to police last night he was robbed of $140 and a diamond ring, valued at $450 by two men who attacked him at Hamilton and Lotus avenues.

One robber held him while the other went through his pockets, he said.

WIFE AND SUITOR HELD IN BEATING OF HER HUSBAND

Mother of Seven Children and Doctor Are Suspected of Violating the Mann Act.

Harry Mehrhoff, 51 years old, who was severely beaten by two men who entered his home at 2023 East Gano avenue, Friday night, is in serious condition at the City Hospital with a fracture of the skull.

His wife, Mrs. Marie Mehrhoff, mother of seven children, and her admirer, Andrew Jackson Carmack, 62, who calls himself "Dr. Harry E. Day," are held by police for Federal authorities suspected of violating the Mann Act. They were arrested during investigation of the attack on Mehrhoff.

Mehrhoff, a laborer, was found unconscious in his bedroom. Revived at City Hospital, he related that two men attacked him while he slept, slugging him with a piece of gas pipe. He said he suspected "the Dr. Day who ran away with my wife."

Wife Recently Returned.

Mrs. Mehrhoff, arrested at the home of Joseph Herman, 853 Cowan avenue, said she left her husband in March, 1929, to go with Carmack, whom she knew as Day. Two weeks ago, she said, she left Carmack and returned to St. Louis with her children, effecting a reconciliation with her husband.

"Everything was all right until Friday when my husband came home drunk and began abusing me," she said. "I took the children and went to Herman's house where I found Dr. Day. I told him what had happened and he said, 'I'll attend to that.' He went away for about two hours. Then he came back with an iron bar in his hand and said, 'Well, he's fixed up now, all right.'"

Carmack, arrested on the street a block from Mehrhoff's home, denied he was one of Mehrhoff's assailants. The injured man could not identify him.

Cook Who Studied Medicine.

Carmack said he was a cook and that he had studied medicine at the Scranton Medical College, Columbus, O., completing the course in 1903. He declined to discuss his acquaintance with Mrs. Mehrhoff.

Mrs. Mehrhoff said she met Carmack in a Salvation Army store on Market street, where he was a clerk. They went to Chicago with the seven children, she said, then to St. Paul and finally to Casper, Wyo., where Carmack served a workhouse term for obtaining food for the family by fraud.

After his release, she said, they went to Denver, where Carmack was arrested and jailed for vagrancy after a policeman saw a blackjack fall from his pocket.

11 LIVES, 3 SHIPS ARE LOST IN GALE ON LAKE MICHIGAN

battled against death for hours during the gale of Friday and finally were rescued as their ship sank was told tonight by Fred Nelson, Captain of the schooner.

Nelson and his men arrived in Chicago tonight aboard the freighter William Nelson which stood by and rescued them during the height of the storm.

"The storm struck us about 8 o'clock Friday morning a few hours after we had left Sheboygan with a cargo of pulpwood," said Nelson. "It steadily mounted in intensity until 30-foot waves were breaking over the cord wood piled on deck. The water soon began to work into the hold and it was necessary to start the pumps.

"Part of the cargo was washed away around noon and the water began to raise faster. By 2 o'clock it was plain that we were losing ground and I gave the order to hoist a distress signal—that is, an inverted flag.

"A short time later the William Nelson came in sight but the seas were so high it seemed impossible to expect aid from it. Things looked bad then."

Capt. Charles H. Mohr of the William Nelson then took up the story, telling how he circled twice around the schooner, asking that it be headed into the wind, so he could bring his boat near.

"We then worked closer and closer," related Capt. Mohr, "until our bow was only a fw feet from the schooner. The waves were rocking both boats badly but fortunately they did not crash together. Finally the gap became so small that the men from the schooner were able to jump across. The schooner sank about 60 minutes later."

Miss Raskob's Stolen Ring Found.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 27.—Miss Betty Raskob, daughter of John J. Raskob, chairman of the National Democratic Committee, will recover a $2000 diamond ring stolen from her father's winter home at Palm Beach, Fla., last February, Prosecutor John J. Chester Jr. said tonight. Chester said the ring was found in loot uncovered since the arrest of J. F. Connelly in Erie, Pa., Monday night. He notified Miss Raskob by long distance telephone at her home in Centerville, Del.

New $225,000 Bird House To Be Open Next Sunday

Cages Contain Many of Rare Specimens of Fowl—Three Only Ones of Their Kind in U. S.

St. Louis' new bird house, erected at a cost of $225,000 and described by experts from other cities as the finest building of its kind in the world, will be open to the public next Sunday, George P. Vierheller, director of the St. Louis Zoological Gardens, said last night.

Rare birds and common, brilliant, dazzling birds and birds of sober, even shabby appearance, will be on exhibit in the new type of cages developed at the Zoo..

Quiet, fierce-eyed kea parrots, sheep killers from Australia, flashing multi-colored lorikeets, shiny blue-black mynah birds that dance, and shaking their yellow wattles, shame a parrot for loquacity; fussy, twittering parrokeets of every shade and hue from baby blue to deepest crimson; huge gawky hornbills with an incessant cry like the creak of a rusty windmill in a strong breeze; and an unobtrusive midget hornbill that seems depressed—perhaps by the fact that the Zoo's ornithologists have been unable to classify him.

Private Exhibition Tomorrow.

Although the rambling, Spanish-type structure with its cream stucco walls and red tile roof, will not be officially open for another week, Vierheller, in whom the pride of the collector is rampant, will have a private exhibition tomorrow for some of the foremost zoological experts in the world. Delegates to the convention of the American Institute of Park Executives and the American Association of Zoo Parks and Aquariums, which open tomorrow at Hotel Jefferson, will attend the exhibition.

Some of the more unusual sights awaiting them were displayed yesterday by Henry L. Kennon, ornithologist, who is to be in charge of the new building.

"Here," said Kennon, "is one of our real prizes. The Cock of the Rock. Only six of them ever came into the United States. Three are dead and we have the other three here. They are the most expensive birds in our collection and cost about $500 apiece.

"Notice the orange plumage of the male, the black wing edges and the permanent crest. You can see his bill now, but when he wants to, he can pull the crest forward until the bill is entirely hidden. The female, you will notice, is not quite so brilliantly colored, and this third one is a youngster. We can't determine its sex until it reaches full plumage.

Leadbeater Cockatoo.

"The Leadbeater cockatoo, this snowy white fellow with the rose-colored crest, is from Australia. We've had him since 1921, and there are not more than six of them in the United States.

He indicated a cage containing three golden yellow birds about the size of pigeons, with green wing tips and curved parrot-like bills. "Aratinga guarouba, the Queen of Bavaria Conure," he explained. "There are probably 12 in captivity in the world.

"The King parrokeet was donated by August A. Busch. It's very rare. I doubt if there are three in the United States. Distinguishing characteristics are its scarlet head, neck and breast, green wings and blue tail."

Kennon stooped and exposed to view two dull brown birds about the size of hawks. Sharp-taloned birds they were, with beaks curved like cutlasses and hard unwinking yellow eyes.

"The famous kea parrot," he said stepping back with the air of a man exhibiting something really worth while. "Sheep eaters from Australia. They light on the back of the sheep and tear them open to get at the kidney fat, which they eat. They used to be plentiful, but are quite rare now.

The Love Birds.

"Those?" He glanced at two pair of small birds sitting close together on a perch. "Why, everybody has those. They're what most persons call love birds. The fact that they are baby blue doesn't mean anything. Breeders can and do produce any color of these birds they want, including snowy white. The ancestors of these birds, like all others of the species in the wild state, were bright green.

"These, Trichoglossus moluccanus, or Swainson's lorikeets, to give them their popular name, are rather interesting. In captivity they live on malted milk, mixed the same way as for a person, and raw grapes. They are also rare and we are fortunate to have two."

The lorikeets have purple heads, orange breasts, blue bellies, green wings and their backs and tails are mixed yellow and green, while their small curved bills are bright red.

The Pennant Parrakeets.

"And here," Kennon said, "is the only mated pair of Pennant parrakeets in the United States. We got them from England, although they are natives of Australia. Notice the maroon body, the bright electric blue splotch on the throat, and the blue wings and tail.

"This little olive green fellow," he pointed at a bird no larger than a thrush, a dejected little bird with a furtive air about it, "this is a green toucanette from South America. Very rare. There are not more than three in the United States.

"Now about the cages. You will notice that on each side of the plate glass front, there is a strip of screening. Ventilation is one of the secrets of success of keeping birds. In addition, we have automatic cleaning and watering devices, developed here at the zoo.

"Last of all I want to show you the hornbills. This one is Buceros Rhinoceros rhinoceros, better known as the Rhinoceros hornbill. He comes from the Malay region and is distinguished by his black neck and the pinkish hue of his bill. There is one other in the United States.

Has 18-Inch Bill.

The hornbill, about the size of a buzzard, and with a bill 18 inches long, uttered its queer creaking cry and looked hungrily at Kennon, its rusty black feathers in characteristic disarray. Then Kennon exhibited the small hornbill, fully grown but only a third as large as its cousin, Buceros Rhinoceros rhinoceros.

"This is the bird we haven't been able to classify," he said. "He comes from Asia or Africa, but that is all we know about him. We call him Mournful Mike because he looks so sad."

And Mike did look sad. His neck was drawn in, and if a bird could hunch up its shoulders in misery, Mike's shoulders would have been hunched. He didn't creak like most hornbills do. He just stared.

MRS. M'CORMICK WON'T SPEAK TO NYE SHE SAYS

Tells Belleville Audience "Assistant Democrats" Should Be Read Out of Party.

"When I get to the Senate," said Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick in a speech at Belleville last night, "I am not going to play with Gerald Nye. I don't think I'll even speak to him.

"I have no respect for Mr. Nye or for other assistant Democrats in the Senate coalition which has done all it could to impede and embarrass President Hoover. I believe that these assistant Democrats should be read out of the Republican party."

Mrs. McCormick did not talk at length of the recent session of the Senate campaign fund investigation committee in Chicago, but said that she would have been glad to afford the committee some "good sport" if it had remained in Chicago. But it was unwilling to give her a hearing, she said. The committee, headed by Senator Nye of South Dakota, issued a statement denying Mrs. McCormick's charges that it caused her communications to be spied upon.

Expects Democrats to Shift.

"More Democrats will vote the Republican ticket in Illinois than ever before," Mrs. McCormick predicted. She cited a statement of her Democratic opponent, former Senator Lewis, that the differences between the Republican and Democratic parties was growing less. This might be true, Mrs. McCormick said, as to domestic issues, and she mentioned the vote of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen for the tariff bill. But outside the domestic field, she said, the Republican party was nationalistic, and the Democratic party believed in internationalism. Here she repeated former arguments against the League of Nations and the World Court, which she used against Senator Deneen in the primary.

She predicted that the new tariff would restore prosperity, as, she said, prosperity was restored by the election of McKinley, with the backing of her father, Mark Hanna, in 1896. She said the Republican party had given the country 60 years of prosperity, and the present depression would soon be over.

Glenn Talks on Prohibition.

Senator Otis F. Glenn, who accompanied Mrs. McCormick, spoke of the prohibition question. She had referred to it only in repeating her former promise to follow the mandate of the voters as expressed at the election.

"There is no chance for repeal of the prohibition amendment," Glenn said, "but there may be a new definition of liquor. Dr. Woodcock of the Prohibition Bureau is quoted as saying that the making of home-brew is legal. Then why not legalize beer? People are becoming more open-minded on these matters, and the solution will be reached by the moderates, and not by the fanatics and extremists on either side.

Mrs. McCormick went to Chicago last night after the meeting in Liederkranz Hall, Belleville. She will speak in Effingham and Centralia tomorrow, and in Edwardsville and Hillsboro Tuesday.

Mrs. O'Neill Criticises Mrs. McCormick's Attacks on Nye.

By the Associated Press.

CROPSEY, Ill., Sept. 27.—Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, independent candidate for the U. S. Senate, today defended the Nye senatorial committee which investigated Illinois primary campaign expenditures. "Mrs. McCormick dragged this cherubim chairman, Senator Gerald P. Nye, over the coals because he was doing his duty," she declared. "That committee has at all times acted within its rights. I am the Hoover Republican in this race. Mrs. McCormick is the Barney Snow Republican." She referred to Bernard Snow, Cook County chairman, whom she accused of initiating the referendum on prohibition Nov. 4 through political expediency.

She also declared that Mrs. McCormick, in spending more than $300,000 in the primary campaign, as testified before the Nye committee, virtually bought her way in. "I haven't any money in this campaign," she said, "all I have is a lot of nerve."

ACCUSES LOAN COMPANY OF CHARGING ILLEGAL RATE

Borrower, Seeking Cancellation of Notes, Says $179 Interest Was Paid on $440 Loan.

Suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by George O. Evans, a carpenter, and his wife, Mary, of 4393A Gibson avenue, to cancel notes and chattel mortgages signed by them in favor of the Mayflower Loan Co., with offices in the Paul Brown Building. Incidentally the suit seeks to enjoin the company from availing itself of an assignment of wages made by Evans, it being alleged such action may cause him to lose his employment.

According to the petition, Mr. and Mrs. Evans borrowed a total of $440 from the loan company and have paid back $228.86, of which it is alleged, $179.74 has been applied as interest. Cancellation is sought on the ground that the interest charges exceed the legal rate. An officer of the company said only the legal rate was charged.

Former Bus Agent Shot in Scuffle.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 27.—Jack Gibson, 34 years old, former traveling agent for a bus line, was shot in the abdomen and wounded seriously in a scuffle in a room at 1527 Main street here late today. Police arrested Urban L. Grubb, 40, former patrolman; Claude L. Smith, St. Louis, and Frank Teller, 58, of Kansas City. Police said Grubb and Teller told them they were scuffling over a revolver after an argument when it was discharged.

3 HELD AFTER WOMAN TELLS OF KIDNAPING

Wife of Grocery Clerk at Columbia, Mo., Says Men Tortured and Abused Her.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 27.—The story told county officers by Mrs. Nellie Mountjoy, a grocer clerk's wife, of having been kidnaped Sept. 3 and taken to a resort at St. Charles, Mo., today resulted in charges being filed against her alleged captors. Three men, James Selders, Thomas Asbury and Clyde Vandiver, who are held in default of $3500 bond, were arrested in a liquor raid on Asbury's farm near here. At the preliminary hearing they all pleaded not guilty.

In a statement to Prosecuting Attorney Franklin E. Reagan, Mrs. Mountjoy said she was seized by Selders and Vandiver while walking along a Columbia street, driven to Asbury's farm, where they bought whiskey and then, accompanied by Asbury was driven to St. Charles.

In an attempt to keep her from calling for help, the men threatened to remove all of her clothing, Mrs. Mountjoy said. At the St. Charles resort she says she was severely tortured and otherwise abused.

Asbury, besides being charged with possession of liquor, had been at liberty on appeal bond after having been convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of Matt Frost in a quarrel a year ago.

Reprimanded, Kills Grandfather.

MADISON, Ind., Sept. 27.—Authorities said today that John Hardy, 29 years old, of North Vernon, had confessed that he killed his grandfather, Thomas Taft, 78, at the latter's farm home last Thursday. Hardy said he was angry because his grandfather lectured him for being a spendthrift when he asked for a loan with with which to make a payment on an automobile.

ADMITS FIGHT WITH WOMAN FOUND DEAD

Peddler, 61, Held After Telling Varying Stories of Tragedy in His Room.

Mrs. Tillie Dzierzbicka, 49 years old, was found dead yesterday morning in a room at 1414 (rear) North Thirteenth street, her head cut and bruised. The room showed signs of a struggle.

The body was discovered after Gus Paras, 61-year-old peddler, living at that address, came to the Carr Street Police Station and told police that his "wife" probably had been fatally injured; that he had found her in the alley the night before, severely beaten, and had taken her into the house. He was held, suspected of murder, when officers found that his clothing was blood-stained, and that the room contained broken and blood-spattered pieces of a broom handle and a shovel with which the woman had apparently been beaten.

Later Paras admitted he had not found the woman in the alley, but that she had returned to the house at 11 o'clock Friday night, drunk, and that he and she had fought until she fell exhausted to the floor. He left her on the floor, he said, and awoke this morning to find her still there.

He told police that he and Mrs. Dzierzbicka had been living together intermittently for the last seven years, and that she was the mother of a grown son and daughter.

Window of Picketed Shop Smashed

A missile was thrown through a plate glass window of the Stanley Hat and Dress Co., 3400 South Jefferson avenue, Friday night, causing damage of $300. Henry Greenstone, proprietor, told police the store had been picketed since he painted it a month ago. He has offered a reward of $200 for apprehension of the guilty persons.

DR. W. H. BREUER NAMED TO RUN AGAINST BUFORD

Brother of Judge Nominated for State Senate in District Normally Democratic.

POTOSI, Mo., Sept. 27.—Dr. W. H. Breuer of St. James today was selected by the Republican Senatorial Committee of the Twenty-fourth District as the Republican candidate for the State Senate to oppose Senator Carter M. Buford of Ellington, Democrat. Dr. Breuer is a brother of Circuit Judge Ransom Breuer of Hermann and of L. H. Breuer, United States Attorney in St. Louis.

The selection of Dr. Breuer was at an adjourned meting of the committee. Democratic and Republican influences friendly to Buford having prevented a quorum at a meeting a week ago. Harry R. McCaw of Rolla, who has taken a lead in insisting that the Republicans put a candidate in the field against Buford, presided at the meeting, of which Mrs. W. J. Delano of St. James was secretary.

Although the district normally is Democratic, speakers at the meeting today expressed the opinion that the opposition to Buford in his own party because of his record in the last Legislature, from which he took a temporary leave of absence to avoid facing impeachment proceedings, might make Republican success possible.

FACING AUTO THEFT CHARGE

Edward Sandel, 26 years old, and Ray Maisser, 23, were returned to St. Louis yesterday from Caruthersville, Mo., on a charge of stealing an automobile from McClellan Zent, 4336A Forest Park boulevard, in a holdup a week ago.

The prisoners, who formerly roomed in St. Louis, admitted stealing the machine, police say. They drove to Jackson, Tenn., where they were arrested on a charge of kidnaping a young girl at Hayti, Mo. The kidnaping complaint was not sustained, but investigation disclosed the machine the men were driving had been stolen from Zent.

ORDERED TO HAVE TWO BOY VIOLIN PRODIGIES IN COURT

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A writ of habeas corpus was served today on Miss Beth Lackey, violin instructor, ordering her to have her two young charges, Ruggiero and Giorgio Ricci, in court Monday.

The writ charges her with refusing to admit the boys' father, Pietro Ricci, to her apartment to see the boys and with failing to carry out a previous order of Justice Valente which specified that the boys should be sent to a Catholic church.

Miss Lackey said the papers in the case were served on her personally by the father who had come to hear the boys play. The writ was issued by Supreme Court Justice Cotillo. In habeas corpus proceedings before Justice Valente last summer Miss Lackey won temporary custody of the boys, both of whom are violinists, until after Dec. 15, when the case was to be reopened.

AMMACK MAKING GHT TO CONTROL MISSOURI SENATE

ks to Wrest Power From Casey-Kinney-Brogan Organization in Saddle at Last Session.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
aff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27. — pre-legislative campaign to wrest ntrol of the Missouri Senate from e Casey-Kinney-Brogan organiza- n and to elect Senator Ralph ammack of Bloomfield president o tem has been actively under y since the Democratic nominees re decided in the August pri- ary.

If Wammack is chosen Senator rter Buford of Ellington, whose bitrary acts as chairman of the iminal Jurisprudence Committee the last Senate to prevent con- deration of bills to repeal or mend the small loan law became legislative scandal, would be iminated from the chairmanship any important committee. It is probable that Senator Kin- y would be deprived of the chair- anship of the Municipal Corpora- ns Committee, which he has aded for many years, and that nator Brogan would lose the ublic Health Committee chair- anship.

In fact, the play is for an entire- new deal in the Senate organiza- on, and to depose those who were the saddle during its last ses- on, which was known as the most rbulent and ineffective of recent ars.

Counts on Majority of 8.

The supporters of Wammack are oceeding on the theory that the emocrats will have 21 Senators d the Republicans 13 in the next nate. This estimate may be a tle high, though the probability that there will be a Democratic ajority. There are four close stricts, however, and if the Re- blicans should carry all of them, ere would be a party tie.

McCawley of Carthage always s a hard fight in the Twenty- ghth district, which is normally epublican by approximately 1500, t he has won there in the last o races, and is confident of ccess again.

Crouse of St. Joseph in the cond district also is an uncer- inty. Buchanan is the only unty in the district, and four ars ago elected a Republican. It expected to go Democratic this ar, however.

The other Democrats in close stricts, who are counted as win- rs are Gunn of Otterville in the urteenth, and Roberts of Farm- gton in the Twenty-Sixth. Rob- ts is opposing Senator Terry of stus, who is a candidate for re- ection.

If there are 21 Democrats in the nate, the Wammack forces ap- ar to have the better of the con- st though it cannot be said at this time that there are more than 10 votes which can be counted with reasonable certainty for Wammack. However, there appear to be only five which can with the same reasonable certainty be counted to support the Casey candidate.

In the Wammack line-up, in addition to Wammack, himself, are counted Dearmont of Cape Girardeau; Rollins of Columbia; Williams of Troy; Luther of Memphis; Whitecotton of Paris, Gunn of Otterville; Henry of Rich Hill; Bales of Eminence and Roberts of Farmington.

In the Casey group are counted in addition to Casey, McKittrick of Salisbury; Buford of Ellington, and Kinney and Brogan of St. Louis.

Those not so far definitely classified are Crouse of St. Joseph; Gordon of Liberty; Clark of Richmond; Haymes of Springfield; Donnelly of Lebanon and McCawley of Carthage.

Donnelly and McCawley are considered candidates for the presidency pro tem, and one of them may be the choice of the Casey group. Of the two Casey would much prefer Donnelly to McCawley, who in the eight years in the Senate, has been in constant conflict with the Casey following. Casey, however, would take McCawley if he thought him the only man who could defeat Wammack.

Wammack's Friends Confident.

Casey as president pro tem in 1929 gave Wammack only one committee chairmanship, although Wammack was recognized as one of the strong men in the Senate. Casey made him chairman of the Committee on Railroads and Internal Improvement, probably the least important of all committees. Not one bill was referred to it through the entire session.

Wammack's supporters now assert that there is no doubt of his selection as president pro tem, insisting that on a final show-down in the caucus Casey will have a chance at only one vote among those not now definitely classified. They say that because of personal associations Donnelly might vote with the Casey group, but that McCawley would not unless he received Casey's support for the chief office. They say that on a final vote Crouse, Clark, Haymes and Gordon will be with Wammack.

Wammack has written to all Democratic Senators and nominees that he is a candidate for president pro tem, and has solicited support. It is reported here that he has the pledges of nearly all those classed above as Wammack supporters.

FRED HENNEY CHOSEN HEAD OF 35TH DIVISION ASSOCIATION

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 27. — Fred Henney, managing editor of the Hutchinson, Kan., News and Herald, was elected president of the Thirty-fifth Division Association at the annual convention here late today. He succeeds Capt. Verne Wilson of Jefferson City, Mo.

Other officers are Fred Windsor, St. Joseph, first vice president; Eustice Smith, Hutchinson, Kan., second vice president; Ross Diehl, Chillicothe, Mo., third vice president; Rudolph Carpenter, Marion, Kan., fourth vice president; Kenneth Lewis, Topeka, secretary; Harry Fellows, Jefferson City, assistant secretary, and the Rev. W. L. Hart, Lakeville, Minn., chaplain. Lewis and Father Hart were re-elected.

Pittsburg, Kan., was selected as 1931 convention city.

SENATOR REED HERE DISCUSSES WET DRYS

Comments on Candidates' Shifts of View and Says It's a Democratic Year.

Former Senator James A Reed, staying at Hotel Jefferson last night on his automobile journey from New York to Kansas City, following a summer in Europe, commented on the shift of candidates from the dry to the wet view. Referring first to Illinois, he said:

"I have heard of a candidate who thought it was all right to imprison people for selling a glass of beer, but who is ready to make a change of view when a majority of the voters say so. If I knew a Presbyterian who turned Catholic because of a majority of his neighbors were Catholics, or a Catholic who turned Presbyterian for such a reason, I would think he had not been very sincere in the first place.

"And in New York the Republicans have nominated the former prosecutor, who showed such zeal in his work as to indicate that he was striving for a record, but who now is ready to run on the repeal platform. Well, the Republicans of New York have one man who stood square on that question, and that was Jim Wadsworth.

"The New York Republicans," Reed continued, "in proposing repeal, add a proposal that the Federal government shall still impose a certain control. Instead, control should be returned to the States. If the State can be trusted to deal with murder, arson and robbery, it can be trusted to regulate the sale of a glass of beer.

"It is certain that prohibition is a political issue. That is bound to be true, when no group of people can talk for more than a few minutes without discussing it."

Reed commented on the attempt to force Senator Norris of Nebraska off the Republican ticket, by running another George W. Norris in the primary, as "an act of scoundrelism worthy of the corrupt Republican national organization. I am not speaking of individual Republicans," he said, "but of the party machinery, which has brought political morals to a point where they are not fit to discuss."

The former Senator had no comment to make on suggestions that he run for the Senate in 1932, to succeed Senator Hawes, who will not run again, having accepted a non-political position. He predicted that the November election would show the present to be a Democratic year. "The Hoover administration is a joke," he said, "that is, if there is anything funny about utter failure in the important job of government."

CO-OPERATION AGAINST MISUSE OF HIGHWAYS IS PROMISED

Chief Engineer Cutler Writes Governor He Will Prepare Suggestions.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27.—Co-operation of the State Highway Department in a move by Gov. Caulfield to curb misuse of the State highways by commercial motor vehicles, and to eliminate hazards to traffic from reckless operation of large trucks, was promised by Chief Highway Engineer Cutler today in a letter to the Governor.

The Governor, as had been told, wrote to Cutler yesterday for a report on what powers the department had to control operation on the highways of large motor transports and trailers and whether any additional legislation was necessary. The Governor said the highways were being misused by trucks through careless operation and declared they were becoming a "menacing evil" to traffic.

In his reply to the Governor, Cutler said motor busses should be included with "the other two big evils" of commercial trucks and automobile transports.

"This department has rather definite authority in controlling weight, both gross and load limits," Cutler wrote, "and has for this purpose 15 men patroling the highways to catch the overloaded vehicles. Except in a few counties, however, where these men happen to be deputized, we have no authority to make arrests. We would be glad to co-operate with any agency you might suggest in an attempt to correct the present motor vehicle laws to overcome the dangerous abuse of the highways by special interests.

"I am asking our attorney for any suggestions he may have concerning what can be done at present, and to co-operate with any agency you might suggest for formulating a better system of laws to be submitted to the next Legislature."

CHARGES FRAUD IN LAND DEED

Springfield (Ill.) Man Accuses Zelma M. Spaulding of St. Louis.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 27.—Leven M. Dowdall of Springfield filed suit in United States District Court today against Zelma M. Spaulding of St. Louis, charging that the defendant had by misrepresentation obtained deed to Greene County farm lands from John H. Dowdall, insane.

Leven M. Dowdall was appointed conservator of John H. Dowdall's estate July 26. The deeds were transferred three days later, the suit charges. Dowdall asked a writ of injunction preventing collection of rentals from the lands involved and asked that the deed transfers be voided. Most of the land is in Whitehill, Ill.

The name of Zelma M. Spaulding does not appear in St. Louis directories.

MEDICAL PRACTICE IN SOUTH SEAS DESCRIBED

Dr. Evarts A. Graham Recounts Events of Journey to Australia.

A Goverment hospital built chiefly of grass, tarnish where story books told of glamor, and glamor where the story books missed it, were described by Dr. Evarts A. Graham of St. Louis yesterday upon his return from the South Seas.

Dr. Graham, Bixby professor of surgery in Washington University School of Medicine and surgeon-in-chief to Barnes St. Louis Maternity and St. Louis Children's hospitals, sailed for Australia June 11 upon invitation of the University of Melbourne. He delivered 11 lectures to physicians in Australia and New Zealand on surgical methods originated here, particularly in gall bladder, liver, lung and chest surgery.

He found the practice of medicine in Australia and New Zealand on a high plane. Physicians there, he related, were looking to the United States for much of their inspiration instead of to the British Isles, as formerly.

"The native grass huts in New Zealand," he remarked, "are well adapted for comfort and health in that part of the world. They are entirely open to the sun and wind from the roof to the floor, which is of gravel. The beds are grass mats.

"The government hospital at Apia, Samoa, consists entirely of these native huts. Patients bring all their relatives and food for the group. One hut is alloted to each outfit, and, whenever anything is happening to the patient, all his relatives and friends stand around and watch."

"The British in New Zealand," he said, "treat the Maoris with absolute fairness and honesty; it seems to me, much better than the Americans treated the Indians. Land is purchased always at what seems to be a fair price, set by the Maori court, which represents both the British and the native population. It is not possible for an Englishman to trade a quart of whisky for a tract of land.

"Maoris are considered the equals of whites in intelligence and in most desirable qualities. Some of them have attained great distinction in Parliament, the professions and the church. The natives have every opportunity of the white men."

In British Samoa—which is under the jurisdiction of New Zealand—he observed, the Government was making an effort to preserve unspoiled the native customs and forms of living. European veneer was discouraged. Even in modern communities natives retained some of their customs. They feared to go on the streets after dark without a light or a noise to frighten away the spirits.

The Tahiti of romance seemed smothered beneath imported customs, the incubus of 50 years of "civilization." In 25 years more, he predicted, the remaining haunts of the primitive would lose much of their interest and charm.

But down in the Tonga Islands, on Fanualai or Vavau, he found natives "who sing and dance all day" and were still as friendly and unspoiled as when Capt. Cook, the discoverer, decided to name the group the "Friendly Islands."

The ship on which Dr. Graham traveled stopped at Savage Island. It was the first passenger boat to call there in 15 years. It also visited "Tin Can" Island, so called because shallow water requires mail to be set afloat in tin cans for which natives swim two miles from shore.

"Formerly there were only two white people on the island," related Dr. Graham. "They didn't speak, because they represented rival trading companies. Now there are five or six, each representing a different concern, and as far as I know, they get along amicably.

FLYERS RETURN FROM ARCTIC WITH FRANKLIN PARTY RELICS

Major Burwash With Companions Was First on King William Island in 60 Years.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 27.—Major L. T. Burwash, explorer of King William Island, arrived today with relics of the expedition of Sir John Franklin, after an epic flight over the area trod by the survivors of that arctic venture 80 years ago.

With Pilot Gilbert of the Western Canada Airways and Richard Finnie of the Department of the Interior, Major Burwash was the first white man to cover that fateful territory since 1869.

He found no documents relating to the expedition, but he brought back with him bits of naval cloth, coal and rope and the memory of lonely graves.

Major Burwash said concentrations of high-grade copper ores were found at Hunter Bay. These upon development, he said, may prove to be the outcroppings of large and valuable deposits.

T. D. Jones, Wilson's Friend, Dies.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Thomas D. Jones, of Lake Forest, retired lawyer, member of the board of directors of the International Harvester Co., and an intimate friend of the late Pesident Woodrow Wilson, died today at the Presbyterian hospital of heart disease, following a minor operation a week ago. Jones was 79 years old. He made many gifts to Princeton University, totaling $1,500,000.

ROBBER SURROUNDED BY POSSE AFTER SHOOTING TWO MEN

Two Companies of Pennsylvania Militia Join Search for Fugitive In Mountain.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 27.—After shooting two men and shooting at two others, George Skidmore, 20 years old, sought in connection with a robbery and murder in Pittsburg, was surrounded tonight in the wilds of Rattlesnake Mountain, about 60 miles from this city, by a posse of more than 150 men. State policemen, highway patrolmen, two companies of National Guardsmen armed with machine guns, and citizens made up the posse.

Corp. J. G. Olmes, a highway patrolman of Altoona, was wounded in the right arm and the chest by Skidmore, and the arm of William Fox, keeper of the aviation beacon on Rattlesnake Mountain was shattered and was amputated tonight in a hospital. The cap of Sergt. W. C. Bear, a state patrolman was shot off, a bullet went through the trousers of Corp. C. J. Gross, highway patrolmen from Bellefonte went into the mountains after Skidmore and two companions last night on a tip from Pittsburg police. Leonard Skidmore, a brother, and William Dutton, a friend, were arrested then.

HEAD OF ALLIED VETERANS' SOCIETY VISITING ST. LOUIS

Lieut.-Col. Abbot to Review Troops at Jefferson Barracks and Deliver Address Tomorrow.

Lieut.-Col. F. W. Abbot, president of Federation Interalliee des Anciens Combattants, a fraternal organization whose membership includes veterans of all the armies allied in the World War, arrived in St. Louis last night for a week's visit at the home of Samuel Kennard, 4970 Pershing avenue. His wife, who accompanied him, is Kennard's sister.

Lieut.-Col. Abbot retired from the British army after the war and is now a civil engineer at Nice, France.

He will review the troops at Jefferson Barracks tomorrow and at noon will address St. Louis members of La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux at the American Annex Hotel.

DOUBTS WOMAN WAS POISONED

Army Doctor Files Deposition in Death of Mrs. Sevier.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Sept. 27.—Another step in the long legal controversy over the death of Mrs. Granville Sevier here in August, 1928, was taken yesterday when her husband filed a deposition by an Army medical officer designed to strengthen Sevier's opposition to the performance of an autopsy by the coroner.

Mrs. Sevier left the bulk of her $700,000 estate to her husband, a Colonel in the Army. Ralph Shianwald, her brother, charged his sister had died of unnatural causes and several months ago brought suit in an effort to compel Sevier to permit an autopsy. The death certificate attributes death to natural causes. The deposition filed yesterday was made by Maj. Reuben A. Campbell, who set forth he had examined Mrs. Sevier prior to her death and found nothing leading to the opinion she had been poisoned.

Network Programs Begin Hour Later Today

Some Changes in KSD's Schedule — Phil Cook Shifts to KSD at 8 A. M. — Uncle Abe and David at 5:45 on KSD Four Evenings a Week — Seth Parker Off KSD's List Sunday Nights.

Network radio programs generally will be broadcast an hour later than during the past five months, beginning today when daylight saving time goes out in New York City.

The change necessitates a rearrangement of the time sharing schedule of KSD and KFUO on 550 kilocycles. For example, KSD will be off the air this afternoon from 3 to 4:30 o'clock so that KFUO may broadcast and will sign off tonight at 9:15. The principal change will affect the periods between 6 and 7 p. m. daily, except Sunday.

KSD will be unable to broadcast "Sunday at Seth Parker's" tonight because of the new time sharing arrangement.

Uncle Abe and David will be shifted from 9:15 at night to 5:45 in the evening on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Phil Cook will do his singing and comedy stuff over KSD every morning, except Sunday, at 8 o'clock.

A Songs of the Season program will replace the RKO series at 9:30 Tuesday nights.

The Eversharp Men will be a new feature on KSD at 8:30 Friday nights.

An additional weekly concert of dance music by B. A. Rolfe's Lucky Strike Orchestra is scheduled over KSD from 9:15 to 10 o'clock Tuesday nights, beginning this week.

KSD will broadcast dance music from 10 p. m. until midnight on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, and on Wednesday night from 10 until 11 p. m. Monday night will bring the Hotel New Yorker orchestra and dance music from Chicago. Tuesday night will bring Vincent Lopez, the Hotel Bossert and Don Bigelow's dance orchestras. Wednesday nights, the St. Regis Hotel orchestra in New York and the Hotel Coronado orchestra in St. Louis will play over KSD. Thursday night's dance tunes will be furnished by the Hotel Paramount, Hotel Coronado and Hotel Bossert orchestras. Friday night, KSD listeners may dance to music by the St. Regis, Coronado, Wayne King and Palais d'Or orchestras. Saturday night's dance program will be given by the Park Central, Coronado and Hotel New Yorker orchestras.

Today, KSD will broadcast three programs familiar to its listeners which have not come over this station for some time. These are Spanish Dreams, the Fusileers and Metropolitan Echoes.

Freedom of Speech By Radio Is Involved

A test of what is radio freedom of speech is involved in three damage suits filed in Lincoln, Neb., by C. A. Sorensen, Attorney-General, against Richard F. Wood, a lawyer, and station KFAB.

Sorensen's suits for $240,000 are the outgrowth of a speech Wood made attacking the Attorney-General during a campaign. The cases allege slander.

The Attorney-General has as coplaintiffs Irvin Stalmaster, his Omaha deputy, and Stalmaster's father-in-law, Harry H. Lapidus, business man. The radio station was joined in the actions because, it was charged, it sponsored the address by "introducing and vouching for the defendant; because a copy was available to its attaches and a representative of the station was in the studio during the false and slanderous remarks."

Wood's remarks were made in the campaign in which United States Senator George W. Norris, running for renomination, was the issue. Sorensen is of the Norris faction. Wood is a "regular Republican."

KFAB issued a public disavowal of responsibility for Wood's remarks. Dietrich Dierks, station director, saying that his organization was not in sympathy with personal attacks upon Sorensen, and offering a public apology. Wood also apologized to the Attorney-General.

The special Chevrolet program which is planned to open a series this fall will be recorded and distributed in that form to some 100 stations for simultaneous broadcasting, according to the New York Sun.

WLW Will Put Amos and Andy on the Air at 6 O'Clock St. Louis Time —KDKA Nearly Ready to Test With 400,000 Watts After Midnight, and WGY With 200,000 —Stokowski Announces Program for Radio Concert Oct. 12—Lutheran Hour on CBS Net at 9 P. M. Thursday.

Amos and Andy will be broadcast by WLW at 6 o'clock St. Louis time, beginning tomorrow evening. This will be the first time that listeners in this region will be able to tune in this program early in the evening on a station which can be heard consistently every day. Other NBC stations that will broadcast Amos and Andy at 6 p. m. will include WCKY, WJR, KDKA and WJZ.

KWK will carry Amos and Andy at 10:30 p. m.

The Cleveland Bach chorus of 150 voices, named for the "Great Cantor of Leipzig," will be the feature of the first program of "Lutheran Hour," series, originating in Cleveland, that will be broadcast over the Columbia network at 9 o'clock next Thursday night.

For a number of years this chorus, under the direction of Edward F. Streiter, has specialized in music written by Bach specifically for the Lutheran service, and has interpreted his works for large audiences in the North Central states. It will inaugurate a series of Thursday evening broadcasts, sponsored by the Lutheran Laymen's League, from various cities, which will bring a weekly address by Dr. Walter A. Maier of Concordia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, and a Bach Choral unit, supervised by Dr. Rechlin, one of the outstanding organists and Bach specialists in the world.

With KDKA, Pittsburg, Pa., about to go on the air in after-midnight tests with 400,000 watts power, WGY, Schenectady, N. Y., revealed plans to resume its experiments with 200,000 watts in similar tests when it applied to the Federal Radio Commission for a renewal of the experimental license of W2XAG, the auxiliary of WGY. WGY would use 200,000 watts on 550, 660, 790, 1150 and 1500 kilocycles. The 400,000 watts of KDKA and the 200,000 watts of WGY are the highest power, so far as any records reveal, ever attempted by any broadcasting stations anywhere in the world.

The commission also has received a request from the Westinghouse company for a modification of the experimental license of W8XT, the auxiliary of KDKA, to permit simultaneous operation with WEAF, New York, and WGY, Schenectady, during the hours of midnight to 5 a. m. The object is to study the interference that results when all these high-powered stations go on the air at the same time on the same wave length and to develop means of synchronizing them to eliminate that interference.

Music by two Spanish and two French composers has been elected by Leopold Stokowski for the first Philco Hour concert by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra which will be broadcast over KSD on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 12. The concert will open with the "Fete Dieu a Seville" of Albeniz, a musical picture of God's Holiday in the Spanish city. Next will come the "El Amor Brujo" of de Falla, a story, told in music, of a gypsy woman obsessed by memory of her brutal lover who has died, and of the exorcising of his spell. The third number will be Debussy's "La Cathedrale Engloutie," a musical setting of a legend of the submerged cathedral in the drowned city of Ys. The concert will end with the "Bolero" of Ravel, with which the Roxy Symphony Orchestra has twice won a great response from the radio audience.

Stokowski has deliberately planned a program of Mediterranean music, one to give his orchestra opportunity to express a variety of rhythmic fantasy and vivid color contrasts. All four works to be played are distinctly "modern" in character, and all bear unmistakably the stamp of genius.

It is said that when Floyd Gibbons began broadcasting last fall he received $150 a week. Today it is "reliably reported" that he gets $4500 weekly, for his Sunday night adventure series, his twice-a-day news broadcasts and his Saturday night science adventures. He is on the air three and a half hours a week, so is paid at the rate of $1286 an hour. Of course, he spends many hours a week getting the facts for his broadcasts and writing them into shape.

Bernadine Hayes, the CBS chain singer who was crowned "queen" of the radio world's fair in New York, began her career in St. Louis. Until she was 18 years old, she had sung only in homes of friends and at private parties. She found an opportunity in an emergency at a local theater and won a contract for a tour of the West. In 1928 she became a member of the staff of KMOX, St. Louis, from which she sang for a year as "The Red Head of the Air." Then she went to WWJ, Detroit, as its first "blues" singing staff entertainer. On a vacation, she sang again over KMOX and was heard by a CBS System official, who suggested that she go to Chicago and try out over WBBM. She won an immediate success over WBBM, became a member of the station's staff and since has sung on numerous WBBM and Columbia Chain programs. She also has played in stock with the Minturn Players and has been featured in television programs.

Mme. Homer In Atwater Kent Concert Next Sunday

Long List of Great Artists Announced for Sixth Fall and Winter Season of These Broadcasts Over KSD.

Mme. Louise Homer, operatic and concert contralto, and her daughter, Katherine Homer, pianist, will be the soloists next Sunday night in the opening broadcast of the sixth Fall and Winter Atwater Kent Hours over KSD. They will be programmed with the Atwater Kent Orchestra led by Josef Pasternack.

In succession, the following great artists will be heard over KSD in these Sunday night concerts: Richard Bonelli, baritone of the Chicago Opera, on Oct. 12; Giovanni Martinelli, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, Oct. 19; Lucrezia Bori, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, Oct. 26; Beniamino Gigli, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, Nov. 2; Katheryn Meisle, contralto of the Chicago Opera, Nov. 9; Josef Hoffman, pianist, Nov. 16; Rosa Ponselle, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, Nov. 30.

Others of the musically great who are to sing or play in Atwater Kent concerts over KSD this season include: Anna Case, soprano; John Charles Thomas, the baritone; Lawrence Tibbett, whose success in the talkies, after he had created a sensation at the Metropolitan Opera, is known to every theatergoer; Albert Spalding, the American violinist who won world-wide fame despite the handicap of being born to wealth; Marie Kurenko, the "Russian Nightingale"; Elizabeth Rethberg, the operatic soprano, who did some of the finest singing ever heard on the air, in an Atwater Kent broadcast last season; Busolina Giagninni, a new operatic sensation; the Kedroff Quartet, a Russian organization new to radio but justly famous in concert, and the Atwater Kent Quartet.

Next Sunday night, Mme. Homer is to sing: Schubert's "Serenade;" the "Nur wer die Sehnsuch Kennt" of Tschaikowsky; an old Scotch song, "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be;" that loviiest of all arias for mezzo-soprano, "My Heart, at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah;" Bohm's "Calm as the Night;" the "Banjo Song," composed by her husband, Sidney Homer; a group of children's songs, including "The House That Jack Built," by her husband; "Home From School," by Rohrer, and "Little Orphant Annie," by Krull; and, as a finale, "O Promise Me," from "Robin Hood," and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," by Tomer.

The first Atwater Kent Hour was broadcast Oct. 4, 1925, with Reinald Werrenrath, the baritone, as soloist. Only artists of the first rank were presented in the fall and winter season and the response from critics and listeners was tremendous. Three years ago Josef Pasternack was engaged to organize a special Atwater Kent orchestra. In the five years it has been on the air, the Atwater Kent series has presented 130 artists of major importance and more than 260 concerts have been given.

In addition to KSD, the following stations are among those that will broadcast the Atwater Kent concerts this fall and winter: WGY, WEAF, WTAM, WWJ, WSAI, WGN, KSTP, WOC, WOW, WHAS, WFAA, WBAP, KPRC, WOAI, WSM, WMC, WSB, KOA, WKY, WDAF.

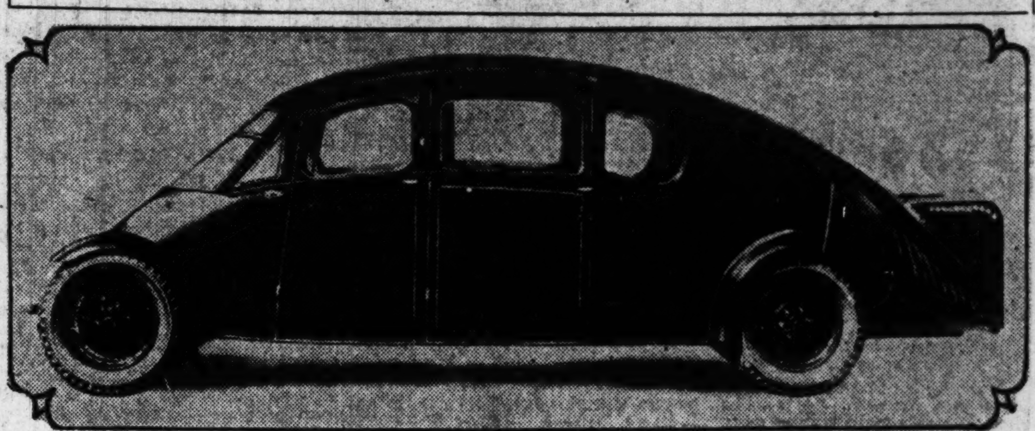
England Expects to See It in Production



Remarkable streamlined auto built by Sir Dennistoun Burney, who designed the airship, R-100. Persons who have driven it say that the sensation is like that of piloting a plane, becase of the lifting effect and the absence of road schoc . The engine is in the extreme rear of the car and the spare wheels are carried in the doors. The wheels have a 50-degree lock. The headlights are concealed in the body. The streamlined design is said to save 50 per cent gasoline and tire cost and fully as much in power. Expectation in England is that a car of similar design will be placed on the market. It cost $7500 or so, but engineers say it could be made in quantities for less than half that money.

Dallas Busy Spending $20,000,000 to End Chief Traffic Troubles

Dallas, Tex., is spending $20,000,000 to solve its traffic problem and make all roads lead to Dallas. Stopped from physical expansion by the treacherous Trinity River, this city set aside this sum to change the course of the river, impound it in levees, span it with four viaducts and reclaim river bottoms area of 10,500 acres. Within a month the viaducts will be opened to autos.

Agitation to chain the Trinity began in 1908 when the river reached a gauge height of 52.6 feet, flooding Dallas and causing more than $2,500,000 damage. Plans formulated to end the flood menace did not materialize fully until May, 1928.

Dallas has provided itself with 10,500 acres of industrial sites, three minutes from the business district, adjoining great railroad terminals, with a site for a municipal airport and wharfage space for the day when the Trinity will be navigable to the Gulf of Mexico, some 300 miles away. It also has provided for special, high-speed truck lanes. Cotton, truck garden stuff, light manufacturing products, foodstuffs, will be carried to great degree by trucks to all parts of Texas.

If one suspects that brakes are not properly equalized, use them vigorously and then feel the drums. If one is hot while the others are cool, an adjustment is needed.

U. S. Auto Industry Is Looking to Paris Salon

Many Executives and Engineers Will Attend to Note New Ideas of European Designers — Continent to See New American Line of 8-Cylinder Cars Before It Is Shown Here.

DETROIT, Sept. 27.—Immediately ahead of the automobile industry loom two events that mark the actual beginning of the 1931 season. The annual Paris Salon will open Oct. 2 and, as usual, this international exhibition is the world's eye-opener as to what car manufacturers have to offer for next year.

Most of the American concerns not only will exhibit at Paris, but also will have their leading executives and engineers there to look over what the foreign factories have to offer.

The other event of major importance is the annual drawing for

SATISFACTION THAT DOESN'T WEAR AWAY

The most important thing a motor car can give—lasting satisfaction—is the very thing which has won so many thousands of enthusiastic friends and admirers for the Oldsmobile Six.

The reason is simple . . . for Oldsmobile is designed and built primarily to give satisfaction. And the evidence is plain to be seen in the car itself.

Look at Oldsmobile's big, powerful, high-compression engine. Note particularly its simple, sturdy construction—how the entire power plant is sealed and protected by oil and gasoline filters, air cleaner, and crankcase ventilation.

Then examine Oldsmobile's rugged, perfectly-balanced chassis. Notice the size and strength of its sturdy frame . . . its long, flexible springs and four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers . . . its big, internal-expanding, weatherproof four-wheel brakes.

Finally, when you've checked engine and chassis, consider the smart style and luxury which characterize Oldsmobile's beautiful Fisher bodies. See how every detail of finish and appointment lends a touch to the distinctive character of the car as a whole.

Then, when you feel that you know how Oldsmobile is built, take the wheel and find out how it performs. Go through the whole routine of tests—drive it over any roads you please—add your own pet trials.

That's the way to get the facts. That's the way to learn why owners praise Oldsmobile so highly for dependability, value and satisfaction that doesn't wear away.

Willys-Overland President Sees Definite Upturn

Urges All Dealers to Increased Activity at This Pivotal Time.

"Willys-Overland's notable 30 per cent August increase over July in unit sales, accompanied, as it is, by the first general improvement in car loadings and steel tonnage, indicates to us a definite and encouraging up-turn," L. A. Miller, president of the company, states.

"Statistics of savings deposits, coupled with some gain in employment generally, indicate an improvement in purchasing power, production and sales.

"Merchandise stocks generally, not only in the automotive field, but in various lines, are very low and there is sound reason to believe that the shipments of delayed orders for finished goods and heavy wheat shipments from the crop area may continue the up-swing in traffic contribution to railroad income.

"After a prolonged depression, such as we have had, there comes a time when a positive up-turn in business is inevitable.

"Estimates indicate that passenger cars in the hands of dealers were reduced another 10 per cent during the period from the middle of July to the middle of August The storerooms of thousands of motor car dealers throughout the country are virtually bare of new merchandise. Production of motor vehicles for the first seven months declined 33 per cent over 1929.

"If the demand for motor transportation is sufficiently powerful in the next 60 days, the improvement in employment thus begun in the automotive industry doubtless will carry through the remaining months of the year and help give that positive, permanent up-turn to business conditions, out of which will grow the optimism necessary to carry business forward on another swing of prosperity.

"I am urging the 5000 dealers in the Willys-Overland organization, and I know other automobile manufacturers are urging their dealers, to make an extraordinary effort at this pivotal time to see those buyers who are logically going to be in the market for new transportation some time within the next few weeks or months. The few purchases made now in each little community, which might as easily be made now as later, may conceivably turn tendencies toward improved conditions into an actual tide of buying and advance considerably our coming period of prosperity."

Buick Sales in State 40 Per Cent of All In Its Price Class

Automobile registration figures just announced for August show that four times as many Buicks were delivered to Missouri motorists as any other make of car in Buick's price class, which includes 15 cars, according to C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Co.

In St. Louis, Buick sales accounted for 40.5 per cent of all the August deliveries in this price class, exceeding the second most popular car by better than four to one. This high average was held throughout the State, bringing the total of Missouri Buick deliveries to 43.3 per cent of all cars sold in this price range during the month.

Pennzoil Used In Jenkins' Record Climb

In his two record runs up Mount Washington, in New Hampshire, on Aug. 1, "Ab" Jenkins used Pennzoil motor oil in his Studebaker President eight. On his first dash he climbed the eight miles in 14 minutes and 36 seconds. His second dash was in 14 minutes and 23 seconds.

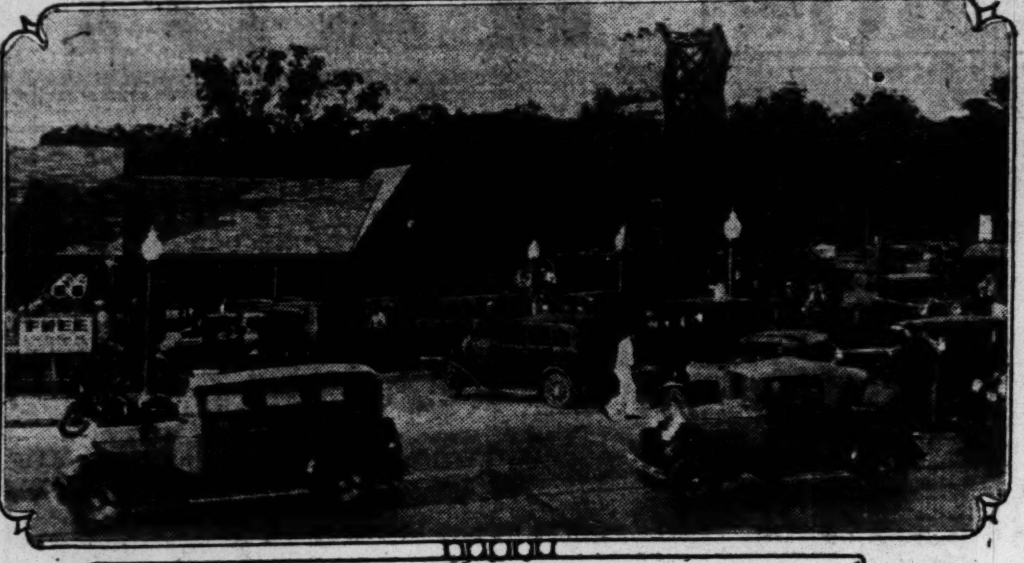
After a lapse of a half minute he wheeled around and dashed down again, making a record for the ronud trip of 29 minutes, 20 1-5 seconds, thus smashing the previous records of Ralph Mulford, who in 1923, made the climb to the clouds in 17 minutes, and Cannonball Baker, who last year raced to the top in 14 minutes and 49 2-5 seconds and completed the round trip in 39 minutes and 30 seconds.

Graham Denies Rumor

Joseph B. Graham, president of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, on his return from a business trip in the South and Southwest, said:

"There is no truth in reports concerning a merger of Graham-Paige Motors Corporation and other automobile companies."

New Station Sells 70,000 Gallons of 'Gas' in a Day



Scene at the formal opening last Saturday of the $85,000 gasoline and service station of the Phillips Petroleum Co. at Clayton and Big Bend roads. More than 10,000 cars were served with gasoline between 6 a. m. and a few minutes past midnight. An attempt was made to close the station at midnight, but cars continued to come. At 12:45 a. m. the station operatives finally had to put tank trucks across the drives into the station. In the one day, 70,000 gallons of gasoline were sold at the station, to set a world's record. All this gasoline was paid for in cash, as the coupons entitling buyers to five gallons free were redeemable after that day at any Phillips Co. station within 30 days. Nine big tank trucks were kept busy all day filling the tanks at the station, according to Fred W. Cordell, St. Louis district manager.

Engineers Point Out Air-Cooling Benefits For Engines in Autos

With two leading technical engineers, one an American authority on automobile engines, the other, a British aviation engineer, recently stating that air-cooling is a force to be reckoned with in future designs, more technical attention than ever before is being devoted to study of this principle, which has been championed and perfected in the automobile field by the Franklin Automobile Co., builder of the Franklin air-cooled car.

The British aviation authority, reviewing the main advantages of air-cooled engines, places them in the following order: (1) simplicity; (2) light weight; (3) absence of water system and risk of damage by freezing; (4) service qualifications, which include quick get-away, maneuverability and less vulnerability.

Nearly three decades have been devoted by Franklin engineers in Franklin laboratories, and the fact that air-cooling is so much in the public eye today is the direct result of scientific discoveries made by these experts.

The 1930 Franklin engine, which has been pointed to as outstanding engineering feat of the current year, in reality is an airplane-type engine, embodying the chief principles of air-cooled airplane engines employed daily in thousands of planes.

Drives in Few Days Trail It Took Parents Six Months to Make

Eighty-three years ago, Nicholas Lee and his wife followed the Oregon Trail from Ohio to the Pacific, a trying and dangerous six months' journey by prairie schooner.

Recently their daughter, Mrs. V. A. Williams, drove from Washington, D. C., to Portland over the same trail that her parents helped blaze back in '47. Mrs. Williams, however, traveled over smooth highways and in a Pontiac coupe that made the entire cross-country journey in eight days. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Henry G. Pratt.

"When my parents struggled West in their covered wagon they regarded 18 miles travel during a 12-hour day as excellent progress," said Mrs. Williams. "Without a trace of fatigue, we frequently drove 500 miles per day.

"The Indians and road agents who infested the Oregon Trail during pioneering days have been succeeded by harmless, thumb-jerking hitch-hikers. Our hardships were limited to one tire change and 60 miles of Kansas mud churned up by a cloudburst."

Sinclair and Pierce Offices Are Moved

The Sinclair Refining Co.'s main offices, which have been at 35 West Ferry street, and the former Pierce Petroleum Co. headquarters in the Pennant Building, Seventeenth and Locust streets, are now located in the Pierce bulk plant, Thirteenth and Gratiot streets.

The company's new plant will have a storage capacity of 4,500,000 gallons of gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil and 978,000 gallons of lubricating oil.

The Ferry avenue plant will be retained and will be used as a bulk plant to supply North St. Louis. The company also operates bulk plants at Ferguson and Carondelet.

New Device Protects Motorist From Glare

"Glaremover," designed to protest motorists from road and headlight glare, was introduced last week by the Glaremover Manufacturing So., 3031 Washington boulevard, of which Louis Goodhart is president.

The Glaremover consists of a large piece of Dupont viscolored Pyrolin, bound at all sides. It is light yellow in color and covers the entire windshield in an automobile when in use. It is fastened permanently on each side of the car near the roof and at the bottom of two flaps, which fit into the hinges of the door. When not in use the Glaremover folds up against the roof of the car, where it is fastened by two hooks.

The Spiess Seat Cover Co., which also occupies the building at 3031 Washington boulevard, is manufacturing the Glaremover for the new company.

Oakland-Pontiac Dealers Report Sales Gain of 51 Per Cent

In the first 10 days of September new car sales by Oakland-Pontiac dealers throughout the United States increased 51 per cent over sales in the corresponding period in August, while used car sales improved 9 per cent.

These figures, given out by W. A. Blees, vice president in charge of sales for the Oakland Motor Car Co., tend to substantiate his recent assertion that the tide of business had seen its lowest ebb and that increased buying is bringing conditions back toward normal.

Blees sounded this optimistic note early in the present month in commenting on the fact that the 7443 new cars sold at retail by his Oakland-Pontiac dealer organization during August represented a 17 per cent increase over July sales.

All of the five major geographical regions of the United States contribute toward the latest improvement in Oakland-Pontiac new car sales for the first 10-day period of September, while three of the five regions report increased used car sales, two showing slight decreases.

Cadillac Retains Campbell-Ewald Co.

Announcement is made by L. P. Fisher, president of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., that, effective Jan. 1, the Campbell-Ewald Co. has been retained as advertising counsel, W. W. Lewis, assistant general sales manager and director of advertising of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., is promoted to the staff of the advertising section of General Motors Corporation.

Trueman F. Campbell, assistant director of advertising of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., becomes advertising manager.

Browne Motor Co. To Be De Soto Dealer

The Herbert J. Browne Motor Co., 5151 Easton avenue, has been signed as an associate De Soto dealer by the Mound City Motors Co., distributer, according to George Weber, president. The Browne Co. also will retail Plymouth cars.

The firm will handle new cars at a new location—3006 North Union boulevard, using the Easton avenue store for a used car department.

Ashley Papin, St. Louis Took Part in Glidden Tour 25 Years Ago

This year marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first of the Glidden tours, famous in the pioneer days of the motor car, and still fondly remembered by those who took part. Many of the drivers, as well as many of the cars have passed on. Among the principal participants in the first of these historic contests are men who, today, are distributers of Pierce-Arrow motor cars, including Ashley Papin of Western Automobile Co., St. Louis.; Thomas Dunn of Painter-Dunn Co., Pittsburg; Arthur Kumpf of Kumpf Motor Car Co., Denver., and Archie E. Hughes of Foss-Hughes Co., Philadelphia.

Pierce-Arrow, winner of the first five contests, is one of the survivors of that entourage that pulled away from the corner of Fifty-eighth street and Fifth avenue, New York City, on the morning of July 11, 1905, on the first leg of the prescribed thousand-mile route through New England. Names of many of the entrants, among them some of the most popular cars of the time are now rarely heard, such as the White steamer, Winton, Pope-Hartford, Rambler and Maxwell.

Even at that early stage of automobile manufacturing the "Great Arrow" cars built by the George N. Pierce Co., had established a reputation for exceptionally high quality coupled with fine workmanship. Consequently, the Great Arrow entrants were rated among the favorites. Advance predictions were borne out at the conclusion of the tour when the mud-bespattered cars rolled back into New York on July 22. Over the thousand miles of treacherous roads the Great Arrow had compiled a total of 996 points out of a possible 1000, making it the winner by a wide margin. The car was driven by Percy P. Pierce, son of George N. Pierce, founder of the Pierce-Arrow institution.

De Luxe Delivery Car on Ford Chassis

Introduction of a new de luxe delivery car has been announced by the Ford Motor Co. This car, designed for small shops, tailors, dry cleaners, and in general for the delivery of small articles, is similar to the tudor passenger car, but is 14½ inches longer. There are panels instead of side windows in the rear compartment.

The de luxe delivery is mounted on the Model A chassis. Standard equipment includes a side wheel carrier and spare wheel, rear-view mirror of the type used on closed cab commercial cars and trucks, rustless steel radiator shell and dome light. The car may be had in any one of several color combinations.

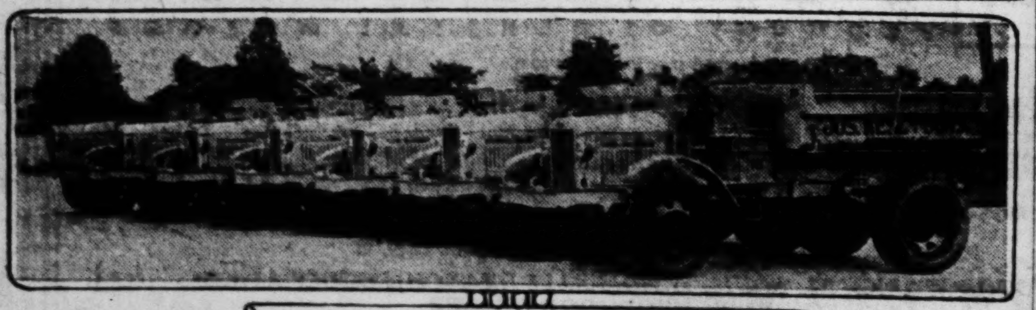
Trucks Have Set Back Front Wheel Design



Seven of a fleet of ten Hug Roadbuilder tricks just delivered to Joseph Kesl & Sons Construction Co., Edwardsville, Ill., by the Hug Co. The trucks have three-yard power hoist bodies, and are designed to haul the equivalent of two six-bag "batches." They have 4-cylinder, heavy-duty Buda engines, five speeds forward and two reverse. A feature is the short wheelbase of 115 inches and the set-back wheel design peculiar to Hug Road builder models. These trucks will be used by the Kesl firm on road work in Missouri and Illinois.

Motors From London to South Africa

Miss Celia de Groot of Johannesburg, the first woman to motor from London to South Africa, and the De Soto roadster in which she made the long trip. Miss de Groot says that the car functioned perfectly the entire distance, requiring only minor adjustments. Her route was via Paris, Monte Carlo Genoa, Port Said, Uganda, Dodoma, the Belgian Congo, Malakai and Jinja. Between the last two places she used river craft.

Frequently the tourist who is going to make a left turn pulls over to the right-hand side of the road for a moment to read the direction signs. His left turn may be sudden and unannounced.

Sportsmen Finding Bantam Austin Ideal For Hunting or Fishing

Reports to the American Austin Car Co. from dealers throughout the country indicate that an unforeseen demand for bantam Austins will have to be met. This little car caught the eyes of duck hunters, bait casters and the whole fraternity of the woods and streams, according to C. A. Best, general sales manager of the American Austin Car Co.

"This unforeseen demand is explained by the fact that a bantam Austin can make its way to the very fringes of the gamey sp where a big car cannot go," B says. "Because it is 16 inches n rower and 28 inches shorter th any other American car now production, it can take roads trails that would block any oth transportation unit. The bant makes its own roads and can anywhere. The fact that the ba tam Austin goes 40 miles on a g lon of gasoline and 20,000 to 4 000 miles on a set of tires is additional attraction to sportsm who are getting ready to cut the selves off from the land of gasol pumps."

That it was to be a 12-cylinder model, with both engine and body constructed of aluminum, had not been counted on. Through use of the lighter metal, it is expected that 1500 pounds of weight will be taken out of the car without affecting its stability.

Addressing the opening session of the annual convention of the National Petroleum Association, Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president of the Fokker Aircraft Corporation, predicted that in 1950 there would be 50,000,000 automobiles in the United States; that passenger trains would pass out of use within 15 years, and that the railroads would use airplanes.

Used for Calling on Prospects

Boeing plane used by the Aviation and Market Divisions of the Cities Service Oil Co. to inspect properties and call on aviation prospects. It has a 525 h. p. Whitney-Pratt Hornet engine, and is of the type used by the U. S. in mail service. Standing in front of the plane are—left to right—W. M. Lund, manager of the Cities Service Oil Co. in St. Louis; F. F. Faltus, mechanic, and Virgil D. Stone, pilot.

Free Wheeling Wins Public Acceptance, Studebaker Declares

"Any doubts which may have been entertained by automotive skeptics with regard to the acceptance of free wheeling by American motorists are set at rest by the announcement of this exclusive Studebaker feature in the new popular-priced Dictator Eight," says a statement by the Studebaker Corporation. This move follows Studebaker's climb from tenth to fifth place in national sales within 30 days of the introduction of free wheeling in the new President and Commander eights, as shown by latest available registration figures. The new series Dictator eight is offered at new low prices ranging from $1095 to $1250."

"Announcement of the new free wheeling Dictator eight has aroused intense interest from coast to coast," says Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., distributer. "In the past week, congratulatory messages have deluged the factory at South Bend, Ind., telling of the public's enthusiastic reaction to the extension of free wheeling to Studebaker's lowest-priced eight.

"Heretofore, in the President and Commander eights, free wheeling has been available only to those able to pay $1600 or more for a car. Now at $1095, the motorist of modest means finds the new free wheeling Dictator Eight well within the scope of his purse."

High School Boys Take 15,000-Mile Trip For Summer Vacation

Recently completing a 15,000-mile trip to Alaska, 10,942 miles of which were made in a Chevrolet touring car on Goodrich Silvertown tires and Goodrich air containers, four 16-year-old students of Pelham Manor School, Pelham, N. Y., were officially welcomed as they emerged from the Holland tunnel in New York City.

The boys, sons of men prominent in American industry, left Pelham June 24. They drove through Chicago and Yellowstone Park to Vancouver, B. C., where they stored their automobile and took a boat to Alaska. They returned to New York through California and Old Mexico.

The party included Lockwood and William Barr, sons of Lockwood Barr, manager of the publicity department of General Motors Corporation; George Storm, son of Raymond Storm, vice president of the George H. Storm Lumber Co., New York; Barton Elliott, son of the late James Elliott, former president of Underwood & Underwood, Chicago, and Albert J. Fregans, head of the music department of Memorial High School, Pelham, N. Y., conductor of the party.

Concrete on U. S. 66 To Be Open by Dec. 1

New concrete slab on U. S. Highway 66 between Rolla and Lebanon, Mo., will probably be opened to traffic by Dec. 1, according to a letter received by the Automobile Club of Missouri from H. P. Mobberly, State Highway Division Engineer at Springfield.

This stretch of 65 miles is the longest single State road project this year. During construction, a detour from Rolla to Springfield has been in effect by way of Cabool over U. S. 63 and 60. Weather conditions will control to a great extent, Mobberly said, but it is the expectation and hope that this will be ready to open to traffic by Dec. 1.

When the long detour is raised, the slab will be complete, for eight to nine miles in the vicinity of Arlington, where a detour will be established.

Lefty Grove Fails To Hurl Ball Through Safety Plate Glass

A demonstration of the security and strength of safety plate glass, which is used throughout all Graham sixes and eights, was given recently when Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove, pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, threw his speed ball from close range at several panes of Libbey-Owens-Ford safety plate glass, in an effort to get the ball through the glass.

Using a league baseball, Grove, who is believed to throw the fastest ball in the major leagues, tried to hurl it through a sheet of standard safety plate glass but without success.

Taking a position only a few yards from his target, Grove hurled the ball three times, hitting each time, but failing to get the ball through the glass. While all three panes of safety plate glass cracked evenly, there was no flying glass or splinters to injure those who witnessed the exhibition.

In a similar test which followed, using ordinary plate glass, Lefty's ball went through, sending a shower of glass in all directions.

Grove's performance was stated to demonstrate conclusively that occupants of an automobile fitted with safety plate glass stand little or no chance of injury from flying glass fragments in an accident.

Big Business Gain And Increased Sales Reported by Marmon

An indication of business revival is reported by the Marmon Motor Car Co. through announcement by George C. Tenney, general sales director, that September shipments of Marmon straight-eights will not only exceed by more than 100 per cent the total for August this year but will be larger than the total in September, 1929.

It is practically assured that the September total of Marmon shipments will give the best month since last April, Tenney said. The Marmon factory is being operated on a full time basis in most departments and at a rate of greatly increased activity in others.

Retail sales totals likewise have taken a decided impetus, acording to Tenney, revealing not only a general improvement in business conditions through the resumption of buying, but also an increased activity on the part of Marmon distributors and dealers. The Marmon sales director has just returned from an eastern trip during which he was supplied with ample evidence of business revival through increased automobile purchases and the optimistic outlook of the Marmon distributive organization.

Surgical Service for Members Offered By Pioneer Organization

A new service has just been announced by the Pioneer Automobile Service Co., 4921 Delmar boulevard. It consists of providing surgical and hospital service in the Missouri Baptist Hospital, 919 North Taylor, or any other hospital desired by a member. This service for members suffering injury provides a surgeon from the Pioneer organization's surgical staff who will give continued treatment for a period not exceeding six weeks. In the event that a member prefers to go to his own hospital the Pioneer will pay $4 a day for each day he is confined, not to exceed six weeks.

Pioneer officials say this is the first time such a service has been offered by any service company or motor club in this region.

Marathon Mileage Car in St. Louis

At St. Louis Airfields

AN AIR show will be held at Parks Airport this afternoon in connection with the East St. Louis Pageant of Progress, which will continue throughout the week.

The program today includes a race for pilots of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service, an exhibition by Jimmy Doolittle in the Shell Oil Co.'s "Mystery Ship," and two jumps by Jack Merrell, parachute expert. The drum and bugle corps and uniformed patrol of Ainad Temple, East St. Louis, will participate in the program. Admission is free.

Planes from Scott Field, Parks Airport, and Curtiss-Steinberg Field will participate in an aerial parade over East St. Louis and downtown St. Louis tomorrow evening to advertise the pageant, which is sponsored by East Side business interests.

Student Air Meet.

Plans for a student air meet are under discussion. Sunday, Oct. 19, has been tentatively set as the date for the meet, which will be held at Curtiss-Steinberg Airport. All flying schools in the vicinity of St. Louis will be invited to send tries for the events, which will include a race for instructors. Similar meets are said to have attracted wide attention in the East.

Weather Broadcast.

A public address system for broadcasting weather reports, field announcements, and entertainment programs is being tested at Lambert-St. Louis Field. Purchase of the equipment will be recommended by Field Manager Parks. Department of Commerce regulations require the broadcasting of weather reports, and the system would be available as a means of information and entertainment of crowds during air meets and other special occasions, Parks points out. The system now being tested costs about $3000.

To New Orleans in 7 Hours.

To meet a demand for through service between St. Louis and New Orleans, Robertson Airlines changed schedules to permit daily departures from Lambert-St. Louis Field at 9:30 a. m., with arrival at New Orleans scheduled for 4:30 p. m. Northbound, planes leave New Orleans at 9 a. m., arriving here at 4 p. m. Passenger traffic over the line has been good, officials report.

45 Air Lines in Operation.

At the present time there are 45 air lines engaged in transportation of mail, passengers and express, flying approximately 120,000 miles a day. About 650 planes are used in the service covering 137 routes.

Universal Graduates.

Three flight students were graduated from the Universal Flying School during the week. The new pilots are: Bernard Spira of Chicago, transport; T. T. Goddard, Mexico City, limited commercial, and Harry Stafford, St. Louis, private. Goddard has obtained a position with an air line in Mexico.

25,213 Passengers Fly.

Planes of T. A. T.-Maddux Airlines during the first eight months of this year carried 25,213 passengers. August, with 5169 passengers, was the peak month so far. Approximately 75 per cent of the passengers made inter-city trips on business. Planes flew 208,254 miles withoutout mechanical interruption to schedules during August.

Movies at Steinberg Airport.

Movies taken of spectators at Curtiss-Steinberg Airport every Sunday afternoon are shown at the field the following Sunday evening.

To Discontinue Service.

Universal Airline's Chicago-Cleveland passenger service will be discontinued next Tuesday due to lack of patronage, and a decision to leave the passenger business to lines which also carry the mail. The Chicago-Kansas City service will be continued by Universal. It was announced.

Mother Learning to Fly.

Mrs. H. G. Salzgeber of 7410 Oxford drive, Clayton, has enrolled for a limited commercial flying course at Parks Air College. She is the mother of a 5-year-old daughter.

Jorge DeValencia, of Cuba, is another new student at Parks, and Carl Eggers, Wittenburg, Germany, signed for the transport course after completing limited commercial training.

Movies of O'Brine in London.

Movies of the recent endurance refueling flight at Lambert-St. Louis Field are proving interesting to Americans abroad, according to friends of Forest O'Brine, who wrote the flyer they saw the pictures in a London theater.

Two Planes Sold.

The Curtiss-Robinson Airplane Co. sold a J-6 Robin to Wadlow Bros., airline operators, of Wichita, Kan., and delivered a Moth bi-plane to Iowa Airways, Iowa City, Ia., last week.

Paving Expert Honored.

Mark Thompson, city paving expert, who supervised the building of runways at Lambert-St. Luis Field, has been appointed to the National Committee on Runways of the Asphalt Institute.

School Class on Flight.

The members of the aeronautical class of Roosevelt High School visited Curtiss-Steinberg Field last Wednesday night and were taken on flights over the city.

The East St. Louis Retail Merchants' Association held a meeting at the airport Thursday, and were entertained with an aerial program.

Parachutes Hard to Handle.

Enlisted members of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service engaged in tackling practice Thursday, when four new parachutes were drop tested from a plane. The parachutes, with 150-pound dummies attached, were carried across the airport by a 20-mile surface wind and required strenuous tackling and holding to bring them to a stop.

Damon in Washington.

Ralph Damon, vice president of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Co., is attending a meeting of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce at Washington. Maj. W. B. Robertson, president of the concern, is also in the East demonstrating the Kingbird transport.

Cent-a-Pound Rides Popular.

Cent-a-pound rides in the tri-motored Ford operating out of Curtiss-Steinberg Airport are proving popular, particularly with lightweights.

Taking Refresher Course.

Rumsey Thompson, Lambert Field pilot, is taking the refresher course at Universal Flying School before applying for a transport license. A. W. Johnson, Cleveland, O., enrolled with Universal for a transport course, and Frank Yampolsky of St. Louis is taking limited commercial training.

Naval Reserve Hangar Site.

A new location, at the northeast corner of Lambert Field, has been provided by the city for the $45,000 Naval Reserve hangar. Plans for the hangar are being prepared by city engineers.

Fisher in New Job.

F. J. Fisher, formerly with Parks Air College, has been appointed ground school instructor at Curtiss-Wright Flying School.

Tuberculosis Talks On WIL Begin Oct. 1

Ten lectures dealing with treatments and prevention of the various phases of tuberculosis will be presented over WIL by the Advisory Medical Staff members of the Tuberculosis and Health Society. Dr. L. C. Boisliniere of the St. Louis University medical staff will give the first lecture Oct. 1 at 1 p. m. on "Climate in Treatment of Tuberculosis."

Dr. Selig Simon will give the second talk on Oct. 15 upon "Home Treatment of Tuberculosis."

Six New 4-Cylinder White Trucks Added

Six new four-cylinder truck chassis, designed and built to meet the most exacting modern traffic conditions and to provide maximum performance with low operating costs are announced by the White Co.

They are Nos. 160, 161 and 162, and 210, 211 and 212. Deliveries will start immediately. They are for the delivery field, florists, laundries, retail stores, fast express, contracting work, coal delivery and light road construction operations.

These models are additions to the already complete White line of four and six cylinder trucks and busses, and give the company complete coverage in the entire range of truck and bus activity.

Special Victor Broadcast.

A dramatic broadcast, entitled "The Romance of Victor," sponsored by the Victor division of the R. C. A.-Victor Co. is scheduled for Thursday night, Oct. 9, on KSD.

Beginning with the early days of Victor at Camden, N. J., and the development of the talking machine, the story will touch on the highlights of the romance of carrying "His Master's Voice" to the four corners of the earth.

Trades Association Meeting Tuesday Evening.

Meetings of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association will be resumed at 6:15 next Tuesday evening at the Hotel Kingsway. Plans for merchandising in connection with the world's series an dthe many notable broadcast programs that will soon be on the air for the fall-winter season are to be discussed. There will also be reports on the St. Louis Radio Show.

Shielding is essential in receivers, as it adds greatly to their selectivity and stability. In unshielded sets, each of the coils acts as a miniature loop antenna and picks up signals. It is best to inclose the entire set in a metal shield, which is grounded. In addition, the R. F. stages, including tubes, coil sand condensers, should be individually shielded, each separate can inclosing one coil and the tube and condenser connected to its secondary. These shields should also be grounded. It will be necessary to punch holes in the shields where the wires go through. These holes should be as small as possible to accommodate the wires. Any unused holes are best soldered shut. The hole for the condenser shaft should be just large enough for the shaft to pass through, without danger of its shorting to the shield. The cans should be large enough so that their walls will be about two inches from the coils they contain.

What's New in Radio Industry

The 3,000,000th Atwater Kent Set Made and Shipped—New Philco Receivers Powerful and Selective — Sparton Adds Improved Battery Set—Broadcast on "The Romance of Victor" Set for Oct. 9—Trade Notes.

"The week of Sept. 29 marks an event unique in the history of radio, if not in American industry," says Norman S. Brown, president of the Brown & Hall Supply Co., distributer of Atwater Kent sets.

"With 82 other distributers we are joining in a 'dealers' national tribute' to A. Atwater Kent in celebration of the completion of his 3,000,000th radio set and the beginning of production of his fourth million."

The tribute has taken the form of congratulatory telegrams to Kent from distributers and dealers all over the country and the presentation to the Philadelphia broadcaster and manufacturer of an elaborate gold watch and chain, appropriately engraved. Each of the 83 distributers sent a gold link for the chain, which was then welded together and presented as a whole by a committee.

The 3,000,000th Atwater Kent receiver was made and shipped from the company's factory in Philadelphia, Pa., the past week. Commenting on this production feat, A. Atwater Kent said:

"The best answer I can give to the question of what I think of the future of the radio industry is that we have started on the production of our fourth million sets with an unshaken confidence in the future of American business prosperity. I have a deep, abiding faith in the future of this big, fast, exciting business which we call 'radio.' My belief in its future, which impelled me to expand my production facilities, is today stronger than ever."

The factory has been taking on new employes. Production is reported as 4000 a day and the daily output will be stepped up considerably until Christmas.

Philco Set Does Well in Test.

An excellent account of itself, in respect to selectivity, distance reach and tone, was given by one of the new Philco receivers in a test in St. Louis the past week. The location of the test was "under the guns" of WIL and a mile and a quarter from KWK and two and a quarter miles from KSD.

The Philco tested was the combination, which has the nine-tube chassis and a phonograph. Tone, both on broadcasting and with records, was full and rich. The set responded particularly well to broadcasts from WENR, the 50,000-watt Chicago station, which probably is received in St. Louis with a bit finer quality than any other station. When WENR is broadcasting from its own studios, and complications due to long network wires are not involved; it taxes a receiver to reproduce its tonal range. But here the Philco was unusually successful.

The tone control, with its graduations of "bright," "brilliant," "mellow" and "deep," was of distinct value in adjusting the reproduction to the room acoustics. Also, it was noticeable that it could be used to mitigate materially the effects of static.

Stations all over the country were picked up during the test, which lasted from 6 p. m. until midnight. Several stations between KMOX and WIL were received and three between WIL and KWK were tuned in.

New Sparton Battery Set.

A new and improved battery receiver has been added by Sparton. It uses six ordinary dry cells for A current, and a panel voltmeter indicates when the necessary voltage is being supplied to the tubes, which are of the new low current consumption type. The set is housed in one of the most popular of the Sparton AC line cabinets.

New Radio-Phonograph Model.

Jules Beneke of the Arcade Building, has been appointed factory agent for the Regent radio-phonograph, which was designed to be the lowest priced combination. The model has a walnut cabinet with quilted maple instrument panel in shaded finish. The screen grid chassis has a 45-type tube in the final audio stage. A tone control device, electric dynamic speaker, 12-inch turntable electric phonograph, and de luxe electric pick-up, are standard features. There is also a large record compartment.

FORMED FIRM TO REPAY THE LOSS ON ANOTHER

Officers Testify as to Bankruptcy of Second Ice Cream Company.

After Henry D. Sexton and his father, Stephen D. Sexton, East St. Louis, and others bought $35,000 worth of stock in a projected ice cream company, the promoter of which disappeared without incorporating it, the Highland Ice Cream & Cold Storage Co., now bankrupt, was formed in an effort to recoup the loss. This was disclosed by the Sextons before Referee in Bankruptcy Grant in East St. Louis Friday.

Henry Sexton, president of the bankrupt company and former member of the East St. Louis Board of Education, said the concern lost money every year since it was incorporated in 1923. For the last five years, he said, he had tried unsuccessfully to sell it. Stephen Sexton, secretary-treasurer of the company, is president of the East St. Louis Park Board.

A voluntary bankruptcy petition was filed Sept. 6, the schedules listing liabilities of $145,638 and assets of $51,262. The plant at 2000 St. Clair avenue is valued at $48,650 among the assets, but is mortgaged for $50,000. Among the unsecured debts of $86,904 are a note for $53,047 held by Mrs. Minnesota Sexton, wife of Stephen Sexton, and two notes totaling $5700 held by Stephen Sexton. The remaining $28,157 is claimed by about 70 creditors.

Henry Sexton, who said he never drew any of his allotted salary of $250 a month, has filed a salary claim for $20,500.

Henry Sexton said a total of $115,000 was invested in the company, including stock issued for the $35,000 of worthless stock in the unincorporated promotion.

Trustee Max Adelman estimated assets of the company would not realize more than $3000.

ADVERTISING OF CITY'S MARKET IN MEXICO BRINGS INQUIRIES

Chamber of Commerce and Industrial Club Plan to Extend Campaign.

The direct by mail advertising campaign inaugurated early this month by the Chamber of Commerce Foreign Trade Bureau and the Industrial Club to put before the business men of Mexico the advantages of buying from St. Louis firms has begun to elicit trade inquiries, it was announced yesterday by officers of the Foreign Trade Bureau.

Letters and pamphlets are being sent to the more important importers of Mexico. Many of the letters received from such importers not only inquire generally about the St. Louis market, but also ask about specific products.

It is the plan of the two agencies to continue this advertising in all Latin-American countries. The campaign is being carried out as a follow-up on the general advertising world-wide campaign last year which resulted in more than 1000 inquiries about St. Louis goods from foreign merchants. Many of these inquiries led to the establishment of valuable contacts with foreign merchants by St. Louis firms and to much new business, according to the Foreign Trade Bureau.

INVESTIGATION INTO SUDDEN DEATH OF 4-YEAR-OLD CHILD

Examination to Be Made of Viscera of Franklin McAllister Jr., Apparently Poison Victim.

An examination of the viscera of Franklin McAllister Jr., 4 years old, will be made to determine the cause of his death at City Hospital yesterday. An autopsy disclosed that death apparently resulted from poison, the nature of which could not be determined.

The boy was taken to the hospital Friday after becoming suddenly ill at his home, 2422 Laflin avenue. The father told police that the child had played in the basement the day before, and may have found some old rat poison, although a police search of the premises failed to disclose anything of a poisonous nature.

SMALL NATIONS SEEK MORE LEAGUE POSTS

Oppose Monopoly by Great Powers of Chief Places in Secretariat.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 27.—Carl J. Hambro, Norwegian delegate, today defended the rights and extolled the superior qualities of citizens of small nations before the League's Assembly Committee, where a brisk fight was waged over proposals for reorganization of the secretariat. In this contest Italy and Germany are arrayed against France, and Great Britain and small nations are challenging of the right of the great powers to monopolize the chief posts in the League headquarters staff.

Hambro, who is president of the Norwegian Chamber of Deputies, today proposed to abolish the offices of under-secretaries-general, now held by German, Italian and Japanese nationals.

"The natives of smaller nations have a much better opportunity for acquiring international-mindedness than those of large states," Hambro asserted.

He added that this was due to the necessity of the smaller peoples to study the languages, laws and customs of their larger neighbors and to become familiar with the history and culture of other parts of the world in order to enhance their own opportunities.

"The citizens of large states usually do not need to do this, and therefore do not develop the international-mindedness that is so desirable for officers of the League secretariat," said Hambro.

Conflicting interests of European agricultural countries as against non-European agricultural producers clashed in the Assembly's Economic Committee.

A division arose during consideration of the resolutions of the Warsaw conference, which wished the League to approve a plan for preferential tariffs in European states for European agricultural products. Poland and the Danube countries were ranged against Canada, India, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, the latter group opposing approval of the Warsaw move.

"We do not challenge the rights of groups of states to negotiate special tariffs," said Walter Riddell, the Canadian delegate, "but we insist that the League itself shall not be used by any group to further its interests at the expense of another country or group."

Riddell had previously stated that if the League undertook to execute the Warsaw proposal for European preferential rates, it would be acting to shut out America, Canada and other overseas countries from free competition in European markets. The issue was referred to a subcommittee for adjustment.

CASHIER OF HURST, ILL., BANK INDICTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

Former Marion City Clerk Also Named in True Bill; Report on Liquor in Jail.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Sept. 27.—The Williamson County September grand jury on recessing until Oct. 10, reported 38 indictments against more than 50 persons.

The report condemned "persons who have been repeatedly convicted of crime for making infamous and misleading statements concerning the officers of our county who have been instrumental in their apprehension and conviction."

The grand jurors said they could find no evidence to substantiate alleged testimony that a convicted bootlegger had obtained liquor from a constable, but said they found "quantities of confiscated liquor stored in the county jail and a large quantity of distilling apparatus" and recommendede that the Circuit Judge order all such liquor and apparatus "destroyed in the presence of witnesses."

The indictments returned include three for embezzling, one against Benjamin Sizemore, cashier of the defunct Hurst State Bank; Harry Adkins, former Marion City Clerk, and James F. Halley Jr. of Herrin. Sizemore is alleged to have taken bank funds, Adkins to have taken city funds, and Halley is charged with embezzling $250 belonging to Constable Forbes of Herrin. Mrs. Mae Sweeney of Hurst was indicted with Sizemore for conspiracy to embezzle. Her account with the bank was alleged to have been overdrawn by $3600 when the bank closed.

PREHISTORIC ENGRAVINGS FOUND

Yale Archeologist Says They Date Back 20,000 Years.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 27.—The discovery of two prehistoric engravings on bone dating from the Magdalenian epoch of at least 20,000 years ago was announced today by Prof. George G. MacCurdy, research associate in prehistoric archeology at Yale University and director of the American School of prehistoric research.

He mentioned the finds while giving an account of a "prehistoric pilgrimage" undertaken with Ambassador Charles G. Dawes last summer. The engravings, however, were found in a cave in Northern Spain before Dawes joined the expedition.

OPENING OF PRIVATELY OWNED BARGE LINE ON OHIO PRAISED

O. F. Barrett, Head of Ohio Valley Association, Hails Event as One of "Biggest."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 27.—Inauguration of barge line operations this week on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers by private capital and as a common carrier was described by Oscar F. Barrett, president of Ohio Valley Improvement Association, as "one of the biggest things that could happen, not only to Cincinnati, but to the entire Mississippi and Ohio Valleys.

"Fifty years ago," said Capt. Barrett, who is outstanding nationally not only as an advocate of river improvement but as a practical river man, "the Southern railroad opened up new American markets for this territory. Now this barge line is opening new world markets.

"Its success will undoubtedly interest private capital in inland waterways throughout the country. River traffic has grown tremendously in the last few years. Extensive operation of private barge lines as common carriers is inevitable."

WORLD BUSINESS SLUMP TO END IN '31, DAWES SAYS

"Fool of 1929 Was He Who Had No Fear," Ambassador Declares in Speech at Belfast.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, Ireland, Sept. 27.—Ambassador Dawes, speaking as guest of honor at an official luncheon at the City Hall today, predicted the end of the current world wide industrial and trade depression by the summer or fall of next year.

"The business fool of 1929 was he who had no fear," he said.

The Ambassador's address was an analysis of "present worldwide industrial and trade depression, its cause, and its probable duration."

Dawes said he would not fall into the common error of travelers of discussing questions of local industry, but that in Belfast, which is a center of world-wide business, he could properly discuss the present world-wide depression, since as nearly everywhere else, it is having its serious local effect.

Text of Address.

The Ambassador said:

"A world depression in business is due always to sudden change in the attitude of the world's people. This changed attitude is often explained in different countries as being the result of diverse causes, including unwise national policies, undue speculation, overproduction, under-consumption, and political or social upheavals.

"These, however, are more the effects of this change of general attitude than the causes of it. It is often easier to conclude that one catastrophe or error in business is the cause of the following one, rather than that both originate from one underlying cause.

"In the United States for instance, as well as elsewhere, a major depression in business has always been preceded a few months before by a stock panic induced by over-speculation. Many have assumed that the collapse of the Stock Market caused the later depression. Many have assumed too that this correct forecasting of business trends by stock speculators is evidence of the composite intelligence of the speculating class.

Loss of Confidence.

"Nothing could be more untrue, for not only is the speculating class as a whole no wiser than those in other businesses but no intellectual judgment of the future can always prove to be right and in this case general unloading of stocks months before general business is materially affected always occurs. The truth is that stock market depression and the following business depression are both caused by the same thing—a fundamental change in the attitude of the average man resulting from a sudden loss of confidence on his part, the first public manifestation of which occurs on the stock exchange.

"The reasons why the stock exchange gives this first evidence of a change in general attitude are simple. Business on the stock exchange is transacted under unique conditions conducive to almost immediate public registration of general lack of confidence in values. On the stock exchange, when confidence in the future is rampant, every facility exists for speculators to get easily into debt, and in proportion to the thinness of their margin and larger amount of stocks they carry upon given capital invested as margin the larger do they compute their respective profits. Contrarywise, when their optimism falters, the quicker will they run from prospective loss necessarily proportionately as large.

As to General Business.

"The man with merchandise to sell, on the other hand, when he commences to lose confidence in values, will dispose of its gradually. He is not generally under the necessity when the market drops of immediately putting up additional margins of security to his creditors if he prefers not to sell just then. When the market slackens he does not have to fear being sold out by somebody else if he prefers to take his own time in selling.

"Moreover, in general business, so much of which is concerned with supplying of human necessities there is a greater continuance in demand and, in consequence, in times of depression, a slower market decline than in stocks the demand for which the lessens more abruptly. Nevertheless, the fundamental cause of the decline in both is the same.

"Let us consider this fundamental cause. Comments of learned economics differ so widely in respect to it and the probable time of continuation of the present world-wide business depression that we laymen may be excused for seeking simpler explanations. The qualities of composite mankind are but qualities of the average individual composing it.

"As the average man in his personal or business activities occasionally departs from the usual, so does mankind. As a man sometimes cuts loose from safe business moorings, so does mankind. As a man sometimes embarks upon unknown and dangerous seas of speculation and unsound enterprise, so does mankind, and what they happens to a man happens to mankind.

"We don't know why a man goes wrong, but we have no difficulty in knowing when it is thus with mankind. After a hectic period induced by regrettable combination of overconfidence and misdirected energy, reaction and a return to a normal view of things causes the first business collapse, then a period of stagnation and then a period of recuperation.

"The business of mankind is now in a stage of recuperation. We know that in a general way under the law of action and reaction periods of under-activity in business are somewhat proportional in length to periods of activity preceding them. That time is considerably over a year behind us when the public suddenly turned over from exhilaration and that confidence in the future which is the basis of prosperity to that lack of confidence which is the basis of business depression.

"I do not think that the business of the world left its normal trend earlier than in 1927, two years before the collapse of prices in 1929 on the leading stock exchanges of most nations. If I am right in this, other things being equal, may we not hope to see the normal trend of world business resumed by summer or fall of next year, which will mark the end of the after two-year period?

"Exceptional local conditions may in this or that country retard or advance the healing effect of returning world business confidence but nothing is more certain than the coming business recovery. The business fool of 1929 was he who had no fear. The fool now is he who has no hope."

Dawes' Spartan Diet.

The American envoy surprised all by his Spartan diet at luncheon. He refused a succulent Irish lamb dish which had been chosen as a special compliment to him and contented himself with potatoes and lettuce.

Champagne and costly wines were dispensed about the table but Dawes refused them. Finally he asked for a bottle of ginger beer. This request created consternation among the waiters. A messenger had to be dispatched poste-haste from the city hall to a hotel, nearly a fifth of a mile away. When the ginger beer arrived, Dawes merely sipped it.

La Grange (Mo.) Bank Closed.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27.—The La Grange Savings Bank of La Grange, Lewis County, with deposits of $142,972, was closed today by the board of directors and taken in charge by the State Finance Department. Finance Commissioner Cantley said the closing was due to overlending and slow loans. The last report of the bank showed loans of $189,364, compared with deposits of $142,972, a capital stock of $20,000 and a surplus of $11,000. The bank had bills payable, largely representing money borrowed, of $50,439.

URGES CITY REMAIN PORT OF ENTRY FOR ANTIQUES

Trade Bureau of St. Louis C. of C. Files Protest Against Treasury Department Ruling.

Declaring that a recent ruling of the Treasury Department, designating only seaport cities as ports of entry for the clearance of antiques, will inconvenience St. Louis importers of such articles, the Chamber of Commerce Foreign Trade Bureau has entered a protest against the ruling with the department.

In addition, the bureau has requested Senators Patterson and Hawes, and Congressmen Dyer, Cochran and Niedringhaus to attempt to have the ruling changed so that St. Louis will continue as a port of entry for antiques as it has been in the past.

Importers here say the new ruling may result in additional brokerage charges and will increase the chance for damage to the goods being shipped to them. They point to the fact that with St. Louis as a port of entry, shipments can be sent to the importers' places of business in bond and examined there by Customs appraisers. Under the new ruling, the shipments must be unpacked in New York, and then repacked. St. Louis importers feel that the repacking will not be done as carefully as necessary at New York, and that their goods will be damaged en route from New York to St. Louis.

In addition, several importers have their shipments come into the United States through Canadian ports. They point to the fact that because of the new ruling they will have to ship through New York. The ocean freight to New York is higher than to Canada, and the railroad freight from New York to St. Louis is higher than from a Canadian port to St. Louis, they say.

The bureau also protested that ruling makes it necessary in differences of opinion that the case be brought before the Customs Court, thereby requiring St. Louis importers to be represented either personally or through an attorney at the outer port, at additional expense to themselves.

Greenland Expedition Returns.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. — The British schooner Effie M. Morrisey in command of Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, and with a party of scientists aboard, returned today from a cruise to Greenland. Sponsored by the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia and the Musieum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation, in New York, the expedition left here June 5 in search of animal groups and Eskimo lore.

Holland Vaporaire uses Autopoint

"Every man that phones me by midnight tonight saying that he closed a heating plant sale today will receive a Mystery Prize from yours truly—a prize that you will long cherish, because you came through at the zero hour." A. B. Racht, Chicago, head of the Vaporaire Division, Holland Furnace Co., stated the terms of a 24-hour sales contest in these words and gave Autopoint Pencils as his prizes. He doubled his day's business!

HERE'S a "testing laboratory" to guide you in buying your personal pencil that you don't always find in making purchases of other articles. Hundreds of firms buy pencils to use as "remembrance" advertising, as prizes, and for other uses.

What pencil is the favorite among these firms? Autopoint, without question. It is famous as the "pencil of big business."

Autopoint wins because of its simple mechanism. It is fool-proof. Simple to refill. Only one moving part.

You'll find Autopoint the best balanced, the lightest, the most attractive pencil made. You can buy cheaper pencils, and you can pay more, but no matter at what price, you won't get more lasting pencil service.

Examine Autopoints at your stationer's. He has a wide range of styles and models in color combinations to suit your fancy. Prices from 50c to $4. If you have any trouble finding Autopoints, write us.

POLICE FIRE ON MOB IN INDIA; ONE PERSON KILLED, 45 SHOT

National Congress Volunteers Try to Stop Moslem Election in United Provinces.

NAINI TAL, United Provinces, India, Sept. 27.—One person was killed and 45 wounded by rifle fire here today when police tried to suppress a demonstration of Nationalists. Several policemen were injured.

An election for a local Moslem Council was being held and the town hall, which was the polling station, was picketed by representatives of All-India National Congress. They tried to prevent the election, destroyed the ballot papers, refused to disperse and stoned the police.

After repeated warnings the police opened fire. Forty-six rioters were taken to the hospital, one dying there. Numerous arrests were made.

ATTACKS JUDGE BUTLER'S HANDLING OF BAIL BONDS

Democratic Opponent Says He Does Not Require Sureties to File Application and Affidavit.

James J. Milligan, Democratic nominee for Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction, attacked the policy of his Republican opponent, Judge Edward E. Butler, the incumbent, in bail bond matters, in an address before Democratic workers at campaign headquarters in the Holland Building Friday.

Milligan asserted that Judge Butler has not been requiring sureties whose bonds he approved to file an application and affidavit, under which they could be prosecuted for perjury if their statements as to their property qualifications were not correct. Records no longer are kept, Milligan charged, to show the relation between a bondsman's property worth and the total of bonds he has signed.

Judge Butler, Milligan asserted, has been allowing bondsmen who have failed to pay forfeited bonds to continue making surety. As long as this is done, Milligan added, the Board of Education, the beneficiary of forfeited bail, will be deprived of a large amount of income.

Commenting on Milligan's charges, Judge Butler said yesterday he required sureties to file new affidavits of qualification every 90 days. As to the relationship of outstanding bonds and a surety's worth, he said, he is acquainted with the qualifications of bondsmen and the large bonds they have furnished and necessarily uses his judgment in determining whether to accept their name on additional bail. There has been not more than $8000 in bonds forfeited during his service of nearly four years on the bench, the Judge said, denying that the Board of Education was suffering any material loss. He expressed pride in his handling of bond matters.

GERMANY ATTACKS STORY OF U. S. MUNITIONS EXPLOSION

By the Associated Press.

THE HAGUE, NETHERLANDS, Sept. 27.—The German Claims representative, Karl von Levinski, today made a further effort to prove the German Government was in no wise connected with the Kingsland (N. J.) munitions explosion, one of the disasters which spurred United States entry into the World War.

Von Levinski presented testimony before the mixed Commission hearing American claims for sabotage damage in an effort to absolve the German workman, Wozniak, in this connection. He testified that the confession of Hermann, another German secret agent, regarding Wozniak was full of contradictions and improbabilities. He declared that the person Hermann described as Wozniak did not resemble the real Wozniak.

SAYS FEAR OF MOB MADE HIM CONFESS KILLING OF GIRL

Beloit, (Wis.) Man Seeks State Compensation for Imprisonment; Served 10 Years.

By the Associated Press.

BELOIT, Wis., Sept. 27.—Fear of a mob, John A. (Dogskin) Johnson says, put him in State prison for life; now he wants "the mob" to sign his petition for State compensation for improper imprisonment.

Johnson was convicted in 1911 for killing 7-year-old Annie Lemberger in Madison. He was pardoned by Gov. E. L. Philip 10 years later, when Annie's father was arrested for killing her. Johnson is penniless.

Mrs. Lemberger put her daughter to bed Sept. 5, 1911 and the girl was missing the next morning. Several days later her body was found in Lake Monona. She had been beaten to death. Johnson was picked up for questioning three days later. He denied any knowledge of the crime.

Once, as a youth at Darlington, he had witnessed a lynching. He said that, when one of the officers told him there was a mob outside the jail demanding his life, he "broke down and confessed."

A chore woman's story of Lemberger's beating his daughter because she had upset a can of beer, brought the father's arrest, and a manslaughter charge against him.

GETS FIVE YEARS FOR ATTEMPT TO MURDER ITALIAN PRINCE

Anti-Fascist de Rosa, Who Fired at Humbert of Piedmont, Convicted in Brussels.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 27.—Fernando de Rosa, 22 years old, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment today for attempting the assassination of Prince Humbert of Piedmont. The court directed also that he pay the costs of the trial.

The public prosecutor charged that De Rosa, whose offense was committed a year ago next Wednesday, had premeditated his act after obtaining a false passport and residing in Belgium under an assumed name.

The defense had held De Rosa's crime a political deed of an emotional and patriotic youth, aimed at Fascism as symbolized by a son of Italy's King. Witnesses charged King Victor Emmanuel with having violated his constitutional oath in adhering to Fascism, contrasting him with "the champion of honor" King Albert. The prosecution countered this by pointing to the intermarriage of the royal families. Prince Humbert was in Brussels wooing Princess Marie Jose of Belgium, whom he later married, when De Rosa shot at him.

U. S. NOT TO INTERFERE WITH HOME BREWERS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Wine and beer making in the home for home consumption was declared immune from Federal interference today by Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock.

The national enforcement agencies, he said, can intervene only when evidence of a sale has been obtained, as without such evidence no search warrant for a private home can be issued. Under the law, he explained, the home brewer is liable to punishment if his product is "intoxicating in fact," a point for settlement by a jury, but in any event, he is beyond the reach of the Federal authorities unless a commercial feature is involved.

Woodcock returned today from an inspection tour of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware and planned to leave tonight for a similar survey in Tennessee. The State and local authorities of Pennsylvania, particularly the State Constabulary and the Philadelphia force, were highly praised by the Director for co-operating freely with the Federal authorities. In Philadelphia, he said, the city police have closed about 2000 open saloons, with only 14 remaining in operation.

IRISH POET ADVISES U. S. TO BUILD UP RURAL LIFE

George Russell Warns Against Concentration of Unemployed in City Slums.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Foreseeing a peril to American life in reduction of the nation's agricultural population, George Russell, known as "A. E." Irish poet-painter and agricultural economist, urged tonight the upbuilding of a rural civilization in which at least 20 per cent of America's population would remain on the farm. He spoke here at a dinner given in his honor, the first of a series of addresses he will make throughout the country.

Taking an economist's figures that 10 per cent of the population can produce sufficient to care for the other 90 per cent, the poet said:

"I see in your country and in Europe gathering multitudes of workers for whom there is no employment. Will not your unemployed gather in dark slums and in one room as they do in Europe, so that life will fester into rottenness?

The poet urged a rural society, with agriculture interspersed with rural industries, and with emphasis on teaching each man to be self-reliant.

Youth Killed in 100-Foot Fall.

PERRYVILLE, Mo., Sept. 27.—Roy Irwin, 18-year-old shoeworker, was killed today when he fell 100 feet from a water tower at St. Mary's Seminary. Companions, who were climbing the tower with him, think a rung of the ladder gave way.

SIR JOHN GRIFFITHS, ENGINEER, FOUND SLAIN

Body of Noted War Builder Discovered on Boat Near Beach at Cairo.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 27.—Sir John Griffiths, engineer and governing director of the Norton Griffiths Co., public works contractors, was found dead today under mysterious circumstances.

It was said in reliable quarters that Sir John paddled out in a surf boat from the beach at the San Stafano Casino early this morning. Later it was noticed that the boat, far from shore, appeared to be unoccupied. Investigators found Sir John lying dead with a bullet in his temple. The tragedy followed the suspension of work on the heightening of Assuan Dam, which was being carried out by the Norton Griffiths Co. under a contract with the Egyptian Government.

It was stated that the Egyptian Ministry of Public Works was notified Sunday that work on the dam was being stopped because of the conditions imposed by the Egyptian resident engineering staff.

A Government communique on the same day said the contractor had written a letter three days earlier to the Egyptian Premier pointing out the difficulty of the financial situation and asking the Government for financial help..

Griffiths was subsequently reported as explaining that payment from the Government for the work already executed had fallen far below anticipations owing to the slowing up of the estimated rate of work by circumstances over which the contractor had no control. He declared it was unfair to connect the suspension of work with the financial question as this would have been inevitable on technical grounds.

Interrupted Career Several Times to Serve in British Army.

Lieutenant-Colonel Sir John Norton Griffiths had a distinguished career both as an engineer and as a soldier. Born in 1871, he became an engineer, but interrupted his career several times to serve in the British Army. He was in command of scouts in the Matabele War in 1896 and then was in the South African field force later serving in Lord Roberts' bodyguard.

During the World War he was attached to the staff of Engineer-in-Chief to organize and initiate tunneling companies. He was mentioned in dispatches three times and received the Distinguished Service Order.

Retired Grocer, 73, Killed Self.

Now for Musical Comedy

"Sons O' Guns," With Gina Malo and Jack Haley in Jack Donahue's Place, Comes to Shubert Tomorrow Night—Mary Hart Displays Her New Casey Players at the Orpheum—American Announces Fine List of Plays for the Season.

T IS unfortunate that "Sons O' Guns," the first musical play of the season, will arrive at the Shubert tomorrow night for a stay of 11 days without the star who made it famous, but Jack Dona- e was taken ill in Cincinnati last week and forced out of the cast. ck Haley, a singing and dancing comedian of considerable repute as rushed out from New York for the part and he, with Gina Malo, d a long list of well known lesser lights, will provide the entertainment.

Haley, who takes the place of Jack Donahue, is well known to otion picture fans and was the principal comedian of such Broady musical successes as "Good News" and "Follow Thru." In Sons O' Guns" Haley plays the role of a young millionaire who akes up one fine morning only to find that he had been relegated the status of a buck private and destined to go over seas to do his it for his country. The balance of the cast will be the same as ppeared during the all-season run last year at the Imperial Theater New York.

Donahue had been ill before the show opened for the season ast Sunday night but it was thought that he would be able to go n with the road tour of the play. He collapsed last Wednesday owever, and was sent back home.

Gina Malo, billed rather extensively as a Parisian star, and who s a very clever young woman, didn't know very much about Paris, r any point east of New York until three or four years ago. Back her home town, which also happened to be Cincinnati, she was ain Janet Flynn and as Janet Flynn she landed on Broadway and ecame one of the leading chorines of the Metropolis. Then she went o Paris with a division of the Albertina Rasch girls, fell into the eading part in the American musical show, "The New Moon," being resented there, made an instantaneous hit of it and came back to merica with a French air and a new French name and continued er success in New York.

The book of "Sons O' Guns" was written by Fred Thompson and ack Donahue while the songs and lyrics were composed and written by Arthur Swanstrom, J. Fred Coots and Benny Davis. The scenery was designed by Joseph Urban. The production was staged by Bobby Connolly, who in the past staged such successes as "Good News," "The Desert Song," "Follow Thru," "New Moon," many Ziegfeld pieces and more recently, "Flying High."

THE Arthur Casey Players opened their second season at the Orpheum Theater last night with the pre-release showing of "Apron Strings." This play has not been outside of New York and Boston where it opened several weeks ago.

Mary Hart, the Orpheum's new impresario, feels highly elated n obtaining "Apron Strings" for the first play. At the present time he is trying to obtain the release of several other current plays to be seen in the near future.

"Apron Strings" is a comedy written by Dorrance Davis. The plot concerns the love affairs of Daniel Curtis, a likable young man, who has depended on his mother so much during her life that she has left a series of letters to guide him when he must face the world alone. These letters work very nicely until Daniel falls in love. The ung lady, however, objects to the technique of courtship that was n vogue twenty years before and when the letters threaten to break up their romance a friendly old attorney steps in and straightens things out to the delight of all.

The play was written for laughs and there is said to be one in every line—well at least in every other line.

Returning to the Casey Company this year are Pierre Watkin, Arthur Pierson and May B. Hurst. The newcomers are Philip Lord, Marion Sterly and Yvonne Stebbins. Cyril Raymond is back as director and the entire company is under the direction of Miss Hart.

THE Erlanger offices have completed booking arrangements for the American Theater here and announcement is made by Manager Paul Beisman that the Market street playhouse will open the 1930-31 season on Sunday night, Oct. 19, with Brock Pemberton's comedy, "Strictly Dishonorable," now in its second year at the Avon Theater, New York.

The American's second attraction will be the New York Theater Guild's production of Bernard Shaw's play, "The Apple Cart," which inaugurates the Guild's local subscription season. Four other plays will be included in the Guild series.

The American's list of plays for the season is an interesting one and includes many stage stars and dramatic and musical attractions. Contracts already signed insure a season of at least 25 weeks.

For the month of November the American announces Coleen Moore, famous movie star, in person in "On the Loose," a comedy drama written especially for her by Benjamin Glazer; Vilma Banky and Rod LaRocque, also movie stars, in person in "Cherries are Ripe," a play by John Emerson and Anita Loos, and the second of the The-

MAKING A MOVIE

By Rube Goldberg

Rube Goldberg, the cartoonist whose funny drawings appear in the Post-Dispatch, has just completed his first feature motion picture out in Hollywood. What he found out there and what he thinks of the films he tells in this article.

I HAVE just passed through my first experience in the motion picture game and I am none the worse off for cuts and bruises. I can frankly say that it has all been surprisingly pleasant.

My full-length picture, "Soup to Nuts," is finished and at this particular moment I do not know how it will be received by the public. Of course, I think it will be all right and my father thinks it will be all right. The Fox Film Co. hopes it will be all right.

My story and ideas have not been mutilated, my presence in Hollywood was not resented by the ever-watchful veterans, nor did I discover the depressing ignorance that has been so widely advertised by the disgruntled intelligensia.

No one man can make a moving picture no matter how comprehensive his talents may be. I would like to believe that my original story and dialogue and ideas have contributed all the entertainment value to my first seven-reel picture. But I am not one who specializes in self-kidding. Without a fine director, an experienced continuity writer or the technical assistance the motion picture game can render I am afraid that by dream of doing something for the screen would be a nightmare.

THE apparent ease with which they do things is fabulous. No sooner do I say, "Let's start the picture with an old German running a picturesque costume shop," then a three-story building rises before my eyes and is miraculously filled with an assortment of costumes, suits of armor, military regalia, whiskers and false faces that would shame the most completely-equipped place of its kind in New York. I timidly suggest certain fire-house episodes and suddenly I am inside a perfect reproduction of a fire-house. A huge street full of shops and bustling activity looms ahead of me and when I find it is only plaster and beaverboard, I think the whole world is a fake. The perfect reproductions on the studio lot have a peculiar psychological effect upon you. You find yourself going around downtown poking your finger into the city hall and large bank buildings and department stores to see if they are real.

For the time being your faith in human nature is shattered. It is so easy to reproduce all the institutions that have taken hundreds of years to build up. Until you pull yourself together and realize there is an income tax to pay and shoes to buy for the children you begin to think that everything is just a piece of scenery.

I had a bungalow on the Fox lot. When I say bungalow I mean bungalow—two rooms, two showers, fine furniture beautiful fixtures and everything. My name was printed on the outside for some reason or other. Perhaps they labeled the building so I could find it. The lot was so large I twice went without food and water trying to reach the office of Mr. Sheehan, vice president and general manager.

THE publicity department took my picture, wrote down the history of my life and had me pose for the news reel as soon as I went to work. No trans-Atlantic flyer ever got more attention. The first day I was in my bungalow a man came in and apologized because my fountain pen set was a day late in arriving. I told him that when I entered the newspaper game their attitude concerning fountain pens was different. They took mine away from me. Another man came in and asked if I was satisfied with the interior decorations. Just to hide my astonishment at being treated so royally I told him I like butterflies on the curtains instead of pink rosettes. The next day I found the windows draped in blue butterflies rampant on a background of cerise doodabs.

Strangely enough there is no excitement around the studio. A director is on his way to have his new teeth fitted. A female star is just getting in her car preparatory to meeting a man who wants to rent her lot on Wilshire boulevard for a miniature golf course. An author is showing a cameraman a patent collar button he got from a friend in the East.

And yet they turn out 52 big pictures a year and dozens of other features and lots of newsreels and plenty of other things. It is all very informal but they seem to know what they are doing. The pictures are in the theaters every day and every night.

There are people under contract for two and three thousand dollars a week who seem to be doing nothing. There are others getting fifty and seventy-five dollars a week who seem to be carrying the whole weight of the studio on their shoulders. You can't figure it out. No one tries to figure it out. Everything is o k. Moving picture money is goofy money. After I had finished my script, Al Rockett, the supervisor; Ben Stoloff, the director, and Howard Green, the continuity writer, went over it with a magnifying glass and took out every superfluous word like "and," "the," "but" and certain surnames that were unnecessary. They wanted to save footage and money. Raw film did not grow on trees.

YET in a short soda fountain sequence during the shooting of the picture the property man stocked the shelves and counters with real food and drink. There was every practical feature that you can find at a real soda fountain. The sandwiches and cake alone cost $75. You could not see them in the picture. Everybody, including myself, got sick from eating nut sundaes and chocolate cake. There was nothing else to do with the stuff but eat it. Maybe it was there to make the actors feel their parts. They did—stomach aches and all.

The executives with whom I am associated have a sense of humor. Right in the middle of a conference which was called because the director and myself had a disagreement over the way a certain character should be played, I busted right out laughing. It struck me as funny because I felt we were just going through the motions of a conference and nothing would be done about it. Everybody at the meeting laughed with me. They all knew what I knew. They were just holding the conference as a matter of habit. I am strongly in favor of people who can laugh at themselves.

There are worries and heartaches in making a picture. Nothing worth while is easy. All in all, I have had a grand time. The principal reason I want "Soup to Nuts" to be a success is that they will want me to go back some time and do another picture.

Arbos to Have Novelties for The Symphony

"Pictures for an Exhibition" to Be One of the New Works to Be Presented at the Odeon.

WHILE the Arbos programs for the first half of the Symphony Orchestra season, which opens Oct. 31, have not been definitely settled upon, certain novelties have been indicated in his letters to the management. The first novelty of the season will be Ravel's arrangement of Moussorgsky's "Pictures for an Exhibition."

Other works new to St. Louis that Arbos plans include Respighi's "The Bird;" Rimsky-Korsakoff's Antar Symphony; Pizzetti's "Concerto dell 'Estate" and Miaskovsky's Fifth Symphony in D Major.

The various soloists through the season are fairly well settled. Ildebrando Pizzetti, the Italian composer-pianist, who comes in December, is bringing with him a new piano concerto which he has been writing during the past season. It is in three movements and runs about 25 minutes.

Efrem Zimbalist will play the Beethoven violin concerto; Heinrich Schlusnus will sing "Eri tu" from the "Masked Ball" and a group of songs with orchestral accompaniment; Walter Gieseking will play the Beethoven "Emperor" piano concerto; Gottfried Galston will play the Brahms D Minor concerto and Claire Dux will sing a Mozart aria and a group of Strauss songs with orchestra.

Nathan Milstein is to play the Brahms violin concerto; Gregor Piatigorsky will play Boccherini's concerto for cello and Bloch's "Schelomo" and Jose Iturbi will play Mozart's D Minor piano concerto and Liszt's Hungarian Fantasie.

Facing the Music

FRITZ KREISLER, the violinist will be the artist to open the music season of 1930-31 at the Odeon on Friday evening, Oct. 10. For the first time in several seasons Mr. Kreisler's tour this year will extend to the Pacific Coast.

THE Civic Music League will open at the Odeon, Oct. 28 with the Paveley-Oukrainsky Ballet, to be followed by Clare Clairbert, the latest soprano to win acclaim in America after a most successful season at La Monnaie, Brussels. Next in order comes the Mexican Tipica Orchestra with their unusual instruments. The orchestra carries a tenor and a dancer and promises a rich and colorful program. John Charles Thomas, one of the leading baritones of the country and a favorite in St. Louis, gives his recital under League auspices on Jan. 13. Josef and Rosa Lhevinne, duo pianists, close the series. Enrollment in the League closes Oct. 18.

THREE of the leading St. Louis musicians will give independent recitals here in the early season. The first of these is by Charles Anthony, pianist, a newcomer to the city. Mr. Anthony was formerly connected with the New England Conservatory and with the Minneapolis School of Music and has had a wide experience as concert pianist and teacher. He will give his recital in the Wednesday Club auditorium on Nov. 6. Second in the list is Bernard Ferguson, baritone, who will give his first public recital at the Woman's Club, 4600 Lindell boulevard, on Nov. 18 with Leo C. Miller at the piano. Third comes John Haik, violinist, to the Sheldon Auditorium, Dec. 2, with Mrs. David Kriegshaber at the piano.

Stage Show Stars Scatter

Musicians Go Out in Philadelphia Just as Ed Lowry Prepares to Do His Stuff There, and Ambassador's Ace Is Switched to Pittsburg—Barbara Stanwyck and Frank Fay Go in and Out of Hospital—Cecil B. De Mille Takes a Shot at Drama With Music.

THE failure of the musicians and managers to get together in other cities where, as here, the cinema palaces are getting along with the music supplied from Hollywood along with the films, has caused several of the St. Louis entertainers to jump around the country. Ed Lowry settled down in Philadelphia to spend the winter. The next day the musicians walked out and Ed was left high and dry. After a short delay the Warner-Skouras outfit moved Eddie over to Pittsburg and he is now doing his stuff at the Stanley Theater there and, according to all reports, knocking 'em cold.

Wallie Vernon is also in Pittsburg working in two night clubs and waiting for the resumption of stage shows elsewhere and Milton Slosser, the Missouri's organist opened at another theater in that town this week. Stewart Barrie is looking around for the right spot in which to light.

The decision of many of the movie producers out on the coast to take a rest from the musical comedy type of pictures has caused an exodus of the conductors who were sent out there a year or so ago. Dave Silverman, long with the Missouri and the Ambassador here, is back in town and if the local show houses ever go back to orchestras he will probably be at one or the other of his old posts.

Leonardi, who also left the Missouri's pit to take a post out in Hollywood with Warner Brothers' music department, has left that organization but is remaining in the West.

FRANK FAY and his wife, Barbara Stanwyck, St. Louis favorites, who were taken to a Los Angeles hospital during the past week, are both back at work in the picture studios. Frank's threatened attack of appendicitis was a flop, fortunately, Barbara was not quite so lucky but, after a day or two was able to be on her feet again.

Barbara was rushed to the Osteopathic Hospital in Los Angeles, as a result of a severe fall late last Monday afternoon at the Columbia studios where she was making a picture. The fall resulted in partial paralysis which gripped her for several hours from her waist down. For a time it was feared her pelvis had been fractured.

At the time of the fall Miss Stanwyck was working in a picture directed by Lionel Barrymore and detailed accounts of the unfortunate occurrence vary somewhat. According to Samuel Briskin, production manager for Columbia, Miss Stanwyck tripped on a stairway and fell. While carrying her off the set to place her on a nearby cot one of the men who was assisting slipped and fell with her. Miss Stanwyck's head struck a stone and it was said that this second blow resulted in the partial paralysis.

AS THE production of operettas was Cecil B. De Mille's last stage activity before he entered pictures in 1913, it was quite "in the cards" that he should make a musical play under the new talkie set-up.

"Madam Satan" is the title selected for a comedy with music which the producer-director made and which is at the Fox theater this week. Sprinkled with songs, and with banquet scenes laid in homes of wealth, and aboard a giant Zeppelin—later destroyed in a thrilling air crash—"Madam Satan" has everything De Mille needs to make a lavish spectacle.

De Mille, while a stage producer, was one of the first to recognize the value of light opera. He pioneered with the Standard Opera Company, and achieved great success with nation-wide tours of such old favorites as "The Chimes of Normandy," "Bohemian Girl" and "Martha," in all of which he personally appeared as an actor and singer.

For seventeen years his absorption with the silent picture kept him apart from musical entertainment, but the talkies have returned him to his old love.

AL JOLSON, who revolutionized the motion picture business and made a fortune for himself and the Warner Brothers with the first successful talkie, is on view this week at the Missouri in "Big Boy," the last, incidentally of his films under the direction of the Warners. Jolson, whose fame put him in a position to demand —and get—$10,000 a week from picture houses for stage appearances, rose to affluence by singing Mammy songs about his dear old Southern Home. As a matter of fact Jolson has no very early recollection of the Sunny South. He was born in Russia—and not even in the southern part of that country—but came to America at an early age. The family name was Yoelson, and Al was known as Asa.

The father, who was of a long line of Jewish cantors, thought that when his son grew up, he would naturally follow the career that his ancestors had chosen. The younger Yoelson, however, wanted to sing—but not in the synagogue.

When he was very young, he managed to get a part in a play, "Children of the Ghetto," by Israel Zangwill. Later he became a ballyhoo man for a traveling circus. Always watching for something

Behind The Screens OUT In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 27.

TO realize how thoroughly self-deluded are the majority of movie-struck boys and girls, the studio prowler has only to glance over the shoulder of any casting director as he opens his daily mail.

LILY DAMITA

Letters pleading for a job, any sort of job, come from all over the globe, together with epistles informing the studio what a great opportunity it is overlooking in not contracting immediately for the writer's services and, incidentally, sending train fare.

Strangely enough, to the Hollywood-experienced, some of the gullibles offer as their strongest argument the statements of friends that they closely resemble some recognized star—the one sure way to kill the one-in-a-million chance they have.

A buxom German lass encloses photographs of herself with a half dozen of Lily Damita, whose image (her friends say) she is. The closest examination fails to disclose any similarity.

And a middle-western girl, whose bad spelling matches her painfully penciled script, terminates her appeal with: "I look a great deal like some of your girls and too of them I'm sure of."

And the really modest lads! For instance:

"I'd of been better off born in the jungles, have the most wonderful body you ever saw. Will send photos if wished."

And this one: "You oughta hear this kid sing. I'd make a microphone turn a flip. And act? Besides being a comedian I can play crook parts to perfection, no fooling!"

Decidedly in contrast are the terse, business-like notes occasionally received from professional screen actors, who know the ropes.

But the movie-struck use pages to say that "all I want is a chance." Hundreds of experienced actors—right here in Hollywood—want the same.

THE lucky star that has guided the film fortunes of heroines selected by the blond-preferring Samuel Goldwyn seems to be playing truant.

KAY FRANCIS

The producer nurtured the screen fame of Vilma Banky; he gave Joan Bennett her first picture role, and she has been increasing steadily in talkie brilliance since.

Lily Damita he launched, and she too has done well, on Broadway as in Hollywood.

Ann Harding's film future, already assured, was immeasurably furthered after she appeared with the dashing Ronald Colman, as had others, and she now is one of the brightest stars in the local firmament.

BUT there, apparently, the lucky star retreated behind a cloud. Goldwyn has made two pictures since "Condemned," and now is making a third. And the three make a different story.

Frances Dade was brought west for the heroine's role in "Raffles," but before long she was replaced by Kay Francis because she was not the type, and she took a lesser part in the film.

Then Goldwyn selected Eleanor Hunt, an unknown from the chorus for the lead opposite Eddie Cantor in "Whoopee." She played the part, but is no longer under contract.

Now Constance Cummings, beautiful and charming, has met with similar disappointment.

Imported from Broadway to support Colman in "The Prodigal," she has been found to be not quite the type, and when production is resumed a new leading lady will supplant her.

STILL, there's a brighter side to this dark picture.

Miss Dade, while she hasn't attained stardom yet, remained in Hollywood and has had good parts, including several leads.

Miss Hunt still has to look forward to the opening of "Whoopee," which may bring her other offers.

And Miss Cummings, undeniably talented, may be consoled by the knowledge that Goldwyn will have difficulty in finding any actress, however movie-experienced, to meet the qualifications of the ultra-sophisticated heroine.

Besides, she can consider Jean Hersholt, outstanding character actor, recently replaced by Edward G. Robinson as the Oriental in "East Is West," because of miscasting.

A FAMILIAR figure watching and listening to Olsen and Johnson cutting up during the filming of the movie "Fifty Million Frenchmen" is a Milwaukee priest, Father Edward Wagner.

He is a close friend of the comedy team, and every summer he is their guest, no matter where they happen to be.

Dolores Del Rio has the choice of any one of four homes since her marriage to Cedric Gibbons.

She has one in Hollywood and another at the beach in Santa Monica. And Gibbons has a home in Beverly Hills and is building another, also near the beach at Santa Monica, as a wedding present for Dolores. She probably will choose the new one.

MUSICIANS playing on a set to arouse the emotions of a star are among the relics of silent picture days seldom seen in Hollywood now.

ANITA PAGE

The talkie demand for silence while shooting has practically eliminated set-music, except that which is to be recorded, and the poor stars and starlets have to do their weeping unassisted.

But Herbert Brenon still has three musicians constantly on hand while he is rehearsing and directing. One of them was in the quartet that served similarly for "Beau Geste" five years ago, and the others have been in his employ about three years. Brenon believes that sideline music, even though it must be stilled for a take, enlivens the actors, cameramen, and all other set-workers, breaking the monotony and strain of long hours.

LON CHANEY, before he died, kept with him the two brothers who had played for him for years, even during the making of his first and only talkie. It was they who played at the star's funeral.

Charlie Chaplin is one of the few actors remaining who emote to music, his picture being without dialog, and I have seen Norma Talmadge work herself to a high emotional pitch by music before the microphones were registering. But for the most part the set-musician has followed the unpretentious open stage, the klieg light, and the beautiful-but-dumb ingenue into the oblivion of silent pictures.

Incidentally, and irrelevantly, another sight worthy of small headlines is that of a star actually autographing a portrait for a fan. I've caught Gary Cooper, Anita Page, Ivan Lebedeff and a few others doing that occasionally, but the majority of fan portraits are "autographed" by studio attaches of the "fan mail department."

WE were speaking—or were we—a while ago of the banquet scene in the De Mille picture, which brings to mind the story from Hollywood that Adolph Faylauer is the most famous dress suit extra in the world. He has eaten more movie banquets, drunk more colored water from champagne glasses and worn out more dress suits than any other man in pictures.

When casting directors start filling the chairs in a big banquet scene, a wedding or a fashionable foreign scene, they put in a call for Faylauer. Sometimes they speak in advance for his services. He is that busy and has little time off between pictures.

In his 10 years in Hollywood Faylauer has appeared in more than 700 films, and he has a complete record of the cast and director, and what he did in each one.

Faylauer estimates he has eaten 400 movie banquets. Now a movie banquet, be it known, is not one of those affairs that can be attended in one evening—not at all.

They usually last three or four days. Scenes have to be taken a number of times and from different angles. In each scene, and from each angle, the banqueters must eat.

"One eats something on the average of eve., half hour," he says. "It is rather strenuous on the digestion, especially as the food, originally hot, soon gets cold.

"I don't think I have ever enjoyed 'prop' food. I have to eat it but I don't like it and then my appetite is spoiled."

FAYLAUER wears out four suits of evening clothes a year—all before the cameras. He wears them so much for screen purposes that he doesn't want to see one otherwise, and never goes out in real life in evening dress.

He estimates that he has discarded 50 top hats in the last 10 years—where the average man rarely owns one, and never wears one out.

He always is in demand for weddings and has witnessed the screen marriage of nearly every movie hero and heroine.

Faylauer's selection is no mere accident. He is German by birth, and university educated. He speaks four languages perfectly and has traveled extensively. Because of this, combined with his—"foreign appearance," he fits perfectly into any fashionable scene.

He is the author of a number of short stories which he writes under a pen name that he refuses to divulge. He likes picture work, he says, because it gives him time to write. But he doesn't write about Hollywood.

STAGE SHOW STARS SCATTERED BY THE MUSICIANS' STRIKE

new to interest him, Jolson secured a position singing in a Washington cafe—and later in a burlesque show.

With each succeeding job the father grew more discouraged. It was evident that his boy would never be a cantor. When Asa organized a vaudeville sketch with his brother and a mutual friend under the name of Jolson, Palmer & Jolson, Yoelson saw that his son had made a definite choice. During his vaudeville career a Negro dresser suggested to Jolson—for that was now his name—that he use burnt cork and appear as a Negro. Jolson, willing to follow any good suggestion, took his advice and his act was such a riot that he continued to appear as a black face comedian.

FOR two years he played with Dockstadter's Minstrels until Shubert saw him and engaged him to play in the Winter Garden. Some of his productions were "Bow Sing," "La Belle Paree," "The Whirl of Society," "Vera Violetta," "The Honeymoon Express," and "Robinson Crusoe Jr."

By this time Jolson, the black face comedian, with his stories and jokes, Jolson with his crooning voice, Jolson, the mammy singer, became the talk of the country. With his next plays, "Big Boy" and "Bombo" he became more in demand than ever.

It was the Warner Brothers who first persuaded Al Jolson to enter pictures. He accepted their offer, and it appeared in the first picture with talking sequences—"The Jazz Singer." The picture broke all records and Jolson became one of the biggest drawing cards on the screen. Then came "The Singing Fool," and later "Say It With Songs" and "Mammy."

"Big Boy," his latest production, is an adaptation from the successful play of the same name in which Jolson starred for three years.

New York Day by Day

A TOUR of European cities intensifies the throttling Tammany has given New York. The city has grown and built up despite terrific graft, but its vision has dimmed. There is no city planning—parks are scrubby and statuary runty. Thieves rarely have an eye for beauty.

Landscape Artist Dies.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Lucien Whiting Powell, landscape artist, died today of pneumonia. Powell, 83 years old, had been ill since Sept. 1. Yesterday, Mrs. John B. Henderson, 87, a social leader and patron of the artist, who also was a patient in the same sanitarium, visited him and said good-by. Powell's widow, son, and two daughters were with him when he died.

ater Guild offerings, Mme. Alla Nazimova in "A Month in the Country," by Ivan Turgenev.

The December attractions include last season's New York thriller, "Subway Express"; Arthur Hammerstein's musical comedy, "Sweet Adeline," with Helen Morgan heading the cast; Fred Stone and his family in "Ripples," and the Theater Guild's satirical revue, "Garrick Gaieties."

Later on the American will present David Belasco's success of last season, "It's a Wise Child;" George M. Cohan himself in "The Tavern;" Mrs. Fiske in repertory; Maude Adams in the new play with which she will return to the stage this autumn; "The Green Pastures," one of the biggest dramatic sensations of the last decade; Earl Carroll's "Vanities," now at the New Amsterdam Theater, New York; George C. Tyler's production of "The Merchant of Paris," with E. C. Robinson; "Elizabeth the Queen," a Theater Guild production with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in the leading roles; Leonore Ulric in "Pagan Lady;" Otis Skinner in a new play; Arch Selwyn's new attraction, "Paris Divorce," with Basil Rathbone and a woman picture star to be announced; and Thurston, the magician. The title of the fifth of the Theater Guild offerings will be announced at a later date.

Under the new booking plan of the Erlanger interests, many attractions will be seen in St. Louis before New York and Chicago. This plan is being adopted to insure this city and other week stands a full schedule of plays and is the first step in an organized effort to restore the legitimate theater in the so-called "provinces."

"Misleading Lady" For Catholic Guild

THE St. Louis Catholic Theater Guild's first production is to be presented for five nights, Oct. 13 to 17, at the St. Louis University Auditorium. The Play Committee has selected "The Misleading Lady," a comedy by Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey, which enjoyed a long run in New York.

The play is filled with smart lines, wholesome comedy, suspense and good drama. At the tryouts held on Sept. 18 Director Butler announced that excellent talent was found.

The cast for the first play includes J. William Murray, Cornelius Venerioh, Duncan Tully, John Biehler, Jack Landolt, Theodore E. Doll, Warren Carroll, Daniel Enright, Harold Mooney, Joseph McKenna, Eugene Smith, Lucienne Deschodt, Charity Grace, Leianna Devlin, Florence Mallon and Lillian Case.

SCOUT MERIT BADGE SHOW NOV. 13-14-15

Event to Be on Larger Scale Than Before; Part of Arena to Be Used

The annual boy scout merit badge show, the most important fall activity of the St. Louis Council, will be held this year in the East Exhibition building (Hall A) of The Arena, Nov. 13, 14 and 15. Col Harry Scullin, chairman of the Council Committee in charge of the exhibition, has announced.

The merit badge show is a demonstration of the requirements and purposes of the merit badges, awarded for proficiency in various subjects. There are 91 badges in all, covering first aid, reptile study, aviation, pioneering, camping, blacksmithing and scholarship. Constantly added to each year, the subjects include many phases of civics, industry, art and science.

Because of the additional space at the disposal of the show, it will be possible to demonstrate every one of the badges, each in a separate booth, and each in charge of one troop. A number of special exhibits, such as Gypsy camping, a museum, and Indiancraft, will bring the total booths to 100 in contrast to 70 at previous shows.

Although final arrangements for the show were made only Tuesday, at a committee meeting, 55 of the subjects were already assigned by Friday noon, while 26 other applications were pending approval. Only 24, therefore, remained open.

The subjects assigned, with the troops, were: Agriculture, Troop 98; Angling, Troop 60; Animal Industry, Webster Groves, 14; Art, 189; Astronomy, 97; Athletics, 194; Automobiling, 78; Aviation, 166; Bee Keeping, 54; Beef Production, 244; Blacksmithing, 39; Botany, 5; Camping, 30; Canoeing, 35; Cement Work, 151; Chemistry, 90; Conservation, 46; Cooking, 63; Cycling, 31; Dairying, 217; Electricity, 82; Farm Layout, 214; Firemanship, 168; First Aid, 88; Forestry, 34; Foundry Practice, 237; Handicraft, 21; Insect Life, 199; Leathercraft, 122; Machinery, 130; Masonry, Webster Groves 8; Metal Work, 198; Mining, 242; Painting, 136; Personal Health, 13; Photography, 236; Pioneering, 113; Plumbing, 53; Poultry Keeping, 205; Printing, 93; Public Health, 57; Radio, 55; Safety, 150; Sculpture, 84; Seamanship, 160; Signaling, Webster Groves 3; Taxidermy, 19; Weather, 20; Wood Turning, 9; Landscaping, 296.

Troop 101 will conduct a special booth in Indiancraft; Troop 74 one in Gypsy Camping; Troop 14 in Patrol Projects, and Troop 81 in Museums.

Troop Notes

North District.

Troop 3 of the Grace Holy Cross Church will meet hereafter on Monday nights. The troop met on Mondays last winter, but changed during the summer. Two visitors were present at the last meeting of the troop.

Troop 89 of St. Paul's Evangelical Church, has resumed its regular meetings for the winter. The meetings will be held every Friday evening starting at 7:30 o'clock. The troop spent an active summer with a number of hikes and overnight camps. The latter included a three-day stay at the Meramec State Park, and a two-week section at Irondale.

Plans for a fathers' and sons' banquet, to be held the early part of November, were announced at a recent meeting of Troop 150, of the Scullin School. The troop is also planning to help distribute Veiled Prophet posters in Wellston, as a civic good turn.

West District.

The Hawk Patrol, with a total of 37 points, took the lead in a totem-pole inter-patrol contest at the meeting of Troop 26 at Delmar Baptist Church last week. The Buffalo patrol was second with 34, while the Beaver and Tiger patrols followed with 32 and 27 points, respectively, The troop also welcomed at the meeting a new first-class scout, Scout Arlie Appler Jr., who transferred to Troop 26 from Troop 128. The Rev. Ryland Knight, pastor of the church, cave a short talk at the meeting.

Contests in patrol songs and cheers were held at the meeting of Troop 80 of the Y. M. H. A., last week, The second patrol, under Patrol Leader Harry Rothman, was judged best in songs, and also tied with the third patrol, under Patrol Leader Francis Klein, for the best cheers. Pyramid building by patrols, capture the flag and other games, test instruction, and test passing occupied the remainder of the meeting. Announcements of the troops' semi-annual inter-patrol contest, which began last Thursday, and of the first Troop Court of Honor, to be held the last of October or first of November, were also made. Squanto, the troop's weekly newspaper, was distributed at the close of the meeting.

The fifteenth anniversary of Troop 46 of Immanuel Baptist Church, will be celebrated at the church Oct. 3, with a dinner. All former members of the troop, the present members and their parents and friends have been invited to the celebration, while others may attend if they will advise Scoutmaster L. M. Hall so provision may be made for them. The dinner will start at 6:30 o'clock.

Troop 2 of Pilgrim Congregational Church held its annual open house at the church last Friday evenings. The scouts exhibited work prepared by them during the summer, and a number of Tenderfoot candidates were formally invested into the troop. The open house was attended by parents and friends of the scouts.

South District.

Patrol Leader Edwin Edmonson's Wolf patrol is leading in an inter-patrol contest conducted by Troop 198 of St. John's Episcopal Church. The Panther patrol, under Patrol Leader Rudolph Schlatter, is second, followed by the Flying Eagles, Patrol Leader James Harrison; and the Beavers, under Patrol Leader Ernest Brach. The contest will continue for several weeks. The duties of the troop committee for the coming year have been announced as follows: Chairman, Thomas E. Upshaw; treasurer, Louis Yates; chairman of the Court of Honor, Thomas Gale; activities director, John W. Hossack; and adviser, the Rev. L. H. Nugent.

An overnight hike to the troop camp site on the Meramec River was taken last week-end by Troop 178 of the Scruggs School. While at the camp the scouts performed a good turn by cleaning a spring. The troop was reorganized recently into four patrols, under the leadership of Patrol Leaders Sidney Cline, Louis Schmitt, Irwin Kolkhorst and Roland Stanley. Scout Karl Kirberg is the new scribe. The Wildcat Patrol won the troop's last interpatrol contest.

A minstrel show and dance will be given by Troop 247 of the Froebel School at Swiss Hall, Nov. 1. The entertainment is under the direction of Scoutmaster Sparwasser and the Troop Committee. The troop was reorganized recently into four patrols, the Swallows, Bob Whites, Flying Eagles and Standing Bears.

A parents' night, to which all parents of the scouts were invited, was held by Troop 194 last Monday. Several scouts of the troop have become Den Chiefs of a Cub pack in the neighborhood. Plans have been made for the troop to attend in a body at the services of every church to which a troop member belongs.

Central District.

Although organized only a short time, Troop 242, of St. Francis de Sales Church, is well under way in scouting activities. With but few exceptions all the scouts of the troop have passed their second class requirements, and are working on first-class tests. Plans have been made for at least one overnight hike a month for the rest of the year. The hikes held so far all have been attended by the full strength of the troop. The troop committee has obtained a site, on which cabins are being built for winter camping.

BELLEVILLE PATROLMAN KILLED IN CRASH

Motorcycle Policeman Schildroth Runs Into Truck While Pursuing Speeder.

Motor Cycle Policeman John C. Schildroth of Belleville was killed yesterday when he crashed into a truck at Main and Eighty-eighth streets while chasing a speeder. Death was caused by a fractured skull.

Witnesses told police that Schildroth was following a speeding automobile west in Main street at a speed of 70 miles an hour. In attempting to pass the truck, which was turning left, the motor cycle struck a front wheel of the truck and caromed into the street-car tracks. Schildroth clung to the handle bars as the motor cycle slid a distance of 50 feet, then was thrown off and struck his head on a rail.

The driver of the truck, Oscar Bossler, 511 Fulton street, employed by the Belleville Feed Mill Co., was placed under $2500 bond on a warrant charging manslaughter sworn out by Chief of Police Mayes. The speedor escaped in the direction of East St. Louis.

Schildroth was 28 years old and lived at 312 North Tenth street, Belleville, with his wife and two children.

DAIRY SHOW BOOSTERS BID 4000 TO BANQUET

G. W. Briggs of Texas to Be Principal Speaker at Dinner in The Arena.

Four thousand men and women have been invited to the Dairy Show boosters' dinner at The Arena tomorrow night.

The banquet promises to be the largest ever held in St. Louis. Two thousand chickens, 8000 rolls, 300 pounds of butter, a ton of peas, 2000 heads of lettuce, two barrels of olives and 4000 bottles of milk are included in the menu. Guests will sit at 50 tables, each 40 feet long, and at a head table circling the floor.

George W. Briggs, official representative of the Texas State Fair, will be the principal speaker at the dinner. Others who will speak are Charles M. Hay, Willard Cox, Harold Bixby and Ben G. Brinkman. Briggs, a banker, is former president of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce. The dinner differs from that marking the opening of last year's dairy show in that women, as well as men, have been invited.

The Agricultural Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce announced plans for the entertainment of 1500 members of 4-H clubs, who are expected to attend the Dairy Show. The program includes a dinner Oct. 12, visits to the Zoo, Jefferson Memorial and Shaw's Garden, and a boat ride on the Erastus Wells. Members of 4-H clubs and vocational agricultural students from 24 states will be here for the show.

Jones Captures Fourth Major Golf Title of Year

Bobby Wins U. S. Amateur, Defeating Homans, 8 Up and 7

By the Associated Press.

ARDMORE, Pa., Sept 27.—On the famous east course of Merion Cricket Club, where as a shock-hair youthful phenomenon of 14 he first appeared in national championship competition, Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., today completed the greatest march of conquest in golf history.

By the one-sided margin of 8 up and 7 to go, Jones brushed aside 22-year-old Eugene Vanderpool Homans of Englewood, N. J.; to win the United States amateur championship and score his fourth straight national victory for the year—the "grand slam" of golf.

There are no more golfing worlds left to conquer for this 28-year-old citizen-lawyer of Atlanta, Ga., who made his final triumph look so ridiculously easy that the wonder is he hasn't been doing this sort of thing every year since he first began to scale the height.

Just a Breeze.

Bobby's triumph today after a solid week of competition was by far the easiest of any of the quartet he scored to sweep everything in sight for the campaign of 1930. It was just a breeze by comparison with the battles he waged earlier to capture the British open, the British amateur and the American open.

There was drama and a surging, rushing, and at the finish an uncontrollable crowd of perhaps 15,000 spectators, running wild as they sought to see golfing history made such as may never be recorded again, but there were few if any competitive thrills to a final match that was just another big parade for the all-conquering son of the South.

The end was in sight when Jones ended the morning 18 holes of the 36-hole final seven up. Good and game a young golfer as is Homans, he was no match whatever for the stocky king of the links. It was just a question of how long it would go in the afternoon, and Bobby kept the galloping gallery in suspense longer than it was anticipated, largely because "Calamity Jane," the Jones putter, was far from her usually consistent self.

Homans Gets a Birdie.

Jones became 9 up at the twenty-second, with only 14 to go, and the crowd became frenziedly eager to be in on the "kill" but it went seven more holes. At the twenty-seventh, Homans cut away a hole with a fine birdie two. At the twenty-eighth, it looked to be all over until Bobby took two shots to get out of a trap and barely saved a half in "buzzard" sixes. It was now dormie eight and the throng broke all bounds in its wild gallop to the eleventh hole, down into the woods and along the creek—the twenty-ninth hole of the match.

Gallery marshals were ruthlessly brushed aside or knocked down in the wild charge to catch a glimpse of the last putt. Jones and Homans were nearly engulfed after they played their second shots well on to the green. Surrounded by marines, the contestants and officials pushed their way to the green.

Jones was 25 feet away from the cup and putted dead for his four. A hush fell over the tremendous crowd, covering the hills and knolls, the woods and fairway. Homans putted from 20 feet, the ball rolled close, but missed and a British Open—1926, 1927, 1930.

British Amateur—1930.

His record for the tournament that capped the climax:

Won medal with 69-73—142, tying record.

First round—Beat Ross Somerville, Canada, 5 and 4.

Second round—Beat Fred G. Hoblitzel, Canada, 5 and 4.

Third round—Beat Fay Coleman, Culver City, Cal., 6 and 5.

Semifinal—Beat Jess W. Sweetser, New York, 9 and 8.

Final round—Beat Eugene V. Homans, Englewood, N. J., 8 and 7.

ARMY EMPLOYS WARNER PLAYS AND SMOTHERS BOSTON, 39-0

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Turning loose the high-powered brand of tricky football borrowed from the system of old "Pop" Warner on the West Coast, Army swamped a game little eleven from Boston University under a 39 to 0 score today and introduced three new ball carriers who seem destined to carry Army football on where the flaming "Red" Cagel dropped it last fall.

Cy Letzelter, who once campaigned for Carnegie Tech; Ed Herb, former Colgate star, and Ken Fields who served an illustrious term at Illinois started the rout on the invaders from Boston that was carried on most ably by the second and even the third string teams.

The new Army style of play, replete with double and triple passes, fakes and reverses, completely baffled the New Englanders and only in the second period, when the Army subs were warming to their work, did Boston U. threaten to score. Then, due to frequent fumbling that marred the first half and poor passing from center as well Boston's tricky short forward passing game, Army was forced to dig in four times deep in home territory, on the six, 21, nine and 21-

Gabby Street Praises Cards' Reserves; Says Team Never Lost Heart

By Charles "Gabby" Street,

WHILE we're waiting for the big series with the Athletics to start, I would like to say a few words of appreciation of the men who have stood out in the Cardinals' great drive to a pennant, and of the factors which were important in that victorious struggle.

We never could have won the pennant without our reserves, and at the outset I want to commend those men who have sat on the bench ready for any call and who have come through so effectively when called on to fill in for the regulars.

Andy High has been on the bench most of the year, but that little fighting Irishman has won many a game for us. And what a fine spirit he has! In the spring, while I was experimenting with my infield, Andy came to me one day and said, "Gabby, I want you to know that I'm for you, whether I'm in the game or on the bench. Adams looks fine and you may find it a better combination with him at third, and if you decide that way, I'll be for you just the same. We all want you to win and I'll be as ready to go in and give my best any time you need me."

That was a fine spirit and the boy certainly did come through. He won a 20-inning game for us in Chicago, hit in the pinch in New York to win one and then broke up two of the Brooklyn games with doubles, batting as a pinch hitter.

Watkins a Fighter.

George Watkins, George Fisher and Ray Blades, my reserve outfielders, also have done some great work. Watkins has been playing regularly most of the season, except against left-handed pitchers, but he was considered a reserve in the spring. Wattie is a winner. One day one of the older players was joking on the bench and Wattie jumped all over him and told him we had a ball game to win and to please be serious. He's a fighter and a winning ball player.

Then my relief pitchers, Jim Lindsey, Herman Bell and Al Grabowski, have saved many a game. I believe Lindsey is the best relief pitcher I ever saw. He has saved at least 15 games for other pitchers, besides tacking a few onto his own list of victories. He has what the boys call the

VINES DEFEATS MANGIN, WINS TENNIS TITLE

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 27.—Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena won the men's singles championship in the Pacific Southwest tennis tournament today, by defeating Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., in straight sets, 14—12, 6—3, 6—4. Mangin was visibly tired after the long first set.

ROSLYN FOUR WINS WATERBURY POLO CUP

By the Associated Press.

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Roslyn captured the Monty Waterbury high-goal handicap polo cup at Meadow Brook today, with a one-sided victory over Greentree, 15 to 6. Roslyn never needed its two-goal handicap gift, but led overwhelmingly from the start.

As a consequence of the victory, two burly Texas cowboys, Cecil Smith, from Llano and H. W. (Rube) Williams, will take back with them to the Lone Star State the individual tournament cups which represent the highest achievement which American high-goal handicap polo affords. Rarely before have these cups left the East.

REEDQUIST OF IOWA DECLARED INELIGIBLE

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Sept. 27.—The bugaboo of ineligibility arose again today to best the University of Iowa football team. The latest casualty was Lawrence Reedquist, an end, and one of the nine remaining veterans, who was cut from the eligible roster last night because of poor scholastic standing.

BABE RUTH GETS TWO HOME RUNS OFF EARNSHAW

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—A four-run rally in the ninth inning today failed to overcome the effects of Babe Ruth's forty-eighth and forty-ninth home runs of the season and the New York Yankees defeated the champion Athletics in their final flash of the year, 10 to 8.

Ruth got his first homer of the game off George Earnshaw in the third inning with the bases empty, then repeated the feat in the next inning with loaded sacks.

Ben Chapman made four of the Yank's 13 hits, while Lou Gehrig gained some ground in his race with Al Simmons for the batting lead by hitting twice in three times at bat. Simmons made one hit in three tries.

Roy Sherid pitched effectively for the Yanks until the last inning when Philadelphia smashed over four runs on five safe hits and drove him to the showers. Pipgras retired the last two men.

TONY KAUFMANN AND BELL RAPPED FOR 16 HITS; WILSON CATCHES PART OF CONTEST

By J. Roy Stockton.

Everybody relaxed at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon and while the Cardinals were enjoying an afternoon without having to bear down on every pitch and every batted ball, the Pittsburg Pirates bombarded Tony Kaufmann and Herman Bell for 16 hits and made away with an unimportant game, 11 to 8.

Nobody was paying any attention to the score board. Win, lose or draw, the Cardinals had the 1930 championship pennant safely stowed away. There was a lot of conversation about the approaching World Series with the Athletics however, and when somebody asked how the Redbirds happened to be lucky enough to land "Gabby" Street, that fighting top sergeant, who has led them to victory, it seemed that there was a question that ought to be investigated. And here is the results of a little sleuthing.

How Street Was Discovered.

Blake Harper, commander-in-chief of the hot dogs and drillmaster of the Army of Peddlers who wander through the aisles, selling almost as many articles as you can find in a drug store, is the man who found Gabby Street and brought him to the Cardinals.

Blake is one of those retiring persons who hates to be drawn into a conversation, so he demurred when asked about how "Gobby" happened to join the Cardinal organization, but Street wasn't backward about telling the story.

"Harper was after me for five years," Street explained as his warriors were enjoying a defeat for the first time this season. "He was after me and I was after him. You see, I knew the Cardinal organization was a great chance for a man, and I figured if I ever got in I'd move right up, though, to tell the truth, I never even figured that I might lead the Cardinals some day.

"Well, Harper and I would think we had it all fixed up. He thought he saw qualifications in the old sergeant as a handler of men and every year he told Branch Rickey and Sam Breadon that he wanted them to give me a chance, that I knew how to handle and develop young ball players.

"But each year Mr. Rickey and Mr. Breadon would say no, and I'd have to go out and find me another job.

Began as a Caretaker.

"Well, finally Harper persuaded Rickey that I had climbed on the water wagon for good. You know I used to be a pretty fair hand with the old black bottle, but I finally got smart and quit just like that. Well, Rickey decided to give me a chance and so Harper came to me, all tickled to death and said here was my chance, that the Cardinals needed a manager at Shawnee, where he was going to be president and that he had persuaded Rickey and Breadon to give me that job. Well, you know the rest. Harper thought he had signed a man to help him run the Shawnee club, but then it was decided that the Cardinals ought to have somebody with the club to wheel Grover Cleveland Alexander around and keep him dry. And they decided that the old sergeant, knowing all the tricks and all the brands, would be just the man to room with old Pete. Maybe they reckoned too, that with that combination they'd soon find if old Gabby could ride the water wagon good and steady. Well, I rode the wagon alright and here I am. And every time I shake the hand of Blake Harper, who is one of the best fellows I ever knew in baseball, through a trifle too tacitum, I thank him as the man who steered me into the Cardinal organization."

How Pittsburg Won.

To return to the ball game again, which attracted 14,500 customers to the ball park, the Pirates took a commanding lead by scoring five runs in the first inning and had the affair well in hand all the way.

Dugas opened the game with a double. Paul Waner and Traynor walked to fill the bases, Traynor hit a sacrifice fly, Comorosky singled and Suhr hit a home run over the pavilion roof, and the Buccaneers had five runs and nobody cared. Friday it would have been different, but they could have had 50 if they wanted them in the third game of the series. Traynor tripled and scored on an infield out in the third inning and Captain "Pie" singled in the fifth and scored on Comorosky's double. In the seventh Paul Waner hit a home run and with Herman Bell pitching the Pirates added two in the eighth on a single, double, error and two passes. Then in the ninth Bool tripled and scored on Dugas' single.

The Cardinals scored a run in the first inning, one in the second, three in the fifth, one in the sixth and two in the eighth.

The fans enjoyed the afternoon, apparently, just as much as if they had seen a great ball game. They cheered the Cardinals individually and collectively and everybody stayed till the last man was out, to get a good look at the athletes who are going to tackle the Athletics of Connie Mack, in the world series.

Officials: Thompson, head linesman, Illinois, and Newsome, referee.

For the first time in many years Central High has turned out a strong football team, one that is almost certain to be in the running for the league championship. The Red and Black team defeated St. Charles by the margin of 19—0, at the Public School Stadium yesterday. The Central team was many pounds heavier than the county team and this weight was used to good advantage throughout the contest. In addition to having a heavy team the city school has a backfield that is certain to rank with the best in town.

The outcome of the game was forecast in the first quarter when the Central team blocked two St. Charles' punts in succession, recovering the second one on the one yard line and plunging over from there for the first tally of the game. Jouret was the tackle who broke through both times to block the punts and he recovered the ball the second time. This was not the only time Jouret was in the limelight for he was constantly breaking the line to go through the opposing team for big gains.

Biondo carried the ball over from the one-yard line for the first score of the game. Not much of interest occurred in the second period except that both teams were often penalized for illegal use of hands while on the offensive, P. Willner being banished from the game for this offense, thereby weakening the St. Charles line.

In the third quarter Glazier took the ball on his forty-yard line and circled the end for a run of 69 yards, placing the ball on the one-yard line, from where Hassler knifed through the line for a touchdown, the extra point being missed. St. Charles' ends were weak throughout the game and most of Central's gains were made around them. After Central had intercepted a pass on St. Charles' twenty-two yard mark, Hassler took the ball around end to the two-yard line, only to have the ball taken back to the seventeen-yard mark for slugging. Kelerman carried the ball to the five-yard line and Hassler took it over for the marker. Glazier then carried the ball around end for the extra point, closing the scoring for the day.

Bobby Jones in Action at the National Amateur

Bobby Jones Captures Fourth Major Golf Title of Year

wild shout went up from the crowd. Almost instantly there was a wild rush for the green and Jones.

Job for the Marines.

For a few seconds it looked as if the quadruple monarch of all the golfing kingdoms would be overwhelmed, but as if by magic command, the marines rose from nowhere, a score of them under Lieut. "Whitey" Lloyd, former Annapolis fullback, to form a solid phalanx around the Georgian. The vanguard hit Lloyd and bounded back, shaken off like he used to block would-be tacklers. Others slowed up as they saw the protective cordon and the danger of a mob scene was avoided.

In flyng wedge fashion, the marines escorted Jones, Homans and officials of the United States Golf Association through the throngs, and up to the clubhouse lawn, where the massive championship trophy, on a spotless table cloth, sparkled in the sun, for the ceremony of presentation again this year.

Twenty deep as many of the spectators who could jam themselves about the scene, stood to watch the last act of the great Jones drama of 1930, and lustily cheered the quiet, stocky young man who has knocked the statistics of golf groggy.

In his unprecedented sweep through the British and American tournaments this year, Jones today registered his fifth triumph in the United States amateur and his thirteenth national championship victory within the period of the last eight years. These achievements also stand alone as records. The only man who has ever won so many as four American amateur crowns is Jerome D. Travers, and no other man, Briton or American, has piled up so staggering a grand total of victories as Jones.

As he accepted the championship cup, Jones paid tribute to his opponents, to the galleries and to the Merion Club, where in 1916, he first played in the amateur tournament and where, in 1924, he won his first amateur championship. He has now won the seven.

The significance of Jones' victory furnished much more excitement and interest than the final round match itself. That Bobby would win was accepted as a foregone conclusion, almost from the start of the tournament. He won the medal in the qualifying play with a record-equaling score, 142, and he overwhelmed five successive opponents. His golf was not always "Jones Golf," in the machine-like perfection it is thought of, but it was much too good for anyone else to match.

Jones was never "down" to any of his five opponents in match play. Except for perhaps two or three lapses in his putting, he was never far enough "off" his game to cause the slightest concern to his intimate followers or alter the conviction that this was his tournament. Alone of the favorites who entered it, he swept along without the slightest interruption and with few challenges to his supremacy.

Homans, in the first final of his career, offered scant opposition, although his courageous finish extended the match farther than it seemed possible after Bobby assumed a 7-hole lead in the first 18.

The bespectacled New Jersey youth won exactly three holes out of the 29. Two of these were on "birdies" which he scored at the 215-yard seventeenth and at the 170-yard twenty-seventh. The third was the result of a stymie that Jones failed to negotiate on the seventh hole.

Two Birdies for Bobby.

Jones shot his best golf on the inward nine of the morning round. He covered this nine in 33 strokes, one under par, sinking putts of 25 and 6 feet at the eleventh and fifteenth holes to offset a lapse at the seventeenth. These were the only good-sized putts he holed in the entire match but from tee to green his play was much superior to that of his opponent. The Georgian covered the first 18 holes in 72, two over par, to Homans' 79. Bobby was four over par for the remaining 11 holes and so was Homans.

The answer was that Jones did not need to put on pressure. He drove frequently with his spoon and he played for the greens, rather than for the pin, "safety first" golf that was good enough to win but not spectacular. Throughout, king Bobby gave the impression of just enjoying a good workout, while his opponent beat himself.

Jones Declares He Will Play in More Tournaments

By the Associated Press.

ARDMORE, Pa., Sept. 27. BOBBY JONES JR., Atlanta, who today completed his sweep of the four major golf titles of the world by winning the U. S. amateur tournament, declared after his triumph that he would not give up competitive golf.

Will he continue to play or rest on his laurels? These questions buzzed among spectators as well as the experts, after it was all over. Jones himself furnished the answer, so far as it may be given.

"I expect to continue to play golf, but just when and where, I cannot say now," he told the Associated Press." I have no definite plans, either to retire or as to when and where I may continue in competition. I might play next year and lay off in 1932. I might stay out of the battle next season and feel like another tournament the following year. That's all I can say about it now."

Yale Defeats Maine, 38 to 0

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 27.—A big Yale team, presenting an unbalanced line, a new shift and greater use of forward and lateral passes, today defeated the University of Maine by a score of 38 to 0 in the opening game of the season.

A crowd of 30,000 persons sat in the hot sun pouring into the Yale Bowl, and saw the sons of old Eli score at least one touchdown in each period, and three in the final quarter.

Albie Booth, the "mighty mite," swinging into action in the last minutes of the first half, and playing through the third period, displayed great flashes of last year's brilliance. He scored one touchdown, made a kick of 62 yards and passed with uncanny skill. The crowd roared on its feet as he ripped off a run of 30 yards, his best run of the day.

Coach Stevens started his second team backfield of McLennan, Snead, Taylor and Parker, and sent in Booth and Company, Beane, Dunn and Muhlfeld, along with a new forward wall near the end of the first half. From then on substitutions were frequent. Because of the heat only 10 minute quarters were played.

Chick McLennan, who started as quarterback, scored two touchdowns and others were contributed by Dunn, Wiener, and Heim besides Booth.

At no time did Maine threaten, Yale's smart defense successfully cutting down the visitors' attack.

LINDSTROM'S HOME RUN GIVES GIANTS VICTORY OVER PHILLIES, 5 TO 3

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Carl Hubbell and Fred Lindtsrom got together today to give the Giants a 5-to-3 victory over Philadelphia and to enable them to hold third place safe from Brooklyn. The victory put the Giants a full game ahead of the Robins, who broke even with the Boston Braves, and assured them of nothing worse than a tie for the place.

Hubbell held the Phils to eight hits, while Lindstrom hit a home run with two on base in the third inning to decide the game. He also hit a single and a double to lead the Giants' 14-hit attack against three pitchers.

SOCCER LEAGUE PLAYS 2 GAMES THIS AFTERNOON

The Twilight Amateur Soccer League will play a double-header at Sherman Park this afternoon, starting at 2 p. m.

The Dolans, league champions, will oppose the Geraghtys in the first game and the German Sports Club is scheduled to oppose the Andys in the second game. In their previous meeting, the Dolans and Geraghtys tied, 2—2. The German Club has not met the Andys in a league match.

ROCHESTER HITS HARD TO DEFEAT LOUISVILLE, 9-2

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 27.—The Louisville Colonels were outclassed by Rochester here today in the third game of the "Little World Series," the homesters winning 9 to 2. By the victory, the Red Wings took a two to one lead in the series.

Cold, sharp winds, in strong contract with yesterday's mid-summer weather, did not chill the enthusiasm of nearly 8000 fans who turned out in topcoats for the event.

There was little doubt about the outcome after the second inning. At that point the Red Wings had gathered five runs while the visitors were held scoreless. Even after that, Rochester hits continued to drop in unprotected sectors of the field, resulting in three additional runs in the fourth and one in the sixth.

They amassed a total of 14 hits. "Red" Worthington came out of his series hitting slump ot take the honors with three clean blows. Jimmy Collins, Wing first sacker, drove in four runs with a double and triple. Shortstop Charley Wilson contributed the first homer of the series.

George Grant, former Cleveland hurler, was the real star of the game. He limited the Kentuckians to seven hits, most of which came after his club had assumed a comfortable lead.

Grant was helpel immeasurably by fine defensive work of the Rochester infield. Two spectacular stops and throws by Wilson and two double plays checked the only dangerous Louisville rallies. An attack of boils kept Mel Simons, classy Louisville centerfielder, out of the game. Nachand substituted for him.

The fourth game of the series is scheduled here tomorrow afternoon.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Can't Sue Us

THE boys about the country are pecking at us again They are laughing at us because we turned out fewer than 14,000 to see the Cardinals clinch the pennant, after one of the most spectacular drives in baseball annals.

It is charged that we should be sued for non-support.

But our accusers weren't here to see what happened yesterday when the city suspended operations to watch the Redbirds on parade through the downtown streets. Plenty of moral support there, even though it was no financial help to Sam Breadon.

Cards' Odds Are Forced Down

THE fact is that the city is really almost as hot as in 1926 when Hornsby and his wrecking crew treated us to our first pennant in 38 years. This is reflected in the handbooks about town where money is pouring in, and all on the Cardinals. At Kearney's Big Store it was said, late yesterday afternoon, that more than $10,000 has been taken in on the Cardinals since the pennant was clinched, and only one lonely $10 ticket on the Athletics.

As a result of this backing the Cardinals' odds have been forced down to even money, from 6 to 5, with the prospect of going still lower if the local books cannot lay off some of the local money in the East.

Although the Cardinals' price has been battered down, the Athletics odds rose only one tenth of a point and now stand at 7 to 10. The fact is that the professional bettors all favor the Athletics and are taking more Cardinal money than they normally would think justified.

Just what the professional betting guess on baseball amounts to is indicated by the fact that the Cardinals were quoted at 12 to 1, as this year's pennant race began!

Rather Surprising

ALTHOUGH few experts named the Cardinals to win the pennant this year, J. Roy Stockton of the Post-Dispatch was one of the critics to pick them—it is surprising to note that at this time the opinion of the newspaper writers is livided almost 50-50. The Cardinals are given an almost equal chance to beat the team that won the American League pennant twice and the world series once.

The Hero?

THE world series hero is hard to forecast this year. The possibilities, especially with the Cardinals, are too varied. Normally one would say that the standouts of the team are likely to be Burleigh Grimes, Frankie Frisch or Chick Hafey.

But the standout player might as well be little Andy High, Gus Mancuso, Watkins, Ray Blades or Fisher, if pinch work at the plate becomes necessary.

World series of the past show that there is not much chance to pick the hero in advance. Very ordinary material occasionally has risen to championship levels, while stars have failed to twinkle. There was the case of Rogers Hornsby last year. The stage was set many times for Rogers to do his stuff. But he failed miserably, striking out eight times.

No Sportmen in Baseball?

MOST persons will tell you that baseball is no longer run by sportsmen but is operated purely commercially for the purpose of making money. William Wrigley of the Cubs rises to rebuke these misguided ones. In a Saturday Evening Post story he intimated that nobody but a sportsman would be in baseball as a promoter.

"A man who doesn't love baseball is unsuited to be a club owner. He can't stand the gaff of disappointments. They break his spirit when he counts the cost. There have been times in my experience as owner when I would have lost heart and refused to throw good money after bad, if baseball hadn't been almost a religion to me. I am sure that other big league club owners will make the same confession."

We know another owner who will cry amen to that. He is Phil De Catesby Ball. Wrigley admits to being "in the red" $500,000 at one time, but he has the consolation of knowing that he, at least once, reached the top. Ball has paid dividend in not more than five of the 16 years he has been in major league baseball—and still no pennant.

Big Business, Now.

WRIGLEY also says: "No man whose finances are limited is in a position to own a major league team and know that he can make it successful. It doesn't require much imagination to realize how a deficit of half a million would have affected an owner interested only in the financial outcome of his undertaking."

Yet many men have started into major league baseball on capital very low in five figures and run it into a fortune.

Mr. Wrigley's $2,000,000 baseball property was bought by its former owner, Charles Webb Murphy, for $105,000 and made fortunes for several persons. Bob Hedges put $30,000 in the Browns in 1902 and quit with $425,000 for his own holdings in 1915. There are others.

In the main, however, the investment required to break into big league parks today is in seven figures and the returns, except in a few cases very uncertain.

No Inflation Needed.

Says Coach Knute Rockne of Notre Dame football fame: "My 1930 football team will be good."

Too bad—for the opponents.

When Rockne boosts his team, he never uses a tire pump.

This Will Be Good.

SENOR PAULINO UZCUDUN is going to fight Primo Carnera in Spain ... this year.

We recommend the Senor change his boxing habits against Beeg Boy from Venice, as it may save him a broken neck.

Paulino has two systems of defense. One is to put both gloves up in front of his face and bring his elbows down to his sides, walking in with a slight crouch. His more common method is to bend half over folding both arms across his face, exposing his back, neck and the top of his head. In this last posture Paulino is vulnerable to blows on the top of the head, the base of the brain and the kidneys. The blows to regions ordinarily considered foul (the kidney and the neck), can not be construed foul when the defending fighter habitually assumes such a position as Paulino adopts. Consequently, there is no doubt that many of Primo's massive rights and lefts will find the occipital region heavily.

That will be dangerous for Uzcudun. In fact, the match is bad. Although Paulino is tough, he will weigh something like 70 pounds less than his rival and will be nearly a foot shorter. He will not compare with him in reach.

Himself a wretched boxer and a none to heavy hitter, if we judge by his record, what can the Basque possibly offer as opposition to the fast and improved big man from Italy?

The match was arranged solely as a kale producer, it being figured that Spain would rally to view its most celebrated fighter.

They Need the Dough.

ALL talk about overemphasis of college football seems to have subsided to a few rumbles from behind closed doors of the faculty board rooms.

The trend of the times has forced conscientious objectors into the background. The game is bigger than the faculty—and that's the plain fact of the matter. The physical side of collegiate life has thus gained more than a 50-50 break with the intellectual.

So much has been invested in football, both as to public interest and financial requirements, that sport MUST carry on, or the entire physical programs of 90 per cent of the universities of the country would have to be reduced to a negligible point. Maintenance of the million dollar stadia and the splendid temples or "gyms" devoted to perfecting the body demand an enormous intake of money; and this, plus the financing of losing and intramural sports, can be accomplished only with the aid of the enormous receipts from football games.

The Indians came back with two in their half on a pass to Jamieson, Vosmik's line double over Goslin's head, Morgan's sacrifice fly and Kress' wild throw of Hodapp's roller.

Cleveland got three more in the second on singles by Goldman and Sprinz, Barnhart's sacrifice, Jamieson's infield roller on which Goldman counted when Levey threw too late to get Sprinz at third, Porter's double and Vosmik's sacrifice fly to Schulte.

Another came in for Cleveland in the third on Hodapp's single and Sprinz's one-baser, Hodapp scoring when Gullic threw into the Browns' dugout trying to head Hodapp off at third.

Burns Singles in Fourth.

St. Louis got one in the fourth. Burns opened it with a single but was forced by Schulte. Gullic lined a single to center, putting Schulte on third, and Fred got home on Ferrell's sacrifice fly.

They got another in the fifth on a pass to Goslin and Kress' double to center.

The Indians got that one back in their half on Weingarner's double and Goldman's single.

An error helped the Browns to one in the seventh. Weingarner booted Levey's bounder. Storti drilled a single to center, then Kress bounced a single off Winegarner's chest to score Levey.

Some ragged support and his own, wildness cost Stiely two runs in the seventh. To begin with Vosmik lifted a high fly to the pitcher's box and when Kress and Storti both chased it the ball fell between them for a single. Morgan walked, then Gardner forced Vosmik at third, Stiely to Kress. Winegarner lifted one back of second and with about six Brownies chasing the ball, it fell safe for another single, filling the bases. Goldman walked, forcing Morgan home, then Gardner scored on Sprinz's sacrifice fly to Gullic.

The Browns' final run in the ninth was the result of a single by Levey, a pass to Storti and single by Kress.

CARDS HAVE EDGE ON ATHLETICS IN BATTING, MACKS BETTER ON DEFENSE

COMPARISON OF RECORDS SHOWS TEAMS IN 1930 WORLD SERIES ARE ABOUT EVENLY MATCHED

By Herman Wecke.

If records for the season mean anything, the Cardinals and Athletics should wage a real struggle for the world baseball championship in the series, starting at Philadelphia, next Wednesday. Statistics show that the two nines are evenly matched, at least on paper.

However, past world series have shown that figures do not always tell the truth. For instance, in 1928, it was said that the Yankees were badly crippled and it was a shame to send the Cardinals against them. But the Yankees won four straight. Then, last season, no one expected the Athletics to walk all over the Cubs. But they did.

In view of all this, however, a comparison of the players on the records for the season indicates that Gabby Street's men do not get any the worst of it. If anything, there is a shade in favor of the Cardinals. Figures indicate that the Redbirds have a better-balanced pitching staff than the American Leaguers.

Five Pitchers Against Two.

STREET has five men who pitched fine ball in the stretch drive They are Grimes, Hallahan, Rhem, Haines and Johnson. Against this array, Mack has only two men who are outstanding. They are Lefty Grove, the greatest southpaw in baseball, and George Earnshaw. And Earnshaw has had his troubles finishing his games.

Pitching the way they are capable of, there would be little to choose between Grove and Hallahan; with Grimes, one of the greatest money pitchers in baseball, having a shade over Earnshaw Haines, Rhem and Johnson would have an edge over Walberg, Shores, Rommel, Quinn and Mahaffey, Mack's other flingers.

As regards team records, the clubs are about even, with the Cards owning an advantage in hitting and the Mackmen in fielding. The Redbirds have hit .314 to .294, while the Athletics, leading the A. L. in defensive play, have a mark of .975 against one of .970 for the Cardinals. The Cardinals in the first 145 games of the season scored 921 runs, an average of 6.3 a game, while the figure for the American Leaguers was 904, or 6.1 a game. As for the enemy tallies, the present world champions stopped the opposition with 4.6 runs a contest, whereas the Cardinals' opponents averaged 5.1.

Though the Athletics own a five-point margin over the Cardinals in fielding, the figures bring out one feature in favor of Gabby Street's troupe. The Cardinals have completed 164 double plays, whereas the Macks have made but 118. That's a margin of 46 in favor of the National League entry.

Man-for-Man Comparison Gives Each Club Advantages; Simmons Big Standout

TAKING the athletes, position for position, each team has its advantages.

Starting with first base and working around, there are few who would give Jimmy Foxx an outstanding margin over Bottomley in spite of the Athletic star's higher swat mark and better fielding record.

There are none who will question putting Frankie Frisch ahead of Max Bishop. Bishop trails Frisch by many points in hitting, and, though he has a three-point margin in fielding, Frisch has worked in 75 double plays, whereas Bishop has been in but 53. Frisch is far more dangerous at the plate than Bishop, as shown by the fact he has batted in more than 100 runs, while Bishop has but 36. Bishop's low total can be accounted for by the fact that he is a lead-off batter.

Moving over to short, there are Gelbert and Boley. Boley has had more experience, but Gelbert has proved himself a real star. He is outhitting his rival, has driven in more runs and has worked in 90 double plays against 52 for Mack's short fielder. Thus, if there is any advantage on the figures, it must go to Gelbert.

At third base Mack has Jimmy Dykes, a real star and one of the heroes of the last world series. Street, however, has two fine players for the position in Adams and High. These athletes stood out as real money players in the final pennant drive. Thus Dykes' advantage, if any, is a mighty slim one.

Simmons Big Outfield Star.

THE Athletics have a real advantage in left field. Al Simmons is one of the greatest stars in baseball, and though Chick Hafey is a dangerous slugger, Simmons must be rated ahead of him. Simmons not only is a hitter but a brilliant fielder, as his record of but one error for the campaign indicates.

But the Mackmen's advantage in left is offset in center, where Taylor Douthit stacks up against "Mule" Haas. Douthit, although a lead-off batter, had driven in 23 more tallies than his rival. On the defense, Douthit is one of the most brilliant outfielders of the National League.

Bing Miller, one-time Brownie, is rated ahead of George Watkins and George Fisher, although he is hitting below both of the Cardinal rookies. Miller's greater experience and better fielding enable him to shade Street's pair. Watkins, however, is a winning player and he may turn out to be one of the stars of the series.

With Mickey Cochrane on hand, Mack has the shade behind the plate, especially if Jimmy Wilson is unable to travel at his best. Gus Mancuso has proved a capable substitute, but he does not rank with Cochrane, one of the great catchers of all time. Wilson is capable of fine deeds and if he gets into the games, he probably will give a better account of himself than he did in the 1928 play against the Yankees.

Two Strikeout Kings.

AND then we come down to the pitchers. Consider first Grove and Hallahan. Here are the strikeout kings of the majors. Hallahan lacks the experience of his rival, but that he owns what fiddlestrings are made of was indicated in his great game against Dazzy Vance. Hallahan has fanned 176 batters in 234 innings, whereas Grove has whiffed 199 in 292. Grove's won and lost percentage is 28 victories against five defeats, making him the leading twirler in the majors. Hallahan has won 15 and lost 10 games. Bill started well, then slumped, but came like a house afire at the finish.

Then there are Grimes and Earnshaw. Grimes' record of 16 to 10 does not tell the truth, inasmuch as it includes his battles with the Braves, when he was not in condition and could do little. Since coming to the Cardinals in June, Grimes has been one of Street's main reliances. He's a tough man in a game which means everything. Earnshaw has won 22 and lost 12, but on many occasions Mack has been forced to replace him.

No Pushover for A. L.

HAINES can be paired off with Shores and the advantage goes to the Cardinals because of Haines' past experience in world series. Rhem has it on Rommel or Quinn, while Johnson and Walberg are about even. Then Street also will have Herman Bell, Jim Lindsey and Al Grabowski, three twirlers who have done fine relief work.

In world series experience there is little to choose, as only Adams, Mancuso, Watkins and Fisher of the Cardinals have not played in the big battles.

If there is one thing that is apt to give the Cardinals an advantage, it is a greater fighting spirit. Street's men had to show real battling on their rise from Aug. 9. It has been a fight all the way to beat off three clubs, whereas the Mackmen had only the Senators to beat off. As a result, the Athletics may enter the series overconfident and this is apt to prove dangerous against a club with the qualities of the Cardinals.

The series is not apt to prove a pushover for the American League champions. Since 1926, when the Cardinals copped four out of seven from the Yankees, the American League has won 12 games to only one for the National.

Ruth Considers Grimes Cards' Best Bet; Predicts Athletics Will Give Hallahan Trouble

By Babe Ruth.

How will the Cardinal pitchers fare against the Mackmen and who is likely to be most effective against the American Leaguers?

That is a topic that is being debated all over the country right now as Gabby Street's men put on the finishing touches for the big battle with the Athletics. Some will tell you that Bill Hallahan will stand the American Leaguers on their heads with his great speed and fast-breaking curve. Others believe that Grimes will be most effective. Or will it be Johnson, or Haines or Rhem?

Babe Ruth.

It frequently happens that the pitching star of the series bobs up from the ranks of the second stringers, Ermke wasn't expected to start last year and see what he did. Joe Bush was a world series hero when he was only a kid member on a team which had a great staff of veterans.

Hallahan has done more pitching this year than any other member of Street's staff. For years he threatened to break out as a winner and this year he has justified the confidence of his club which kept him despite many disappointing performances. Hallahan has supplanted Dazzy Vance as the strikeout king of the National League and Street probably is counting on him for an important role in this series.

Expects Little of Hallahan.

I don't look for so much from Hallahan. In the first place the Athletics are a tough team for a southpaw pitcher and the best of the American League left handers will testify to that effect. In the second place, Hallahan is inclined to streaks of wildness. As far as control goes, the Cardinals' star southpaw is considerably below par. And a pitcher who is off on control will find those Athletics the most patient waiters at the plate that he ever saw.

Max Bishop, the Athletics' lead-off man, is the weakest hitter of all the regulars who will take part in this series. But keep an eye on Bishop and see how many times he gets on the bases. I have seen him walk three and four times a game this year when our pitchers were working under instructions to put the ball over, even if he hit it out of the lot.

Cochrane and Bing Miller are two others who make a pitcher put them over. A left-hander with control has his troubles with the Athletics, but one without it will not get far. So I don't look for Hallahan to shine, but Bill may completely upset the dope. Only three of Mack's regulars—Bishop, Haas and Cochrane are left-handed hitters, and Cochrane hits southpaws as well as he hits right-handers.

I look to Grimes as the Cardinals' starting pitcher, and I also figure he will be the one who will cause the Athletics the most trouble. Burleigh is past 37 and not as fast as he once was. But he still has enough to be a top-notch pitcher, and what is very important, he knows how. I regard Grimes as one of the real smart pitchers now in the major leagues, and such a pitcher is always more dangerous than a younger man who may have more stuff but has not learned how to make the most of it.

The spitball angle also is in Grimes' favor. We have only two spitballers in our league and one—Jack Quinn—is with the Athletics, so they won't have to hit against him. The other is Red Faber, whom they see only once in a great while. If Grimes has the spitter working well the days he faces the Athletics, I figure he should win.

Jess Haines pitched some great ball against the Yankees in the 1926 series, and he pitched part of a game against us two years ago. He is a cagy boxman, but I think the years are taking their toll from Jess. Naturally, he hasn't what he once had out there in the box, but Street may figure him for one game.

I like Grimes' chances best, with Johnson next, and then a toss up between Haines and Rhem. I may be all wrong on Hallahan, but I can't figure him to beat the Athletics.

CARDS, USING RESERVES, LOSE TO PIRATES, 11-8

17 games for the last place St. Joseph club, which scored only 22 victories or so. He went to Houston, won six straight and his record for his month's stay there was eight victories and two defeats. He is a lanky right-hander and a scrapper from the Texas panhandle.

Dean has a young brother, 16 years old, who will be at St. Joseph next year. They call him "Little Dizzy" because he's taller than Herman and Herman says the kid has a fast ball and curves that make his stuff look childish.

Martin J. Haley of the Globe-Democrat has been selected as official scorer from St. Louis, for the world series. The others will be Ed Pollock of Philadelphia and Jim Crusinberry, president of the Baseball Writers' Association, who will be chief scorer.

Manager Street announced before the game that George Fisher would be in left field and that Hafey would be given a rest until the world series, but apparently Hafey didn't know about it, and after Announcer Kelly had recited the line up, with Fisher in left, he had to interrupt the first inning to state Hafey was in left.

Paul Waner's home run in the seventh inning struck the steel girder beyond the right field foul pole and spectators in the right field stands, who thought it was a foul handed out a few razzberries for the Umpire Bill Klem who ruled it fair. Bill was right. He hasn't made a mistake in 24 years. And he says he won't make one in 24 more.

The Cardinals started with their regular line up, except that Andy High was at second in place of Frankie Frisch, who was given a day off because of a lame back muscle that had been bothering him.

After six innings Watkins relieved Douthit in center and Mancuso relieved Jimmy Wilson who started the game, making his first appearance behind the bat since he sprained his ankle at the Polo Grounds.

WILSON HITS TWO HOMERS AS CUBS WIN, 13-8

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—The Cubs made it three straight over the Cincinnati Reds today, winning by 13 to 8, as Hack Wilson hit his fifty-fifth and fifty-sixth home runs of the National League season. Gabby Hartnett got his thirty-sixth and thirty seventh circuit drives and Pat Malone also got one for the Cubs.

STREET PRAISES CARDS' RESERVES; SAYS TEAM NEVER LOST HEART

"guts" and no batter is too tough for him.

The trade that brought Grimes to our ball club was an important factor, too. It showed the players that the club owners wanted to win the pennant and it also gave as a tough pitcher, a man who loves to win, and who is toughest when the stakes are high. And when there's an important game to be pitched, there's nobody that you can have more confidence in than old Burleigh.

We had a lot of trouble with injuries and sickness, but the club never lost heart. Frisch, Gelbert, Hafey and Orsatti were all out at one time and Bottomley was playing with an injured thumb that would have had him on the bench if we had had a good substitute. But the boys didn't quit.

And despite our bad luck and our poor record on a couple of road trips, Sam Breadon announced my reappointment as manager, and without wanting to talk about myself, that had a good influence on the club. It showed that Mr. Breadon had confidence in the team and its manager, and that he realized we had run into many misfortunes, injuries and bad breaks. It also made the men feel that we were set for next year, and it certainly cheered me up and made me more determined than ever that the Cardinals were going to fight to the last ditch.

You know I was just a bush leaguer. Of course, I was a fair to middling catcher in my day, but that was a long time ago, and most of the players of today never heard of old Gabby Street. And I want to say that it was fine the way the Cardinals have hustled and fought for me, even if I was green busher. It sure makes the Old Sergeant feel good.

Yes, the boys are the ones who won the pennant. Say, they're such a good ball club that anybody could manage them. I had the softest job on the team and whatever glory there is belongs to the boys, not to me.

Cards' Run-Making Power Shows Athletics Need Super-Pitching In World Series, McGraw Says

By John J. McGraw,

Manager, New York Giants.

In run-making power and also in general defense, the Cardinals have shown a superiority over the Athletics all season, which again brings home the fact, disclosed in every analysis, that the one trump card of Connie Mack is his pitching. If figures and records count for anything, the Philadelphia job is entirely up to Grove and Earnshaw. They either do or they don't. Connie's choice is limited.

John McGraw.

In this connection it is interesting to speculate on just what the Athletics would have done in their fight for the pennant with average first - class pitchers. The one question that cannot be decided by all the figures in the world is: Will those two star pitchers be as strong against the Cardinals as they were against the teams in the American League?

If that could be answered on paper, there wouldn't be any use of a world series to decide the championship. Uncertainties and the human equation are what give baseball its charm.

The more you study run-making power and defense, the more you must be convinced that the Cardinals have the stronger baseball machine. Those two factors must be built into a team, independent of pitching strength which is really a department of its own.

Depend on Defense.

A glance at the records shows that the Athletics have won their games more by stopping the opposition with strong pitching than by making a lot of runs themselves. The Cardinals, with less effective pitching, have had to drive theirs in. Mreover, they have put up a stronger fielding defense.

Up to a few days ago, to illustrate, the Cardinals in fewer games played had made 20 more runs than the Athletics and had made 120 more hits. There is pretty definite proof of superior run-making power. The regulars of the St. Louis team had a team batting average of .324, against .296 for the regulars of the Athletics.

There is not one regular on the Cardinal team hitting under .300.

The Athletics, on the other hand, had four regulars in important positions hitting under .300. Dykes, at third base, had .296, while Boley at short had .274; Bishop at second base had .254, and Haas, in center field, had .293.

Now, this stronger punch is bound to be felt, even against such pitchers as Grove and Earnshaw, who have won some 50 games between them.

When this run-making power is considered among the extra men, or substitutes, there is no comparison. Always I have contended that a team is just as strong as its reserves, a principle that has always applied to armies.

Sluggers Among Reserves.

That power among the Cardinals' reserves is pretty certain to have its influence on this series. Over a long period of games, it would be apparent to anybody.

Here are figures impressive—probably surprising to those who do not study such things closely: Blades, .418; Fisher, .378; Orsatti, .323; High, .282.

Against those the Athletics have Summa, with .260; Williams, .267; McNair, .260.

These, mind you, don't take in the extra catchers. Mancuso, of the Cardinals, is hitting .360, while Schang of the Athletics is hitting .171.

Add to this attacking power the fact that the Cardinals have 21 more stolen bases and you get an indea of the run-making punch.

Superior on Defense.

On general defense—that is, outside of the pitchers—the Cardinals again make a superior showing. As yet, I am not considering or comparing individuals, but am trying to bring out the two general factors of attack and defense.

A most striking feature is the wonderful double-play record of the Cardinals. In many ways the double play is the most valuable bit of defense in a ball game, because it nearly always cuts off one more run and stops rallies. The records credit the St. Louis club with 49 more double plays than the Athletics, a remarkable tribute to their defensive strength and also to their speed.

Some super pitching will be required to stop a team with such obviously superior attack and defense as that.

Card Eligibles Include New Leader and 10 New Players

The Cardinals' list of eligible players for the world series with the Athletics, starting at Philadelphia Wednesday, includes 11 men who never before have participated in a world championship as members of the St. Louis club. What's more, several have played important parts in the pennant victory.

First of all, there is the Old Sergeant himself, Gabby Street. Last year he was coach of the Cardinals and before that he served as a minor league manager and catcher for the Washington club. But now the Old Sarge will match wits in a championship struggle against Connie Mack, who has a record of four victories against two defeats in world championships. Mack lost in 1905 and 1914, but won in 1910, 1911, 1913 and 1929.

Coach Clyde Wares had been out of baseball for some seasons before he was brought back by the Cardinals.

Three New Standouts.

Among the players who never before have participated in a world series with the Cardinals are three real standouts. They are Burleigh Grimes, Gus Mancuso and George Watkins.

Grimes was obtained in the middle of June in a trade with the Braves for Bill Sherdel and Fred Frankhouse, and from the time he joined the club pitched great ball, helping the Cardinals to win the pennant.

Gus Mancuso was slated for Rochester, but Commissioner Landis said no. Thus the Cardinals had to keep him and he proved a mighty important cog in the final drive, what with Jimmy Wilson injured.

Watkins was expected to serve another year at Rochester. But on the spring training trip, Street needed outfielders and Watkins had a winning spirit and Gabby retained him. He was awkward and green, but he was willing. He played numerous positions and he improved, so he has finished the season as a regular. He's a home run hitter and a mighty dangerous one in the pinch. In the series, he will play in right field, especially with a right-hander on the hill for the Mackmen.

Adams a Gift From Pirates.

Earl Adams—"Sparky," he is called—was grabbed from the Pirates via the waiver route last winter. He started at second base, but finished out the season as the regular third sacker and a mighty good one at that.

Charley Gelbert is serving his second season as shortstop, but will be appearing in his first world series. Then there is George Fisher, snared from the Giants in the trade which sent Wallie Roettger East. Fisher's batting won many games for the Cardinals during the campaign. He's another who was slated for other parts, but won out, and Homer Peel was sent hence.

Other newcomers are Pitchers Jim Lindsey and Al Grabowski, used mainly as relief hurlers, and George Puccinelli, the big outfielder who won some games with home runs, although appearing in few contests.

EQUIPOISE DEFEATS FINE FIELD OF 2-YEAR OLDS AT HAVRE DE GRACE

WHITNEY COLT BEATS DON LEON BY 5 LENGTHS IN $26,000 SPRINT

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 27.—With Jamestown, king of the 2-year-olds, retired for the season, Harry Payne Whitney's Equipoise had the Eastern Shore Handicap all to himself today, romping away with the six-furlong feature at Havre de Grace.

There was no Jamestown to oppose the fleet-footed Whitney ace, but there were 14 other two-year olds which furnished plenty of opposition on paper. When it came to racing, however, there was nothing to the rich stake but Equipoise. He let R. W. Collins' Don Leon, the Western Hope, set the pace for four furlongs, but when Sonny Workman gave the word, Equipoise jumped out in front and the race was over.

Don Leon was the only one of the field to furnish any kind of opposition to the Whitney star, which finished second to Jamestown in the Belmont futurity. Even Don Leo was beaten by five lengths, while third fell to Magnifico, also a Whitney colt, which once was rated as high as Equipoise by the stable managers.

In winning Workman drove Equipoise over the six panels in the good time of 1:12 2-5. Although the victory was worth $26,900 to Whitney, it was not a very profitable one for the crowd that jammed its way into this popular race course. The Whitney silks were so well backed they paid only $3.20 to win, $2.80 to place and $3.10 to show. In contrast a $2 place ticket on Don Leon, which had "long shot" Elmo Shropshire in the saddle, returned $19.60.

Three of the starters were put out of running at the turn for home when Sergeant Donaldson of the Glen Riddle Farm stumbled and fell causing Siskin and tarpaulin of the Nevada Stock Farm to also fall.

BRUMEAUX, OWNED BY AMERICAN FIRST IN ENGLISH STAKE RACE

NEWBURY, England, Sept. 27.—Brumeaux, owned by the American, A. K. Macomber, won the Newbury autumn cup handicap today. Another of Macomber's horses, Rio Des Alpes, finished third in the Donnington Castle Plate for 2 year olds.

The Donnington Castle Plate, at five furlongs, resulted in a dead heat between Sir Abe Bailey's Telescope and R. Farquharson's Decorum for first place. The race was worth 300 sterling (about $1500).

In the Newbury autumn cup at 1400 sterling (about $7000), added, Brumeaux, by Teddy from La-Brume, finished a length and a half in front of Lord Derby's West Wichlow which beat out Lady Ludlow's Show Girl for second place

Marion in a Tie Game

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Sept. 27.—Marion Township High School and Carterville battled to a scoreless tie in football here this afternoon. This was Marion's opening game.

BLACK MAMMY WINS $6200 RACE ON CLAIM OF FOUL

By the Associated Press.

AQUEDUCT TRACK, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Black Mammy, owned by the Ramapo Stables, and an added starter, gained the purse in the Aqueduct Handicap, best race here today, through a foul. She finished second to Sun Edwin, but at the end it appeared as if she was in close quarters and Passero eased back his mount and was beaten by a small margin.

However, Passero hustled back to the scales and after weighing out, rushed to the stewards and lodged a claim of foul against Sun Edwin. Steward Vosburg ordered the disqualification of Sun Edwin.

Black Mammy was rushed to the front while Sun Edwin was caught in a pocket and Thurber had to take up and go around the field. Sun Edwin was so much the best that he moved up and into the lead in a quarter mile and under vigorous riding, raced Black Mammy down and won going away by a neck.

KOENIG, SHORTSTOP, TURNS PITCHER THEN GOES TO THIRD BASE

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 27.—Chicago and the Tigers split a double-header here today, Detroit coming from behind in the first to win a 6-to-5 victory and losing the second, 10 to 5, behind Mark Koenig, erstwhile shortstop, who is attempting to graduate to the mound.

The White Sox had accumulated 10 hits and 10 runs off Koenig when he replaced McManus at third in the seventh, giving way to Tom Bridges on the mound. Funk hit a homer for the Tigers in the fourth inning of the second game, scoring McManus ahead of him.

SENATORS DEFEAT BOSTON RED SOX, 8-3

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Walter Johnson's Washington team paid its last visit of the season to Boston today and tacked an 8-to-3 defeat on the Red Sox before leaving town. The Sox led 2 to 0 up to the sixth, when Washington landed on Bull Durham for four runs.

The visitors put the game away with a three-run rally in the eighth.

Kit Carson	107	9	1	$8^{½}$	7^{1}	6^{h}	fell	W. Moran	19.89

*Field.

The Dago, up close from the start, went to Devlin gradually, persisted in boring in badly before getting clear, but disposed of Devlin within a close distance of the finish and won easily. Governor Pratt, well up, closed gamely and missing the accident, outstayed Lee Cooper. The latter began slower than usual, came to the extreme outside in the stretch and went resolutely in the final drive; Starference had speed from the start, suffered when Devlin fell and eased up, was lucky to finish fourth. Devlin, taken to the front, saved ground in the pacemaking, suffered mild interference from the winner, but was clear and tiring when he fell. Ragabald and Kit Carson could not escape striking Devlin and fell in rapid succession.

$2.00 mutuels paid: The Dago, win $5.96, place $4.14, show $3.82; Governor Pratt, place $12.34, show $9.40; Lee Cooper show $12.22.

SECOND RACE—$1200, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, six furlongs—Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post at 2:55; at post 4 minutes. Winner, ch. f., 4, by Chatterton—Bachelor's Blend. Trainer, W. C. Weant. Time, :23, :48, 1:13 2-5. Value to winners, $900, $200, $100.

HORSE.	WT.	PP.	ST.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Approximate Odds to 1.
Jessie Carey	109	7	7	1^{h}	1^{1}	1^{1}	1^{n}	C. Landolt	5.58
Kulaman	107	6	1	$3^{½}$	2^{h}	$2^{1½}$	2^{2}	W. Johns	5.73

Sorrento	104	1	4	4^{h}	$6^{½}$	9^{1}	9^{h}	A. Dickey	53.31
The Alderman	108	3	10	10	10	10	10	C. Corbett	30.12

Jessie Carey began fast, lost some ground for three-eighths, saved ground thereafter and weakened after five-eighths, but outstayed Kulaman. Latter, a forward factor from the start, went wide at the stretch turn but closed gamely and just failed to get up. Honeyfish improved his position gradually after reaching the stretch and finished gamely. Hidden Thoughts raced prominently and weakened in the drive. Wolfy raced wide in his good effort. Katy McCook began fast, suffered from interference in the stretch and could not get up.

$2 mutuels paid: Jessie Carey, win $13.16, place $7.58, show $4.48; Kulaman, place $7.36, show $4.56; Honeyfish, show $6.32.

THIRD RACE—$1300, claiming 2-year-olds, six furlongs: Start good; won driving; place same. Went to post, 3:30 p. m.; at post, ½-minute. Winner, ch. g. 2, by Baby Grand-Rexana. Trainer, J. B. Partridge. Time, :22 4-5, :47 4-5, 1:13 1-5. Value to winner, $1000, $200, $100.

HORSE.	WT.	PP.	ST.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Equivalent Odds to 1.
Upright	111	5	3	2^{h}	3^{3}	1^{h}	1^{no}	A. Richard	2.97
Plumage	104	6	1	$1^{½}$	$1^{½}$	$2^{1½}$	2^{no}	H. Riley	1.70
Homer L.	112	4	5	3^{2}	2^{h}	$3^{1½}$	3^{4}	C. Corbett	3.63
Wee Drop	105	3	7	5^{2}	4^{2}	$4^{½}$	4^{3}	W. Johns	9.07

Taylor Hay Jr.	110	7	6	$6^{½}$	6^{h}	7	7	C. Landolt	21.50

Upright never far back but forced to lose ground, forced Homer L. into close quarters when moving up fast on the stretch turn, headed Plumage when approaching the final eighth, and holding on stubbornly, just lasted. Plumage was taken into the lead, saved ground throughout, was taken under restraint when she went a trifle wide entering the stretch but went resolutely after being headed and just failed to get up. Homer L., probably best and a forward factor from the start, suffered when blocked at the stretch turn and coming to the extreme outside steadily closed up ground and would have won in another stride. Wee Drop began slowly. Gabbo quit.

$2 mutuels paid: Upright, win $7.94, place $3.60, show $2.88; Plumage, place $3.28, show $2.70. Homer L., show $3.20.

FOURTH RACE—$1300, claiming, 3-year-olds and upward, mile and one-quarter—Start good; won driving; place same. Went to post 4:01 p. m.; off at once. Winner, gr. g. 7, by Royal Canopy—Loveless. Trainer, E. L. Snyder. Time, :24 1-5, :48, 1:13, 1:39 4-5, 2:05 4-5. Value to winner, $1000; second, $200; third, $100.

HORSE.	WT.	PP.	ST.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Equivalent Odds to 1
Colonel Board	110	1	1	1^{1}	1^{1}	1^{1}	$1^{½}$	1^{nk}	M. Dupuy	1.33
Bonaire	110	3	3	3^{2}	3^{h}	2^{h}	2^{2}	2^{2}	W. Johns	2.68

Colonel Crump	110	5	7	$2^{1½}$	2^{nk}	3^{1}	4^{1}	$4^{½}$	A. Pendergrass	8.11
Dubric	111	7	5	5^{2}	$4^{1½}$	$4^{½}$	$5^{1½}$	5^{3}	J. Kellum	8.50
Ray Ruddy	106	6	8	8	5^{h}	6^{5}	6^{5}	6^{3}	A. Richard	15.89
Bumpsie Ray	111	2	4	$7^{½}$	8	8	7^{3}	7^{5}	J. Redding	12.18
John Peel	106	8	6	6^{1}	$7^{1½}$	$7^{1½}$	8	8	J. Neel	118.20

Colonel Board, taken into the lead, made the early pace under clever rating, gamely withstood Bonaire under strong riding, and was holding his advantage in the final strides. Bonaire, well up from the start, saved ground the first mile, bumped with Col. Crump when entering the stretch but recovered quickly and failing in his challenge, held on courageously in the final eighth. Tiger Flowers showed an even effort and closed resolutely. Col. Crump forced the pace for seven-eighths, but dropped back when entering the stretch. Dubric weakened.

$2 mutuels paid: Colonel Board, win $4.66, place $2.84, show $2.78; Bonaire, place $2.88, show $3.04; Tiger Flowers, show $13 68.

FIFTH RACE—$10,000 added, the Marquette Handicap, 3-year-olds and up, mile and one-eighth—Start good for all but Reveille Boy; won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:33 p. m. At post 4 minutes. Winner, ch. f., 4, by Messenger-Coucous. Trainer, J. M. Goode. Time, :23 3-5, :47 1-5, 1:11, 1:37 1-5, 1:50. Value to winners, $8400, $2000, $1000, $500. (Equals track record.)

Lady Broadcast raced clear at all times, while keeping up in close during the first five-eighths, was forced to lose considerable ground when Pansy Walker squeezed through at the stretch turn, but quickly pulled clear and, much the best, won easily. Pigeon Hole, in close quarters at the first turn, was saved a good distance off the pace, responded strongly when called on and closed much ground, but could not get to the winner. Pansy Walker, up close from the start, offered a mild bid when entering the stretch, then weakened, but outstayed My Dandy. Latter cut out a fast early pace, saved ground all he way and quit in a drive.

$2.00 mutuels paid: Lady Broadcast, win $10.24, place $5.16, show $3.90; Pigeon Hole, place $6.50, show $3.76; Pansy Walker, show $3.22.

Trek rated along under steading restraint for seven-eighths, gradually worked his way to the front and holding on well, outstayed Our Pal. Latter saved much ground during the first mile, began improving his position thereafter and was wearing down the winner. Jack Horgan raced forwardly from the start and swerved when quitting. Big Gun began slowly. Dacite quit.

$2 mutuels paid: Trek, win $14.74, place $8.46, show $5.10. Our Pal, place $8.40, show $4.68. Jack Horgan, show $3.74.

SEVENTH RACE—$1300, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, mile and one-sixteenth—Start good: won easily; place driving. Went to post, 5:43 p. m. At post one-half minute. Broad Axe, racing improved, forced his way through on the inside at the first turn, easily opened up a commanding lead and maintaining his speed, withstood Fort Dearborn and won easily. Latter never far back and under strong restraint for three-quarters, offered a mild bid in the stretch but could not get to the leader. Lillian T. began slowly, lost some ground and closed resolutely. Gotoit lost ground at the first turn, lacked speed and quit.

$2 mutuels paid: Broad Axe, win, $48.32; place, $20.24; show, $10.14. Fort Dearborn, place $6.18; show, $4.14. Lillian T., show, $4.46.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Lady Broadcast, owned by Rogers Caldwell, Nashville, Tenn., banker and publisher, upheld her reputation as one of the greatest mares of her time when she won the fifth renewal of the $10,000 Marquette Handicap at Lincoln Fields today, running the mile and an eighth in 1:50 to equal the track record made by Sir Harry three years ago.

Lady Broadcast, winner of the $25,000 Lincoln Handicap, richest stake of the meeting, was the second choice in the wagering and paid $10.24 to win in the $2 mutuels, $5.16 to place and $3.90 to show.

Pigeon Hole, Hal Price Headley's gelding, finished second, two lengths back of the winner, with Pansy Walker, the only other filly in the race, third. My Dandy, the early pace maker, was fourth in the field of nine.

Lady Broadcast, ridden by Jocker George Woolf, was never far off the pace, Woolf keeping her under light restraint for three-quarters of a mile. She moved into the lead when starting around the turn into the stretch and never was in danger of defeat thereafter. Pigeon Hole was out⅜run for the first three-quarters, but closed courageously. Pansy Walker, the favorite in the betting, poked her nose in front for a second as My Dandy began to fold up, but Lady Broadcast rushed on past her.

Reveille Boy, the colt which leaped into fame by winning the $50,000 American Derby, ran a disappointing race and never was a contender. The race had a value of $12,020, with $8400 going to Owner Caldwell.

Today's victory was the fourth straight for Lady Broadcast, and she undoubtedly rates as the greatest handicap thoroughbred in the West.

A spectacular spill occurred in the first race a few yards from the finish line when three horses went down, resulting in injuries to Jockeys Eugene James of Louisville and Buddy Hanford of Omaha. James suffered a fractured jaw and was taken to a hospital. Hanford was less seriously injured. Willie Moran, the third rider in the spill was thrown clear and escaped unhurt.

Boxing fans will have plenty of opportunities to witness their favorite sport here during the next few weeks, for tomorrow night there is an amateur program to be held at the Coliseum, then there is the first professional show of the indoor season scheduled at The Arena, Oct. 6, and now Mique Malloy has announced definitely his plan to conduct a professional show at the Coliseum each Friday night, starting Oct. 17.

Three heavyweight and two flyweight bouts top the amateur card at the Coliseum tomorrow, which will be held under the direction of George Wilsman, and which will include a total of 15 or 20 bouts. A National A. A. champion, a Mississippi Valley champion and a Western A. A. U. title-holder, in addition to several boxers from out of town and leading local contenders will appear.

Les Schulte, United States amateur junior heavyweight champion, meets a tough foe in Jimmy Conklin, Mississippi Valley heavyweight titleholder, considered the hardest puncher among the local amateur heavies. Schulte has not dropped a decision since he won his title at Grand Rapids, Mich., last winter.

Harold Hamilton, a former star Texas football player, 6 feet 9 inches tall, will make his local ring debut against Joe Baum, Nashville. Hamilton, under the tutelage of Wilsman, is learning the game rapidly, but Wilsman thought it best to give him some experience as an amateur before dropping into a professional engagement.

Pat Whelan will oppose Charley Shirley of the Elks Club, in the third heavyweight bout on the card, while the two feature flyweight bouts will bring together Frank Doxey, Mississippi Valley senior champion, and Spider Kaderbeck, Valley junior titleholder, and Clarence Terhune and Charley Gelardi of the Overland A. C.

Malloy Plans Weekly Coliseum Shows

Malloy announced last night, after a conference with members of the Frederick W. Stockham Post of the American Legion, that he would act as matchmaker for the post in regular Friday night shows at the Coliseum. Malloy stated he has found that nearly every Friday night is available at the Coliseum, and he believes that shows there every week, with prices of $1, $2 and $3, with a few rows at $5, would show a profit.

In the event that an especially attractive bout is scheduled, it will be taken to The Arena and Malloy said he likely would be able to hold such an event probably once each month.

The plan is to be presented to Seneca Taylor, State Boxing Commissioner for the St. Louis district, tomorrow, and if he approves, Malloy will go ahead with plans for the first show on Oct. 17.

Malloy, incidentally, is having a laugh at the expense of Madison Square Garden because of the calling off of the Sharkey-Campolo bout. Mique had Sharkey all lined up for a bout with Primo Carnera in Chicago, but it was discovered that the Garden held a prior claim on Sharkey's services, and the Campolo bout was arranged. Inclement weather stopped the show Thursday night and it later was abandoned. Now Malloy wants Sharkey to go ahead with his bout with Carnera.

At the time Malloy made the proposal for Sharkey's services, it was understood he offered the American champion $100,000 to meet the giant Italian.

Maxie Rosenbloom At The Arena, Oct. 6

Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, is due here Wednesday for his bout with Jimmy Slattery, to be held at The Arena, Oct. 6, under Joe Broderick. Broderick said yesterday that Rosenbloom has a bout in Birmingham, Ala., tomorrow night and will leave there Tuesday.

Maxie Has Good Record.

In 25 battles last year, Rosenbloom met and defeated virtually every recognized contender for the crown surrendered by Tommy Loughran when the Philadelphian decided to go after heavyweight honors. Rosenbloom lost only two decisions during that intensive campaign, dropping a 10-round go to Frank Lenhart at Spokane, Wash., and another to Slattery in Buffalo, where he subsequently defeated Slattery in 15 rounds.

The coming Arena bout will mark Rosenbloom's seventh encounter with Slattery. According to the record book, the Buffalo battler defeated Maxie four times but three of the setbacks were administered before Rosenbloom achieved serious consideration as a titular prospect. Their first meeting was a six-round affair back in 1925, while the next two were contested over the 10-round route, one in 1927 and the other in 1928. Their fourth meeting was in Philadelphia, last Oct. 14, Rosenbloom winning the decision in 10 rounds.

Slattery Quick on His Feet.

Slattery is a light-footed, clever boxer with a terrific right hand punch and one who shows to his best advantage when opposed to a rushing fighter. In a total of 111 fights, prior to last Jan. 1, he knocked out 42 opponents and won decisions over 58. He lost five decisions and was knocked out three times, but two of his kayo defeats were chalked up back in 1925, when Dave Shade and Paul Berlenbach took his measure. The last was recorded on March 11, 1929, when Braddock flattened him in the ninth round of a New York match.

Tomorrow's Amateur Card.

Les Schulte, National A. A. U. heavyweight champion, vs. Jimmy Conklin, Mississippi Valley champion.

Indiana Takes Horseshoe Titles

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Jimmy Risk of Montpelier, Ind., today won the national amateur horseshoe-pitching championship, and a pair of Indianans, Henry Pergal of Dugger and Orville Harris of Jasonville, took the doubles title back to Indiana.

Pergal also finished third in the singles, with Milton Pate of Moline, Ill., second. Bessie Schneider of Chicago won the women's singles and paired with Zite Schupan of Chicago, who took the women's doubles. Otto Fulner of Chicago and R. L. Simonds of Wilmette, Ill., were runners-up in the men's doubles.

Yankees Buy Frank Barnes.

The New York Yankees have announced the purchase of Pitcher Frank Barnes, southpaw, from the Toronto club of the International League. Barnes had a trial with Detroit last year.

C. B. C. Snatches Fumbles to Win From Cleveland

Showing considerable offensive drive and a tight defence, the Christian Brothers' College eleven of the Prep League opened its 1930 season with a 13-6 victory over Cleveland of the City League yesterday afternoon. The contest, staged at the C. B. C. field, was also the first of the year for the losers, and was well played.

Indirectly, miscues of the opposition were responsible for each of the three touchdowns scored. Cleveland, which drew first blood with a marker early in the first quarter, was handed its score by the C. B. C. pivot man, who sent a pass from center sailing over the receiver's head. The ball landed behind the Brothers' goal line, and in the general scramble that followed, Cubbage succeeded in snaring the pigskin for the losers' only touchdown. The kick for extra point failed.

Blocked Kick Turns Tide.

The winners started theid drive for a score late in the first period, Bob Fuchs and Bob McDonald advancing the ball 35 yards in two tries. The Brothers were stopped, however, and forced to kick. Cleveland failed to gain and on the attempted punt Feeney broke through to block the effort. Gunther recovered for C. B. C. on the 10-yard mark. Fuchs and McDonald went to the one-foot strip in three plays, and from this point Fuchs went over. Fuchs sent a drop kick sailing over the bar for the extra point.

The second score for the winners came a few moments later. Cleveland elected to receive the kick-off following the touchdown, and when Poteet juggled the oval, Joe Bardenheier scooped it up on the 20-yard line. Fuchs, Braudrick and McDonald carried it to the two-yard marker, and McDonald pushed off tackle for the touchdown. The kick failed. C. B. C. had reached the five-yard line and seemed well on its way to another score at the end of the half.

Capt Bob Fuchs, McDonald and Braudrick were outstandinf for C. B. C., while Capt. Moser, Werley and Cubbage did well for Cleveland.

The lineups:

C. B. C.	Pos.	CLEVELAND.
Dougherty	L. E.	Comfort
Feeney	L. T.	Kanoesel
C. Gunther	L. G.	Couch
J. Bardenheier	C.	Moser (C.)

BIG TEN TEAMS WARM UP WITH PRACTICE GAMES

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 27.—Playing the varsity on even terms throughout most of the game, Coach Carl Voyles' freshman team at the University of Illinois today lost a 13 to 0 decision to the first string eleven. The first glimpse of the Illini regulars in action proved disappointing as the heavier freshman team, led by Casey Straw of Moline and George Hays of Decatur, reeled off long runs. Gilbert Berry, Varsity back from Abingdon, lived up to expectations by breaking away for a 20-yard run for the first touchdown.

FESSLER BUCKEYE STAR.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 27.—Ohio State warmed up for its Western Conference football campaign today by walloping Little Mount Union College, 59 to 0. Wesley Fesler, Ohio's All-American end of 1929, showed impressively in his debut at fullback and scored the first touchdown on a three-yard plunge through center late in the first period.

MICHIGAN WINS TWO.

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 27.—University of Michigan won both games of its opening double header today. A team regarded as secondary defeated Denison 33 to 0, and the varsity squad gained a 7 to 0 victory over Michigan Normal. Michigan displayed one of the greatest kickers seen on the local gridiron in Estill Tessmer, who kicked well at all times and sent two prodigious punts that were downed 60 yards in advance of the scrimmage line. One was against a stiff wind.

IOWA DEFEATS BRADLEY.

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Sept. 27.—The University of Iowa football team left barren of stars because of Big Ten slush fund charges and ineligibilities, defeated Bradley Tech, 38 to 12 today. The latest Iowa casualty was Lawrence Reedquist, an end and one of the nine remaining veterans, who was cut from the eligible roster last night because of poor scholastic standing.

MINNESOTA WINS.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 27.—Minnesota uncorked an aerial game which it varied with sweeping end runs, to defeat South Dakota State, 48 to 0, in the season's opener at Memorial Stadium today. It was the first appearance of the Gophers since Fritz Crisler took over the coaching reins and indicated forcefully that the tradition of power football at Minnesota carried on for three decades is to give way to a faster and more open game.

INDIANA BEATS MIAMI.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Sept. 27.—Indiana's veteran backfield men, Ross and Hughes, enabled the Crimson to open the 1930 football season today with a 14 to 0 victory over Miami University. Indiana's touchdowns were made by Ross and Hughes after good gains by the new Crimson backs, Saluski, Edmonds and Dauer, had carried the ball to within striking distance.

FOUR REGULARS, REPORTED LOST TO BEARS, TO PLAY

By James M. Gould.

Washington University's football squad worked while that of St. Louis U. rested yesterday. While the Bears were scrimmaging under the hot sun at Francis Field, the Billikens were listening to a lecture by Coach Walsh on the faults they displayed in their 27-0 victory over Cornell College, Friday night. Washington opens its 1930 season next Saturday night here with Illinois College of Jacksonville, Ill., as their opponents. St. Louis plays Oklahoma City University at Oklahoma City.

There have been many stories to the effect that Washington would have to do without most of its 1929 veterans this season. Reports have been circulated that Capt. Coover, Hornsby, Saussele and Senn would be among the missing because of scholarship difficulties. The facts are that every one of those mentioned in these stories not only is eligible to play, but will play.

Saussele is a member of the Salisburys, the Municipal League baseball pennant-winners, and is playing with them in Columbus. He will report immediately after the return of that team home and is expected to play against Illinois College Saturday night.

Senn, who was supposed to have given up football entirely, reported for duty and worked out yesterday. Hornsby was inactive only because he had suffered several severe bruises in practice. Capt. Coover was among those present during the scrimmage.

Head Coach Al Sharpe says that the only man expected to be on the squad from whom he has not heard is Lichtenfeld. Otherwise, all is well and happy on the squad.

In yesterday's scrimmage, one of the outstanding Washington performers was "Red" Tyrrell, in training for the quarterback position. This lad played on the Bears' freshman team last season and has come fast under the coaching of Dr. Sharpe and his assistant coaches, Bullman, Davis and Thomas.

As for the Billikens, resting yesterday while they listened to the things they had left undone in the opening game of the year, they will resume work tomorrow. The St. Louis coaches showed several backfield combinations, oll of which worked well. There were some noticeable crudities in performance of these men, and some of the linemen, but the general feeling was that these were to be expected in the opening game of the year.

Also, the physical condition of the Billikens left little to be desired. But one substitution was made for injury, Podelwiz, an efficient guard, being taken out in the second half because a Cornellian's foot proved harder than Dave's unprotested head.

DUSEK TO APPEAR ON MAT CARD, OCT. 14

Announcement was made last night by Promoter Tom Packs that he has arranged to hold his next professional wrestling show at the Coliseum, Wednesday night, Oct. 14, with Rudy Dusek of Little Rock as one of the prospective contenders in the main event.

Kola Kwariani of Russia, Roy Steele, Seattle headlock artist, and Dick Shikat of Germany, are among the matmen Packs has under consideration for the Dusek bout.

Officials: Referee—Filley (Lebanon.) Umpire—Gaines (Webster). Head Linesman—Van Reen (Bradley).

A sensational 20-yard run in the last few minutes of play enabled the football team of East St. Louis High to tie Roosevelt of St. Louis, 6—6, on the East Siders' field yesterday. The score saved the home school from defeat after the visitors, with their weight advantage, had kept the ball in the East Siders' territory throughout the game.

In the first period, Roosevelt marched down the field to the 25-yard line, but lost the ball on downs, East punted but it was returned to the 40-yard line and Roosevelt began another attack as the period ended.

Early in the second session, Tutinsky and Koerner pushed to the 30-yard line with off-tackle plays and then Tutinsky went around left end for a touchdown. His kick was low. Tutinsky returned the kick-off to the middle of the field and the ball moved back and forth until the half.

Punting was the order of play in the next canto, but Tutinsky had the advantage of Kavalier, until Roosevelt again began a march to goal at East Side's 30-yard line. Koerner and Beiser pushed through the line for gains and the ball was on the eight-yard line when a fumble by Tutinsky was recovered by East St. Louis and was punted out of danger. The ball again went down the field to the East Siders' 15-yard line, as the quarter ended.

The ball was again lost on the eight-yard line and Kavalier's passed, but it was intercepted by Beiser. However, the line held and East Side gained the ball on downs. The play centered in midfield until late in the game, when Kavalier's kick was fumbled and Roosevelt recovered on its own 10-yard line. An attempted pass by Koerner was intercepted and the East Siders plunged for a first down on the 20-yard line.

On the next play, Brinson made his sensational run around right end for the tying score. The Rough Riders started another march and were on the eight-yard line as the gun sounded.

TOWER A. C. TO HOLD NEXT SHOW, OCT. 14

The next Tower Athletic Club amateur boxing show will take place Oct. 14, at Rodenberg hall, 6200 North Broadway, according to an announcement by Matchmaker Barney McCarthy. McCarthy intends to use some of the winners of tomorrow night's card at the Coliseum in his features. Farrell Moore, Johnny Bush, Elmer Pokinghorne, Werner Kranz, Cliff Doetzel, Woodrow Williams, Les Schulte and Frank Doxey are numbered among the fighters he is attempting to sign for matches.

Webster Plays 7-7 Tie Game With Farmington

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FARMINGTON, Mo., Sept. 27.—Webster High and Farmington High played to a seven tie here this afternoon on the Farmington field. Both of the scores were made in the opening quarter.

Webster kicked and gained the ball on a fumble. Two plunges through center, a five-yard penalty for Farmington and two neat off-tackle runs for Hicks put Webster within three yards of the line. Hicks went through center to score. Good interference enabled Greene to put a placement kick through the posts for the extra point.

BERLINGER WINS NATIONAL A. A. U. PENTATHLON

By the Associated Press.

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 27.—Barney Berlinger, Captain of the University of Pennsylvania track team, put the finishing touches to Jersey City's 300th birthday party before a crowd of 20,000 today by winning the National A. A. U. Pentathlon championship. The sturdy pupil of Lawson Robertson, who won the decathlon at the Penn relays last spring, won the discus throw, finished second in the javelin throw and took third in the 200 meter run to capture the title with 3462.20 points.

Harold Osborne of the Illinois A. C. who won the title in 1929, failed to defend it today.

Cronin of the New York A. C. was second with a point score of 3251 and Plansky, Boston A. A., third with 3223.60.

World record was set in the 148-pound class weight lifting by Fred Weckert of the German American A. C., who scored 924½ points, and for a while it was thought that Bernie Wefer's 30-year-old record for 300 yards was smashed, too. John Lewis of Detroit City College, won the event in 30 1-5 seconds, two-fifth of a second better than Wefers time. A re-survey of the track, however, found the distance 10 yards too short.

The United States and Canada broke even in the international relays. The U. S. team won the mile men's event thanks to brilliant running on the part of Eddie Tolan and Ray Conger, who opened up a big lead. John Lewis and Rupert Beltham held it to the end.

In the women's 440-yard competition, Canada won, due to the illness of Rose O'Neill, of the Canadian team, Miss Eleanor Egg, of Paterson, N. J., filled in as a member of the Canadian team.

The modified marathon, at 12 miles was too short for such men as Clarence de Mar and Jimmy Herrigan to get going and Paul de Bruyne of the Deutscher Sport Club, took honors in a little less than an hour and a quarter. He had a 12-minute handicap. De Mar. who started at scratch, finished twenty-fourth.

Politics Is Dominating Tennis, Tilden Charges; Demands House Cleaning

By William T. Tilden II.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The tennis season is over but much remains to be done before next year if our jubilee year is to be the great success we hope it to be. The year of 1930 has been ripe with the promise of coming greatness through the rise of John Doeg, Sidney Wood, Clifford Sutter, Ellsworth Vines, Frank Shields, the brilliance of Wilmer Allison, the excellence of John Van Ryn and Gregory Mangin. True there has been disappointments in the showing of Frank Hunter, Junior Goen, George Lott and Fritz Mercur. However from a playing standpoint tennis is in a healthy and flourishing condition.

TILDEN.

Politically and unfortunately our tennis is largely governed by politics. All is not so fair. Never has the game been so dominated by politics, governed and organized by men, many of whom are not and never have been players. One cannot blame, one can rather understand if not excuse blunders by men who have never played the game since they have had no experience in meeting the situations that arise in international tennis. We have been indeed fortunate during this era of executive lack of playing knowledge to have had at the head of our Davis cup organization two men like Joseph W. Wear and F. E. Dixon who are both experienced in international sport and strong in executive ability. They made up to some extent what our country lost.

France Feels Lack of United States Reciprocity.

However, another year is at hand, a most important one to the U. S. L. T. A. I am not questioning the sincerity of the present administration nor its fairness or its earnest desire to do all in its power to aid the game of tennis. I only question its judgment and its methods.

I feel very strongly the time has come when the U. S. L. T. A. needs a leader who has a background that includes not only long business training, but also that of a player, an international sportsman and one versed in the niceties of diplomatic correspondence. Weighty problems face our next president. Today, many of the foreign nations consider the U. S. L. T. A. almost ridiculous in its handling of the amateur problem. They wonder why we do not follow the generally accepted standards of the International Federation, without adding a lot of hair splitting rules that only handicap ourselves. They are not pleased with our arrogance toward aiding their teams to play in the United States. They feel we lack a spirit of reciprocity in our policy of international play and they are right.

Rule Issues Need Facing.

What is needed in American tennis today is a man who recognizes that we must establish the friendliest relations with other nations and by our great wealth co-operate in bringing their players to us and ours to them. We need a man strong enough to face the issue on such bugaboos as the player-writer rule, the insurance and bond problem, the ghost writer and all the other amateur-professional angles and lead us to a clear and simplified rule that is at once understandable and enforceable by all. It would require a man of assured social and financial position, who is not affiliated with any of the present existing political factions in the association, yet one who is acceptable to all of them. Such a figure would require much searching to find, and, once found, might refuse the job. But if he could be found, what prestige he would give to the U. S. L. T. A., and what a benefit he would be to the game of amateur tennis!

This much is certain, the present handling of teams, the present attitude of reciprocity, is too wrapped up with political ambitions to give the desired results. I consider the Wightman Cup was lost when Miss Harper, our leading doubles player, was left off the team, so as to include a player from the Missouri Valley Association and hold its votes to the present administration.

Team personnel must be divorced from political aspiration or personal likes and dislikes if success is to come to American teams in future years.

The time is ripe now for every district and sectional association to consider seriously if they desire any changes in the administration next year, and if so they should express themselves to the Nominating Committee at once. We should do all in our power to make our jubilee year a red letter year in American tennis, and the surest way to do it is to make an intelligent and concerted effort to solve such problems as the amateur one, the question of international reciprocity and the divorcement of politics from our teams.

FELIX PLANS TO HOLD "PRO" BOXING SHOW AT SOUTH BROADWAY

Eddie Felix, matchmaker for the Walter Hatzfeld American Legion Post, who held boxing shows at the Battery A Arena during the summer months, has applied to Commissioner Seneca C. Taylor for next Saturday night as the date for his next fistic show. If Felix is given the date he will arrange a program at the South Broadway Athletic Club, where he intends to feature local talent.

He intends to use Ray Alfano, East Side lightweight, who has been winning with great regularity, in one of the bouts. It is very likely that six or seven five-round matches will round out Felix's initial indoor card of the season.

Lou Terry, another local lightweight, is under consideration for another feature match. Terry, too, has been turning in victories quite frequently. The Terry brothers, Peewee and Edgar, a pair of little fellows, also are in line for matches.

Dave Knost, local heavyweight star, will be offered a match with an out-of-town opponent. Knost has been chalking up triumphs with east and Matchmaker Felix states that the next time he uses Knost on one of his cards it will be against an opponent with an established reputation.

CINCINNATI WINS FIRST GAME OF CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 27.—Siebler Tailors, representing Cincinnati in the National Baseball Federation championship, defeated Flint, Mich, 4 to 3, in the first game of the final three-game series here today.

Principia Will Oppose Central In First Game

The football squad of Principia Junior College includes six regulars from last year's team and four players from the Principia A team. Coach George Kilburn also has two reserves from last season, one candidate from the Principia B team in addition to the new material. Principia Junior College will meet Central High in the opening contest of the season at the High School Stadium next Saturday afternoon.

The candidates reported for practice last week and Coaches Kilburn and Assistant Coach Bert Clark have been working the players hard for the first game. The regulars back this year are Carl Becker, halfback; Arthur Nolte, guard; Russell Woodard, end; George Ballhorn, tackle; Robert White end, and Stevens Hunn, guard. Scott Mitchell, tackle, and Bert Barlow, center, reserves last year, are out for the team.

Coach Kilburn will also have four regulars from the Academy team last season. The men are Robert Powers, halfback; James Stotlar, end; Arthur Huey, tackle, and Richard Tullis, halfback. John Foster, end on the B team last year is also a candidate for the Junior College eleven.

Among the new men are two Texas boys, Ernest Thompson and Fred Vernon, guards. Thompson was all-state high school guard last season. Douglas Grimes from Evanston, Ill., looks good at end, while Robert Moody from Iowa is a promising candidate for halfback. Among the others are Richard Taylor, New York, center; Charles Clinton, Detroit, halfback, and Bruce Howell, Honolulu, brother of Billy Howell, who played halfback last year.

There are several candidates who have had practically no football experience on this year's squad. The Junior College team held a scrimmage with the A team on Friday with fair results. There are a number of rough spots to be ironed out before the team meets Central next Saturday, according to the coaches.

Franchelle Watson And E. Cary Link Jr. To Wed Tomorrow

Ceremony, in Newport, Ark., Will Be Attended Only by Members of Two Families, and Reception Will Follow.

OF much interest here is the wedding of Miss Franchelle Hooker Watson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Elbert L. Watson of Newport, Ark., and Edwin Cary Link Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cary Link, 5561 Clemens avenue, which will take place at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Watson, 300 Elm street, Newport.

The ceremony, to be attended only by members of the two families, will be performed by the Rev. Father Mormon of Little Rock, before an altar of pink dahlias and chrysanthemums against a background of autumn leaves. The bride will be attended by her mother as matron of honor, and by her sister, Miss Emily Virginia Watson, as maid of honor. Theodore C. Link will be his brother's best man, and a younger brother, Carr Cabanne Link, groomsman.

Mrs. Watson will be gowned in pink satin, and Miss Watson in blue satin. The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will wear her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin, made with a sleeveless, close-fitting bodice adorned with a bertha of rose point lace, and long full skirt with a built-in train. Her lace veil has been worn by brides in the Cabanne family for several generations.

A large reception, to which friends of the families in Newport, St. Louis and Texas have been invited, will follow. The out-of-town guests will include Mr. and Mrs. Link Sr., parents of the bridegroom; his sister, Miss Virginia Cabanne Link, and Miss June De Vore, all of St. Louis; Miss Maggie Shearn, Houston, Tex.; Mrs. John Harrington, Evanston, Ill., and R. L. Bennett, Dallas, Tex., cousins of the bride.

Mr. Link and his bride will go East on their wedding trip, and will make their home temporarily in Kansas, where he is a civil engineer.

Miss Watson attended the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi, and is prominent socially. Mr. Link is related to many old families in St. Louis. His mother was Virginia Cabanne before her marriage, and his grandfather was the late Sarpy Carr Cabanne. He is a lineal descendant of Pierre Laclede, one of the founders of St. Louis. His paternal grandfather was the late Theodore C. Link, pioneer St. Louis architect.

Young Matrons Join V. P. Court of Honor

AN interesting feature of the Veiled Prophet ball this year, which will take place a week from next Wednesday evening at the Coliseum will be the presence of a group of young matrons in the Court of Honor. Many of these young women, during their debut year served the Veiled Prophet, as maids of honor and are making their second obeisance to the monarch. Their participation in the court will also serve as a charming prelude to the entrance of the Veiled Prophet Queen, her special maids and maids of honor.

In this particular group of matrons are: Mrs. Oliver J. Anderson, who was Miss Jane Bemis; Mrs. William H. Cunliff, who was Miss Eleanor Richards; Mrs. Dudley French, who was Miss Grace Allen; Mrs. Louis Dennig, who was Miss Marie Disbrow; Mrs. Harold T. Jolley, who was Miss Elizabeth Kennard; Mrs. Donaldson Lambert, who was Miss Lucy Ludington; Mrs. William H. Luyties, who was Miss Louise Bemis; Mrs. Lansden McCandless, who was Miss Eleanor Stanard; Mrs. Boyle Rodes, who was Miss Harriet Moore; Mrs. John Gates Williams, who was Miss Mary Randolph Gordon; Mrs. Guy W. Oliver, who was Miss Leah Van Riper; Mrs. Howard V. Stephens, who was Miss Eloise McLeod; Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., who was Miss Audrey Faust.

Girl Scout Committee To Plan Byrd Lecture

THE general committee of the Girl Scouts of St. Louis and St. Louis County will meet on the lawn of Mrs. Charles M. Rice's home, Clayton road and Big Bend boulevard at 4 p. m., Friday, Oct. 10, to make plans for the illsutrated lecture of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd at the Odeon on the evening of Nov. 14.

More than 100 patronesses are expected to attend the conference, which has been called by Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, Mrs. John T. Davis Jr., Mrs. Edward A. Faust and Mrs. Guy W. Oliver.

The Girl Scout Council will meet at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday at the "Little House," 4253 Magnolia avenue, to plan for the Oct. 10 meeting.

Schock, Mrs. Gladys Little Carew, Mrs. Edward G. Hotchkiss and Mrs. Garneau Weld.

The first of the Saturday afternoon tea dances given by Mrs. Julia Laughlin Boehmer and her son will be held Oct. 11, at 4:30 o'clock with Mrs. Cupples Scudder and Miss Janet Wallace as hostesses. The chaperons will be Mrs. Millikin, Mrs. Calhoun, Mrs. John R. Shepley and Mrs. William Francis Niedringhaus.

At the Junior League Club rooms in the Galeria building, 4914 Maryland avenue, preparations are under way for dancing classes for Junior League children and their friends under the direction of Harry W. Trimp, who successfully conducted similar classes last year. The senior class will meet Saturday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock beginning Oct. 11, with dinner preceding the dancing for those who make reservations. The juniors will meet Saturday afternoons from 5 to 6 o'clock, and the first class will meet Tuesday afternoons from 4 to 5, beginning Oct. 14.

Some of the parents of the pupils for the season of 1930-31 are Mrs. L. Warrington Baldwin, Mrs. Kenneth H. Bitting, Mrs. Harold M. Bixby, Mrs. Karl Morgan Block, Mrs. George Leighton Bridge, Mrs. William H.

MISS VIRGINIA EGGMANN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Manewal Eggmann, Kingston drive, East St. Louis, has chosen Oct. 15 as the date of her wedding to Frederick W. Dieffenbach III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Dieffenbach Jr. of Asbury Park, N. J. The ceremony will be performed at 8 o'clock in the evening, at the Trinity Lutheran Church, Nineteenth street and Summit avenue, East St Louis, and will be followed by a reception at the St. Clair Country Club.

Miss Penelope Borden, New York, will be maid of honor, and Mrs. Theodore A. Eggmann, sister-in-law of the bride, matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Becky Dickinson, Charleston, W. Va.; Miss Marian Ristine, Evanston, Ill.; Miss Phyllis Groves, St. Louis, and Miss Stella Mae Hamlin, East St. Louis.

Theodore A. Eggmann will be best man, and Carlton Rowand, Camden, N. J.; Clelland White, Wichita, Kan.; Marcellus Groves and Theron Rhodes Green, St. Louis, and David Baer, Belleville, Ill., groomsmen. Dr. Henry Summa and Otto Kortkamp will be ushers.

The out-of-town members of the wedding party will arrive Oct. 7, and will attend the Veiled Prophet ball.

WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Leuthouser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Leuthouser, 418 Erber avenue, Kirkwood, and Elmer Carleton Trisler, son of T. Trisler, 3518 Connecticut street. The wedding will take place Oct. 25.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Doerr, 4422 Wallace avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Estelle Doerr, and Raymond Kracht.

A quiet wedding was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sandvoss, 797 Lockwood avenue, Kirkwood, Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 16, when their daughter, Miss Mercille Sandvoss became the bride of William A. Anderson, son of Mrs. Estelle Anderson of St. Louis.

The bride, gowned in white satin and tulle, and wearing a veil caught to her hair with orange blossoms, was given in marriage by her father. Miss Sandvoss was attended by her cousin, Miss Onetta Kornfeld of St. Louis, who wore a dress shading from pale orchid to a deeper tone with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of talisman roses. The best man was Dr. E. Lambrechts, also of St. Louis.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Bart Keany, pastor of Visitation Church. Immediately following the wedding a dinner was served at the Knights of Columbus Club in St. Louis, where a reception was held from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will spend their honeymoon visiting Niagara Falls, Montreal and New York. They will reside in Kirkwood and will be at home after Oct. 5.

derson, Tenn., have announced the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mabel Bevel, to Paul Lindy on Saturday, Sept. 20, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Robert C. Ingle, 3202 North Nineteenth street, St. Louis. The ceremony was read by the Rev. Oliver Shanks, pastor of the Fourth Baptist Church in the presence of relatives and friends.

The home was decorated with flowers against a background of ferns. The bridal party stood before an improvised altar of flowers and greenery. The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Robert C. Ingle and was attended by the bridegroom's sister, Miss Alma Lindy as maid of honor and Mrs. Robert Ingle as matron of honor. Robert Prichett was best man. The bride wore a costume of navy blue with matching hat and slippers and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride's roses.

A dinner and reception followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Silberstine, 5623 Theodosia avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lillian to Lester Harold Gast, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gast, 3700 Evans avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Agee, 5210 Paulian avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mildred M. to Harry L. Taylor Jr., son of Mrs. Harry Taylor of Pittsburg, Pa., Monday, Sept. 15, the Rev. Walter Langtry of Clayton officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor left immediately, by motor, for Pittsburg, where they will make their home.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Perle Prosser, daughter of Mrs. W. L. Goodman, 7564 Jerome avenue, Maplewood, to Michael G. Kletz, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Kletz of Long Island, N. Y. The wedding took place in New York Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. Kletz and his bride will make their home in a pent house apartment at 33 Fifth avenue.

Parties and Other Social Functions

MISS BEULAH ALYS BABCOCK, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight F. Babcock, 597 Purdie avenue, University Hills, and a senior at Mary Institute, gave a dinner dance Friday night at her home for Miss Dorothy Dobson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roy Calvin Dobson, who has just returned with her family from a three months' trip abroad. There were 18 guests. The dinner table was lighted with ivory tapers surrounding a centerpiece of red roses, the senior class colors.

Miss Cecilia Stelzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Stelzer, 7522 Comfort avenue, Maplewood, gave a luncheon bridge Sept. 20 at the Osage Country Club in honor of Miss Janice Bridell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bridell, 416 Park road, Webster Park, whose approaching marriage to Russell A. Hoffman has been announced. During the afternoon a miscellaneous shower was given for the prospective bride.

Mrs. E. C. Jenkins, 7526 Big Bend boulevard, Webster Groves, gave a trousseau dinner and bridge party Thursday for her daughter, Miss Helen Jenkins, whose marriage to Harry A. Snure is to take place Oct. 1.

Under the caption "The Coast of Bohemia," an informal vaudeville program will be presented by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas De Vere, for members of the Town Club next Friday at 8 p. m. The entertainers will also give horoscope readings. Miss Marie Marceno will sing in costume.

Hostesses include Mrs. Frank Y. Gladney, Miss Marie Ames, Mrs Alpha Hisey, Dr. Pearl Thompson, Miss Edna Deal and Miss Dorothy Zetlmeist.

Mr. and Mrs. James Stevens of the State Apartments, were entertained at an informal reception Monday evening by W. B. Bell, 465 Laurel avenue. Stevens was a member of the Municipal Opera two seasons ago. George Werner, pianist, accompanied in songs and played a group of piano numbers. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Roderick.

Miss Eugenia Getner, 18 North Taylor avenue, gave a musical tea Thursday for her former pupil, Robert Betts. Betts won a fellowship in the Juilliard School of Music in New York last October, which pays the expenses of a trip to Europe with five month's study. While abroad Betts studied opera with the director of the Berlin opera house and was engaged to sing five operas with the Little Theater Company of New York, of which Otto Kahn is president.

Thursday, Betts gave a program of German songs, and arias from Lohengrin and Louise. Mrs. Frank Habig was at the piano.

The first fall luncheon and meeting will be held by the Woman's Association of the Second Presbyterian Church, Tuesday, at 401 North Taylor avenue. These quarters are being occupied temporarily, until the new educational building of the church is completed. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock.

The chairmen of the various committees of the St. Louis University High School (Backer Memorial) Mothers' Club held a meeting on Tuesday to perfect arrangements for the card party to be given on the afternoon and evening of Oct. 15. Mrs. A. A. Cervantes, general chairman, presided, with Mrs. John J. Scherer Jr. as treasurer. Supper will be served during the evening.

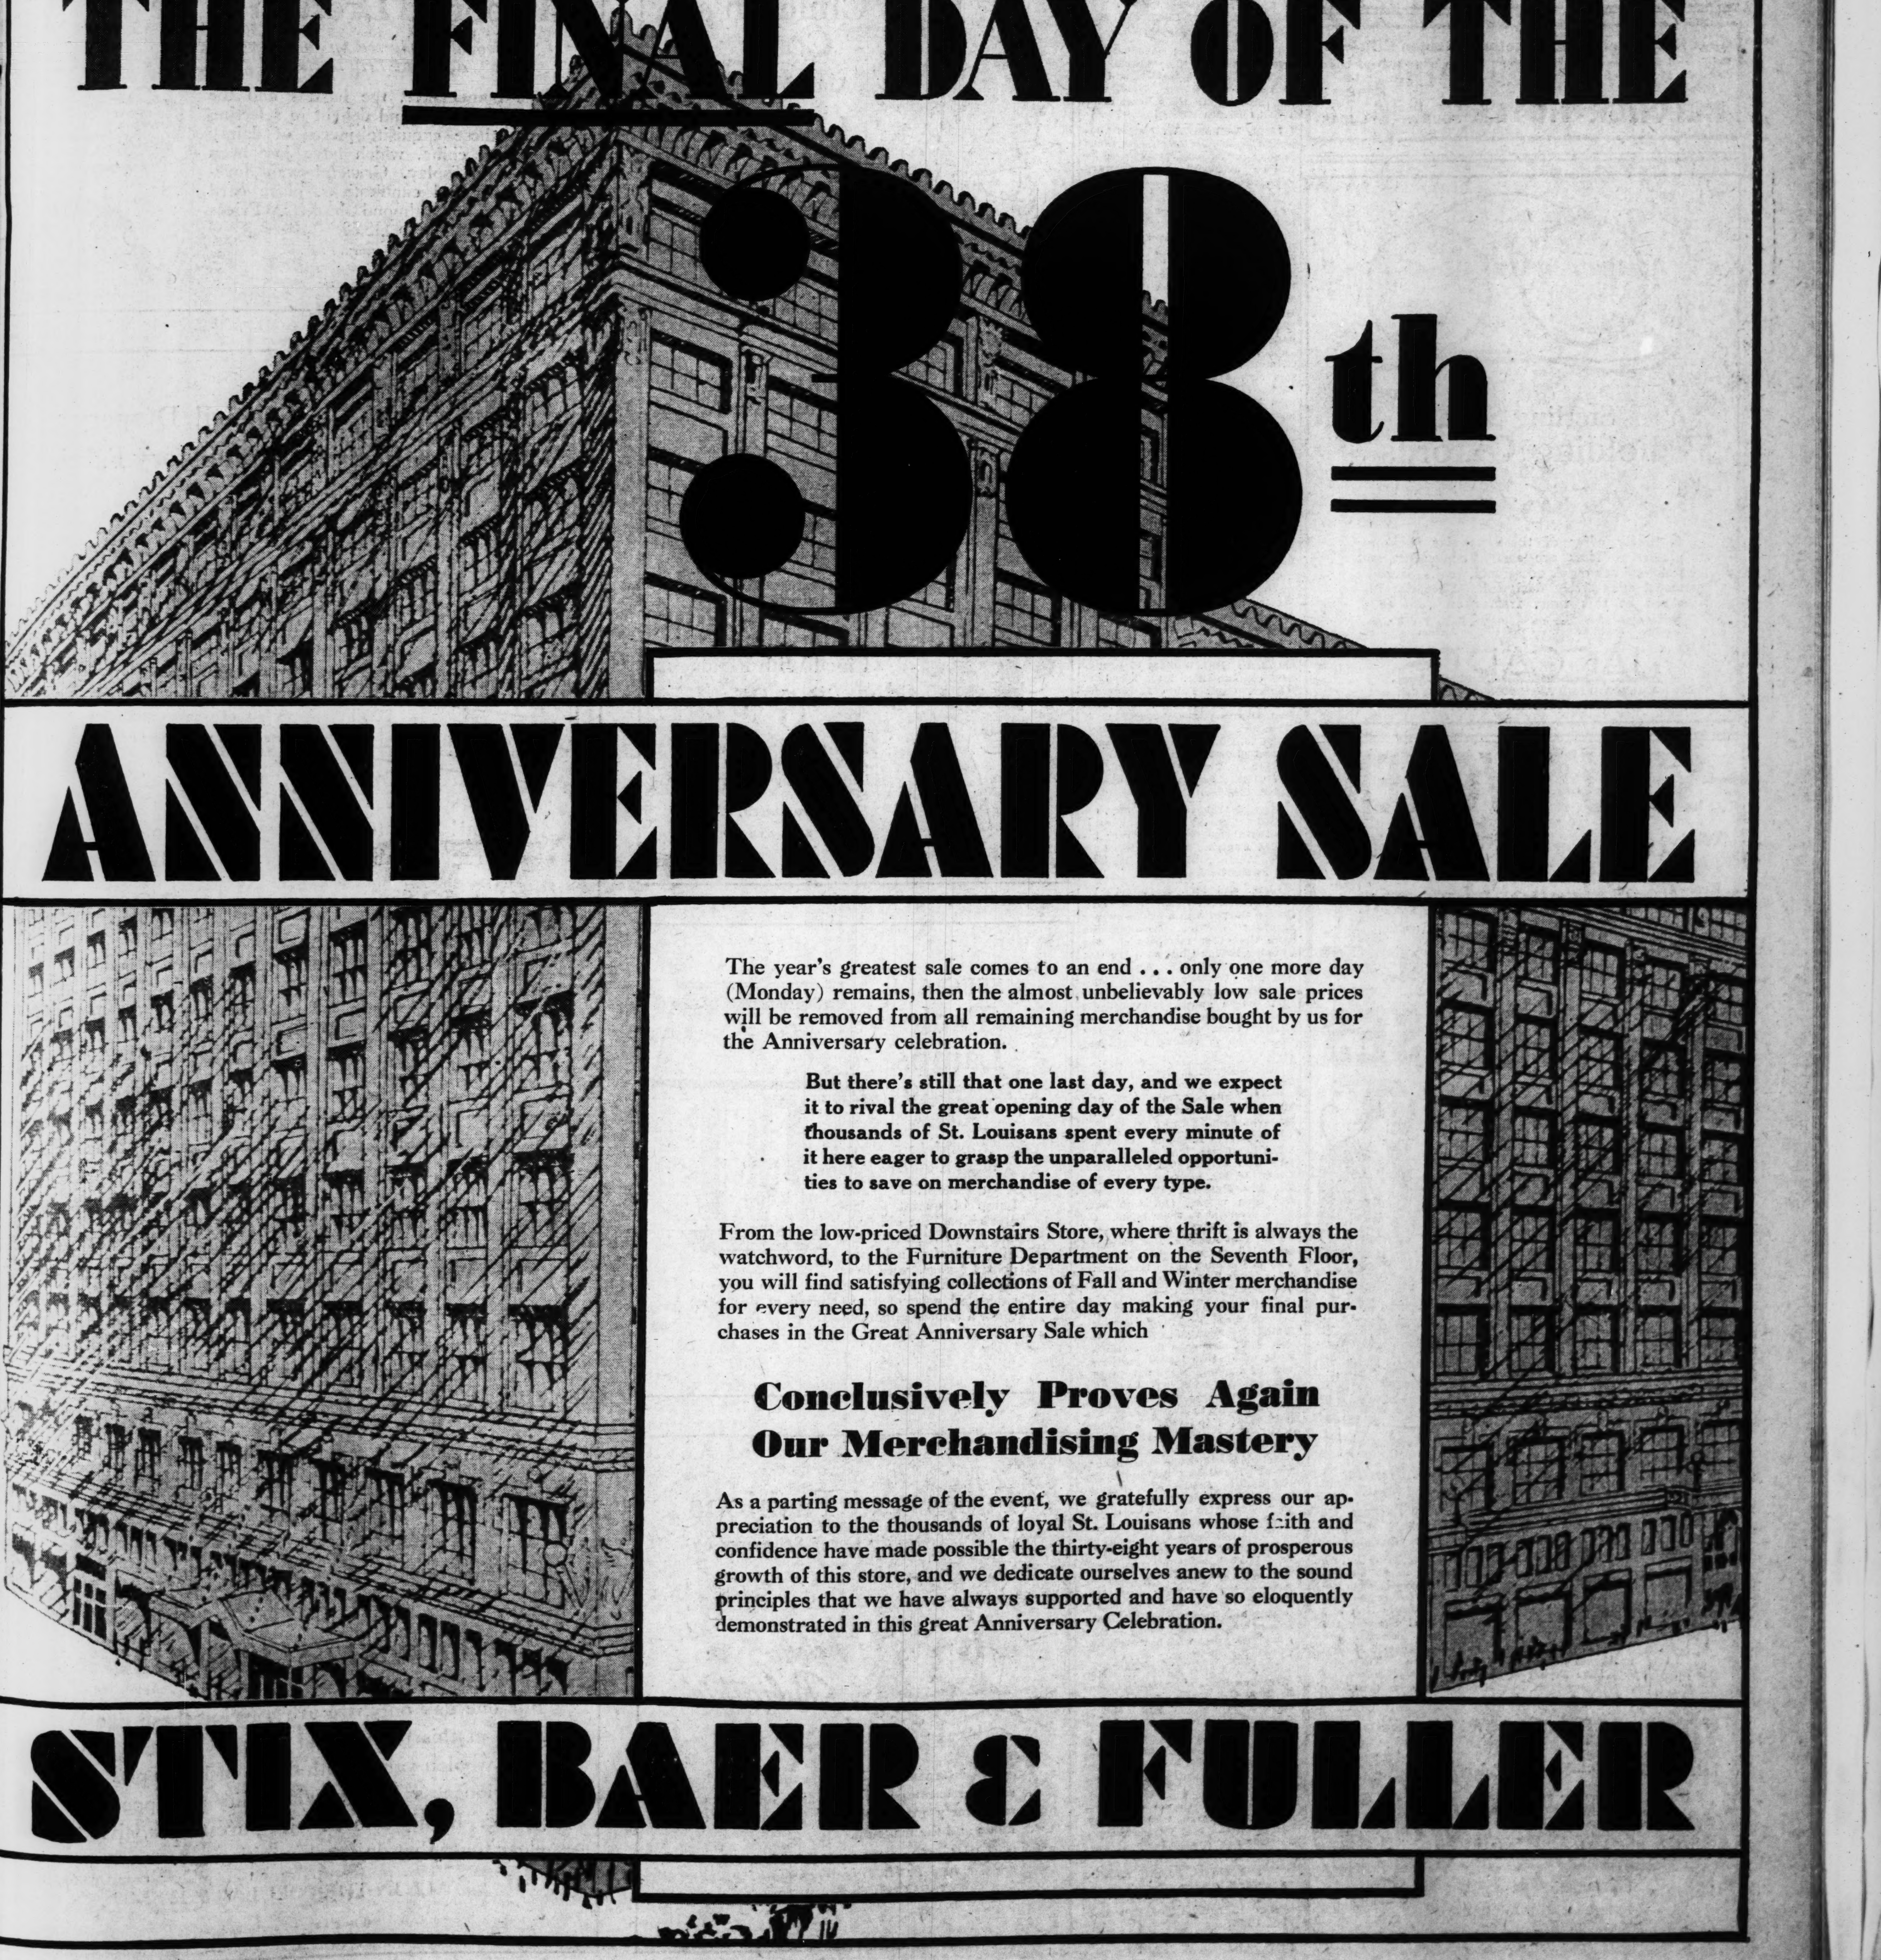
MONDAY SEPTEMBER 29th THE FINAL DAY OF THE 38th ANNIVERSARY SALE



The year's greatest sale comes to an end . . . only one more day (Monday) remains, then the almost unbelievably low sale prices will be removed from all remaining merchandise bought by us for the Anniversary celebration.

But there's still that one last day, and we expect it to rival the great opening day of the Sale when thousands of St. Louisans spent every minute of it here eager to grasp the unparalleled opportunities to save on merchandise of every type.

From the low-priced Downstairs Store, where thrift is always the watchword, to the Furniture Department on the Seventh Floor, you will find satisfying collections of Fall and Winter merchandise for every need, so spend the entire day making your final purchases in the Great Anniversary Sale which

Conclusively Proves Again Our Merchandising Mastery

As a parting message of the event, we gratefully express our appreciation to the thousands of loyal St. Louisans whose faith and confidence have made possible the thirty-eight years of prosperous growth of this store, and we dedicate ourselves anew to the sound principles that we have always supported and have so eloquently demonstrated in this great Anniversary Celebration.

Y.W.C.A. Fall Festival On Tuesday Evening

THE fall festival of the Young Women's Christian Association, 1411 Locust street, which will be held Tuesday at 7:45 p. m., will be the first social event held there since redecoration of the interior of the building during the summer. The coronation of the harvest queen, who will be attended by her 40 maids of honor, will disclose the identity of the chosen girl who most nearly exemplifies the all-round life of the Y. W. C. A. girl.

The "'Y' Review," a series of short stunts, will follow. "Fashion Trends," will be the subject of a talk by C. L. Brittain. Mrs. Thomas L. Anderson is general chairman and Mrs. James Hooke is program chairman. Hostesses for the evening will be members of the board of directors, who will assist Mrs. L. B. Pendleton, chairman. Members of the Y. W. C. A. and their friends will be welcome.

Friendly Club Program.

The Friendly Club will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Barr Branch Library. A program will be given and visitors will be welcome.

Missouri Girl Made Happy
MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition mother can easily correct.
Take the experience of Mrs. H. G. Witte, 8845 Lawn Ave., St. Louis, who says: "Nothing seemed to please Clara Marie. She was fretful, feverish, suffered a lot from colds. She was constipated.
"We saw California Fig Syrup advertised and got some. It relieved her trouble promptly; made her bright and happy again. We have used it for three years now for all Clara Marie's upsets, and heartily recommend it to all parents."
Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love its rich, fruity flavor. Doctors recommend its gentle aid to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, headaches; to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments.
Appetite is increased by the of California Fig Syrup; breath sweetened; coated tongue is clear digestion and assimilation are aid Weak bowels and stomach strengthened. It helps listless, children to become strong and getic again.

Hair that sparkles!

No one can deny the importance of having the hair arranged in the style best suited to the individual type. Much of the effect is lost, however, unless the hair is kept soft, abundant, lustrous.

A million busy women and girls know the easiest way to keep the hair in perfect condition is with Danderine. The first application will show you how marvelously it removes excess oil from the hair; cleanses it; makes it sparkle with new life and lustre. It's so simple to use Danderine. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you arrange your hair! The consistent use of Danderine will help dissolve the worst dandruff; soothe, heal the scalp; stimulate the growth of long, silky abundant hair.

Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. It makes the hair easy to manage; holds it in place for hours. "Set" your waves with it and see how much longer they stay in.

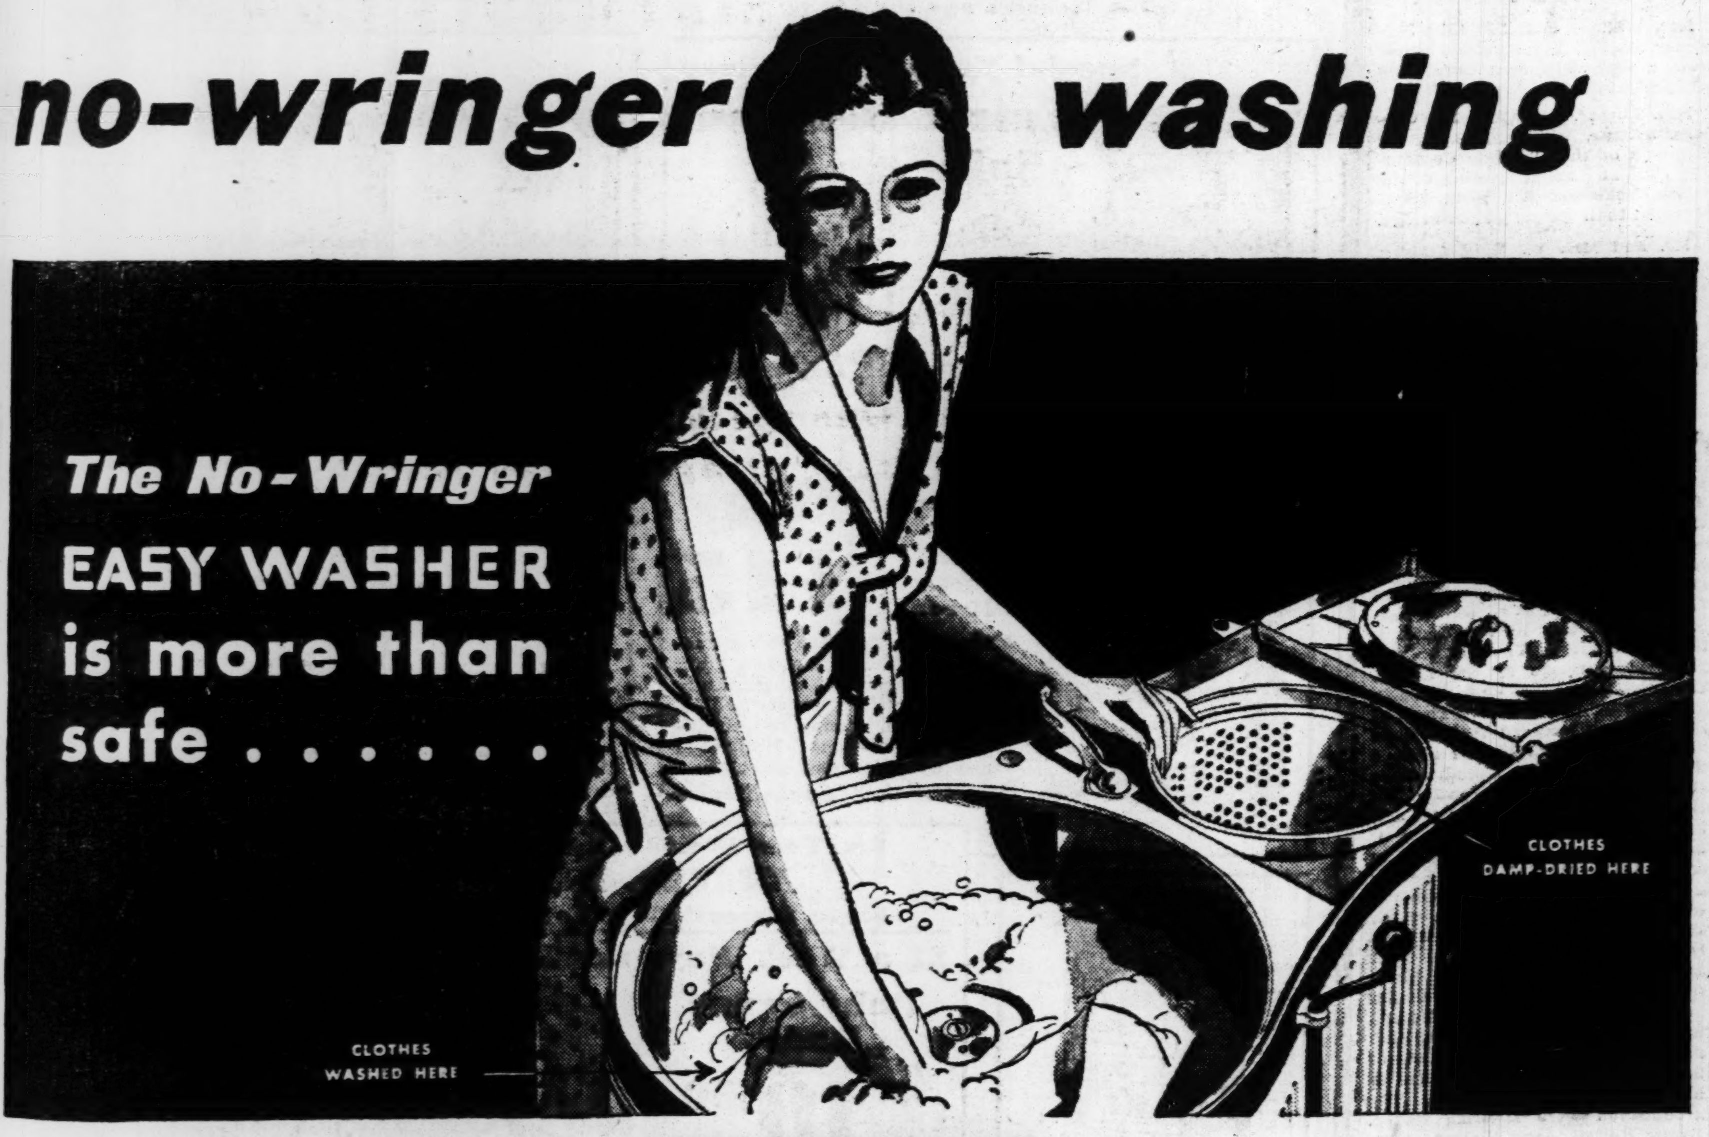
Any woman could have foretold no-wringer washing



The No-Wringer
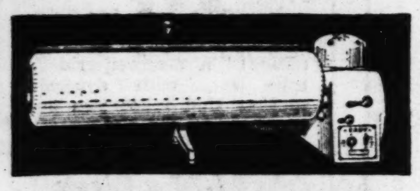
safe . . . . . .

When the first damp-dryer replaced the wringer on an EASY Washer, any woman could have foretold what would happen: She would have known that the new device solved an old problem! Perhaps the first appeal would have been that of absolute personal safety.

But the new EASY does away with more than a wringer. It saves more time, more strength, more clothes than any other washer. With it there are no more broken buttons, flattened hooks or fasteners. No straining of fabrics, cracked silk or rayon garments. No stretched or distorted woolen garments. No deep hard-to-iron wrinkles in clothes. No water to lift or carry. No effort in rinsing or wringing.

Sounds miraculous maybe, but the no-wringer EASY Washer does these things. It washes more gently and thoroughly than human hands . . . Cleanses, rinses and damp-dries at the same time : : : Returns rinse and blue waters to proper tubs . . . Empties itself into sink or drain when through washing . . . All at a touch of a switch, the moving of a lever. No wonder this new machine today outsells all previous EASY types in the ratio of eight to one!



You'll be proud of tablecloth ironed in 5 minutes

New fingertip control EASY Ironer is the simplest to operate ever built. You can iron a tablecloth in 5 minutes and sit comfortably while you do it. Shirts, dresses—anything can be ironed better than by hand—and in a fraction of the time. Step into nearest EASY dealer's store and see how easy to operate this new ironer is. Iron several pieces yourself. Three models—all full-automatic—at lowest prices.

EASY Washers also supplied with 4-cycle gasoline motor for homes without electricity

Free Trial Offer

There is one way to prove the sensational advantages of the no-wringer EASY Washer: Try it in your own home on your own clothes. See how you can wash, rinse and damp-dry your clothes at one time. See how it saves more time and labor than any other washer.

Simply call your nearest EASY dealer. He is listed in your telephone directory. He will bring a new EASY to your home and show you a modern miracle in washing clothes.

SCOTTISH ESTATES FOR SALE

No Buyers Despite Scenery and Sporting Possibilities.

By the Associated Press.

GLASGOW, Sept. 27.—A million acres of Scotland, one-ninteenth of the country's total acreage is for sale and nobody wants to buy it.

Most of the land is sporting ground, but experts declare it can be cultivated. One agent has 750,000 acres for sale. In Argyllshire 14 estates are in the market, and some of Scotland's loveliest scenery is included in 38,000 acres for sale in the North. The Duke of Montrose recently offered to sell 40,000 acres—including Ben Lomond—but he did not receive a single offer.

Physician With Byrd Expedition Tells How Health of Members Was Safeguarded in Antarctic

Living in Germ-Free Climate, Proper Exercise and Carefully Planned Diet Kept Illness Away—Frozen Faces and Limbs.

By Dana Coman, M. D.

Physician With the Byrd Expedition to the Antarctic.

THE Byrd Expedition arrived at its home port with the personnel intact and every man well. When one considers the hazards that had to be surmounted and the size and widely scattered distribution of its contingents one begins to appreciate that such a record is extraordinary. No former expedition ever had such good fortune. It would be difficult even to find a similar group of men who in ordinary life would all be well at the end of two years.

Pure chance cannot account for the uniformly good fortune that seems to follow Byrd. Our well-being in the Antarctic was the natural sequence of the influence exerted by Admiral Byrd, Bernt Balchen and Lawrence Gould, who from the start, having given proper consideration to the records of former expeditions, worked incessantly on safety factors and efficiency.

Citing a single instance, it is perhaps not often realized that we owe to the late Fridtjof Nansen not only the first actual use of skis and of dog teams and light sledges in polar exploration, but also the practical means of preparing hot food on long sledge trips; and even less is it realized that any one of these items might be specifically life-saving.

The medical program, while largely concerned with definite preventive and precautionary measures, aimed first of all toward building up the resistance of the individual to the unusual demands of the environment. On other similar expeditions the least scratch toward the end of the season was likely to lead to ulceration and grave illness.

Keeping Men Mentally Fit.

We early realized the necessity of fostering a healthy mental equilibrium among men some of whom were liable to have difficulty in adjusting themselves to a social situation from which there was no escape. Accordingly, from the very first a definite yet reasonably elastic policy was adopted toward each specific individual type. Our general freedom from sickness speaks well enough for this program. Words of advice were dispensed more liberally than pills.

Extended advice as to proper foods once given was thereafter never required on the ships or at Little America. The proper foods were there, and well prepared and varied daily menus were provided by Tennant and Reichert, each of whom was a good combination of steward and chef. The men found little difficulty in becoming accustomed to the necessarily coarse diet and there was never any serious dissatisfaction with the food. All of us grew to think of caribou hair and occasional other equipment as really part of the soup.

Health is so largely a matter of nutrition that once proper food is assured with reasonable periods of work and rest, sickness is practically confined to the accidental. When one appreciates that careful planning was the largest factor in the safe return of the expedition, that due to hard work done in the early days of preparation we had none of the common ills of dietary or other indiscretions, and that we were able to throw off such other ills as arose from the unusual environment, no further words of praise need be given to the stewards, Greason, Tennant and Reichert, on whom this work fell.

A Health Resort.

Little America was a health resort. Previous expeditions had reported life in the Antarctic a picnic once one was settled there, and true enough, we found the only hazards or real discomforts were on the trail away from the camp. At Little America were warmth, dry beds, food in variety, and congenial diversions. We lived, as one would in an Alpine chalet on a high mountain pass, an active and vigorous existence, free from temptation or the enervating demands of a feminine society.

Byrd kept himself fit by walking out every day whatever the weather. In addition he was one of the few consistent users of the gymnasium. Here he practiced weight-lifting and went through a series of exercises he had developed for every muscle of the body. Here, also, Bernt gave boxing instruction and sparred daily with several of the boys. Some of the rest of us went out occasionally, but found that after the regular daily duties the non-productive gymnasium work demanded just too much moral tenacity for our weak wills.

Occasionally in the afternoon we did our laundering. This involved carrying three times as much snow as the water needed, robbed the hut of just the amount of heat required to melt the snow, took several hours, and could much easier be put off until some other time. Hence, when we changed our shirts we generally wore the new one until it was definitely grayer than the old one, and then putting on the first one, which was thus comparatively clean, we found we could go on almost indefinitely, always having "another" shirt in reserve for special occasions.

Without Germs.

At the outset we realized that we were going to a practically germ-free place, where we ourselves would bring the only disease. It was essential that men, dogs and ships be kept clean and as free from disease-carriers as possible. This was by no means a simple program. Although the ships were repeatedly fumigated and rid of pests of all kinds, it was found impossible to carry fresh provisions in the tropics and keep free from insect pests, and when in New Zealand the dogs were taken aboard we saw the last of the scrupulously clean decks.

The condition of the men could be controlled to a certain extent and immunization programs carried out. We had one mild epidemic of "flu," which lasted three or four days after we had touched at one tropic port where the disease was prevalent at the time, but when we left our last contact with civilization we were remarkably free from the common respiratory and other minor affections.

As there was no significant disease among us and as a long incubation period had been passed without event before we had settled at our destination, we felt assured that at Little America a host of possible ills had been eliminated. We had the dogs, of course, or we would have reached the Antarctic practically free of any pathogenic organisms. However, we had no fear of common colds, sore throat, or any bronchial or pulmonary complaint. The ability of the men to shake off various slight affections before they were well started was largely due to the preliminary treatments the men had received before the expedition left New York.

An Amateur Crew.

With the amateur crew we had, heaven knows why we never had any serious accidents. We became accustomed to freezing the face so that those of us who were out in cold weather paid little attention to it and our friends were the ones mostly concerned for us. It was not the same, however, with

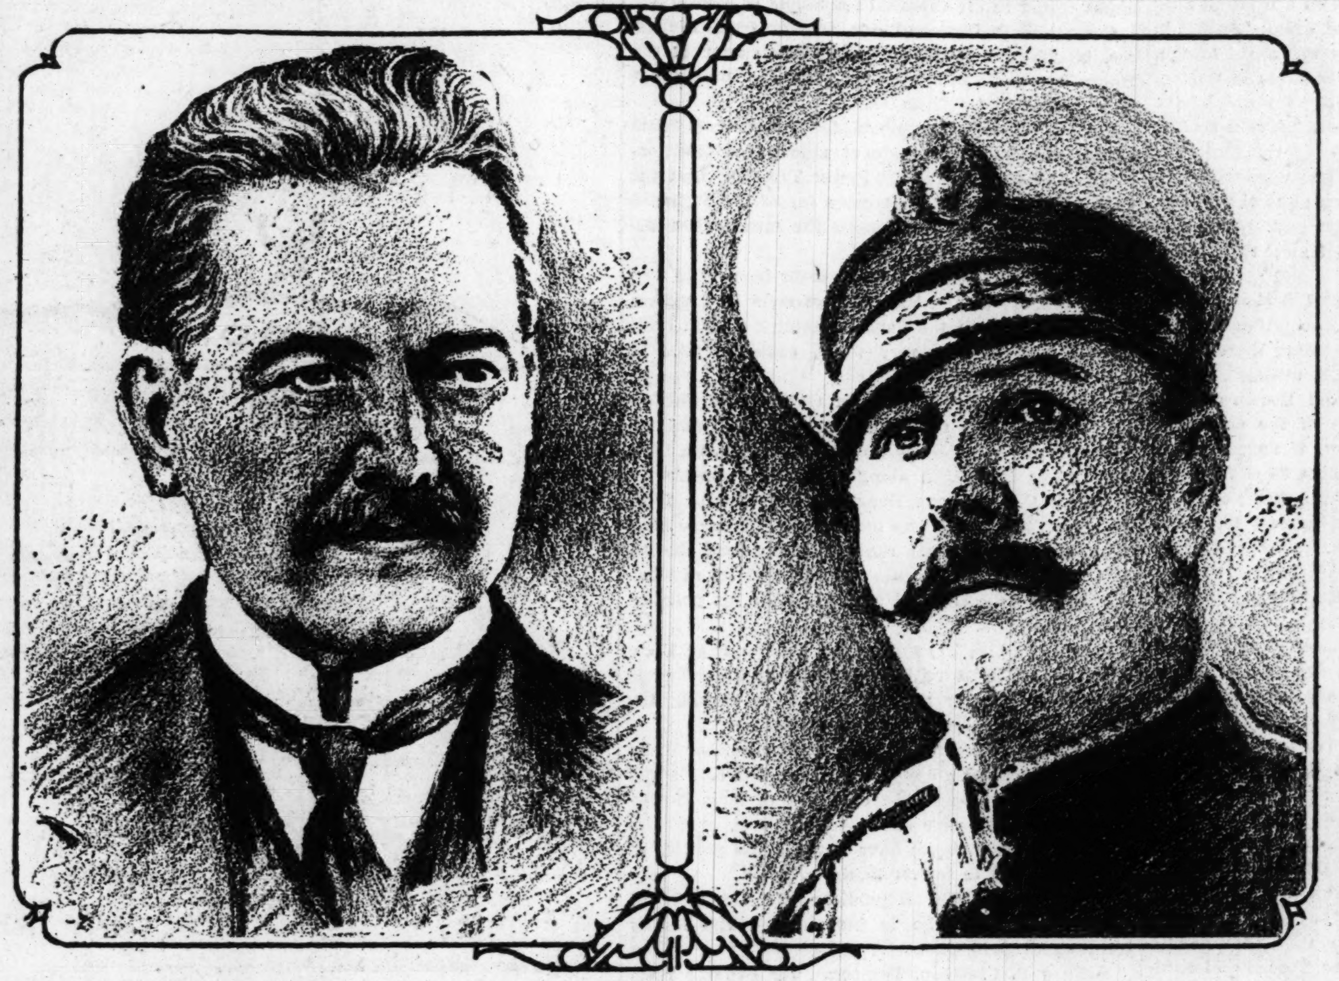
Argentina's Revolution a House-Cleaning After Years of Political Mismanagement

New Provisional President Indicts His Predecessor



The former President of Argentina, Hipolito Irigoyen, and his successor in office after a quick revolution, Gen. Evaristo Uriburu.

Irigoyen Policies, It Is Declared, Almost Doubled the National Debt and Disorganized Business and Finance — Incompetence and Bribery Attributed to Lesser Government Employes.

By PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT JOSE E. FRANCISCO URIBURU.

(Copyright, 1930.)

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 20.

REVOLUTION came to Argentina because its people felt that the policies of Dr. Hipolito Irigoyen would carry the country to ruin. In order fully to comprehend the extent of the revolutionary movement, it is necessary to contemplate the general situation of the country from the year 1916 to the revolution itself. Later, in this series of articles, I will tell the program of the provisional government at home and abroad.

Properly speaking, the evils of the country began with the first administration of Dr. Irigoyen. In effect, one may say from a purely social viewpoint, from the very first hour of his administration Dr. Irigoyen failed to seek the collaboration of the ablest men. With some exceptions the executive corps of the first administration were very inferior when we consider the difficulties of the positions they had to fill. Thus, results of the lack of co-ordination in the public services were soon seen. The lack of talent was noticeable in the slowness of governmental proceedings and the disorderly application of the means of government.

With the passage of time, these defects were accentuated and many others appeared. Little by little departmental laxity began to envelop everything. The payment of tips or gratuities came to be the most efficacious method by which one could obtain the speedy settlement of any official business.

Opposition Always Drowned Out.

The first administration of Irigoyen was distinguished by grave allegations against the honesty of its proceedings, these denunciations being made in Congress by responsible deputies who like the present Minister of the Interior proposed in the Chamber of Deputies that impeachment proceedings against the President be brought forward in the Senate in accordance with the Argentine constitution. In this period also came the celebrated accusations against the Minister of Finance and the Minister of Agriculture made by the same deputy, with respect to the business of the exportation of sugar, merchandise in transit, exportation and transportation of gold, dishonest negotiations touching the state railroads, exportation of wheat, the purchase of flour and the purchase of jute sacks and sisal-fiber.

The considerable majority which the Irigoyen forces always had at their disposal always drowned the voice of opposition. It was not possible to adopt measures that seemed necessary to satisfy public demands for redress. And the evil that might have been entirely extirpated by means of energetic corrective legislation extended itself to all the organs of government, thus infecting them.

At the end of the first presidency of Irigoyen his prestige had waned considerably on account of the diffusion through the entire body politic of the inefficient management of his administration. But Irigoyen, with a cunning that everybody recognized, immediately sponsored the candidacy of Dr. Alvear as his successor. Alvear possessed a charming personality; he was widely cultivated socially and his honor was indisputable.

Alvear represented, for the great majority of the opposition, a hope for a betterment of conditions. But despite his own power and that of his collaborators in the government, the influence of Irigoyen fettered his activities. Alvear sacrificed public interests to a poorly conceived and little understood sense of loyalty, as was seen when he himself was obliged to recognize his impotence in his efforts to arrest the triumph of Irigoyen.

Thus we arrive at the second administration of Irigoyen which was made possible by a widespread wave of self-seeking. Many of those who voted for him did so in the hope of deriving personal profit from his administration. These ambitions were fostered by Irigoyen.

In his two administrations Irigoyen's policies totally disorganized the country in every respect. In the institutional order of things he mocked at the constitution and crushed the autonomy of the provincial governments where he had intervened by simple decrees and for causes both arbitrary and capricious. Once he intervened because a provincial governor, although a model executive, such as Marcelino Ugarte in the province of Buenos Aires, was his adversary; at other times, as in La Rioja, because there existed a vacancy in the Federal Senate and he had not yet obtained the majority in the legislature of the Province necessary to assure the election of one of his followers. He intervened in Tucuman because a possible candidate for governor of that province, even though of his own party, was not acceptable to him.

Mismanagement in Money Matters.

All of these interventions responded to the crudest concepts of "Personalism" (the Irigoyenista were also known as "Personalists") which was endeavoring to impose itself by all possible methods, including those of confiscation of private wealth, such as have occurred in the Provinces of Mendoza and San Juan.

In the Department of Foreign Relations disorder prevailed, and the Argentine Republic was placed in an unenviable position. There can be cited, for example, the action of retiring the Argentine delegation from the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva, and that of failing in due observance of the rules of international courtesy such as when the Argentine Ambassadorship at Washington was left vacant for more than a year and a half and up until the date of Irigoyen's overthrow.

Innumerable details in the routine business of the Foreign Department were left in disorder; there was lacking the most elemental attention which the Minister of that department owed to the Foreign Diplomatic Corps in Buenos Aires as well as to the Argentine diplomats accredited to foreign governments.

In the realm of finance the same bad conditions prevailed. The budgets were never sanctioned in accordance with the needs of the country. Extraordinary expenditures were decreed by Ministers directly against the provisions of the national accounting laws. The number of official posts was increased by thousands and they were filled with the sole purpose of assuring additional votes for the administration. All loans were contracted on unfavorable terms. There was an excessive issuance of treasury notes.

One may calculate that the first administration of Irigoyen cost the country more than one billion pesos (approximately $400,000,000), wasted in unnecessary expenditures and illegal gratuities. In the very few days that the new Provisional Government has been in office, we have been able to prove in preliminary investigations that in the year and 10 months of the second Irigoyen administration there has been lost to the nation in the same manner a sum exceeding six hundred million pesos (about $250,000,000).

Country's Debt Almost Doubled.

A final investigation will reveal that the Radical Government had made the country debtor to the extent of the tragic sum of two billion pesos (approximately $800,000,000) or almost half of the country's total debt.

In the Department of Public Instruction, posts of primary teachers were filled by thousands of persons who did not even hold a degree of master. In the secondary schools, where the same sort of appointments were made, and in institutions of higher learning such as universities, etc., disorder prevailed. Since 1913, the universities have passed through a period of violence never previously dreamed of in the institutions of higher culture. Strikes and protests of university students became the normal state in these institutions.

In the army and the navy the organic laws were freely thrust aside. Discipline was relaxed. The future was closed to officers of merit and through this situation there were extraordinary occurrences such as the incorporation in the army of officers who had been retired for many years, giving them the rank which would have been theirs had they remained continuously in the service, and

Italian Fascists Have Nothing To Do With Political Revolts Elsewhere, Says Mussolini

Others May Apply Party's Broad Principles, But Usually the National Ills and Remedies Are Quite Different.

By Premier Benito Mussolini.

ROME, Sept. 27.

SINCE the advent of Fascism to power, there have been very few nations which have not had at least a beginning of movements which were called Fascist movements. Peculiar local conditions seem to have caused their existence and doubtless viewing the efficacy with which the Italian Fascist regime ruled, they projected a similar result for their own country. Some were born of anti-communism, others fought the inaction of the ruling party, some were anti-Catholic and still others anti-Semitic. The variety of aims, the origin and their formation, indicate that while these movements were called Fascist movements, there was no general conception of one idea, nor was there even any relation between the several organizations of the various countries.

Italian Fascism has kept scrupulously aloof from all these so-called Fascist movements for the reason that ours is all our own, originated and built up in our own country to meet our own peculiar aims and purposes. The birth of Fascism was unattended by any infiltration of foreign or political dogmas or of parental post-natal influences similar to the movement beyond our frontiers. It was conceived and organized and developed on Italian soil and designed to meet the needs of the Italian nation which came out of the war with its victory disfigured not alone by foreign artifices, but also by the inability of our own statesmen to enforce the Italian demands for a just share in the spoils of the conquerors.

World Interest in Fascism.

Since we established our regime and have experienced a notable share of success, we have attracted the interest of statesmen and politicians all over the world who have wondered whether Fascism could be well fitted into their own systems of government. England, France and the United States have had their own attempts to organize a Fascism, while in Germany a party headed by Herr Adolf Hitler, which has recently sometimes been called the Fascist, made notable progress in the German elections of Sept. 14.

The results of those elections have been heralded as a triumph for Hitler and they unmistakably show the trend. A Parliament with 20 or more parties as experience has shown, especially in this post-war period, makes government delicate and difficult whereas it should be strong and decisive. When Fascism first entered the Italian Parliament our party had 38 Deputies out of 535, but when we seized power we stiffened governmental strength by mustering to our ranks the real leaders of our country's life, and continued from then on to rule. We do not trace a parallel in the German situation but above all the sign of the times can be seen in the way youth rallies to the new standard, leaving behind it the old shibboleths of liberalism, democracy and socialism.

We do not know how much Fascism could do for other countries because that is not within our scope. We insist that other nations should stay out of our internal affairs and for the same reason we are staying out of the internal affairs of others. We are committed to the good that Fascism does for Italy and if there are factors which can with a certain measure of efficiency be adopted by other countries, they are at liberty to appropriate whatever is good and convenient for them. To ask that anyone adopt our methods has never been within the slightest dream of our policy.

A German Creation.

Since the "Nazi" (National Socialist) or so-called German Fascists have now attracted the attention of a large international public, all eyes are being turned towards them. They are a German creation, wholly directed by German leaders and with a political campaign policy which is wholly German. Perhaps the only feature about them is that they are referred to as Fascists, while as everyone knows today, the word Fascism was coined to apply to the spirit of solidarity which has bound members of our organization since it was founded.

And then in so many other countries where so-called Fascist movements have come into existence, there is such a variety of aim in these organizations, these aims differing with different conditions. The movements in the United States which have been likened to the Fascist movement have been violently anti-Catholic, and yet such a stand on the part of the Italian Fascism could not even be countenanced as the Catholic church plays such a part in the life of our people.

Then, too, there has been a mixture of royalist and republican tendencies on the part of some, but in this the Fascism of Italy could not under any circumstances participate as we brought with us into power a reverence and worship of our reigning house which has strengthened and dignified it in the minds of all Italians. The English Fascists seemed anti-labor, and yet we have enacted more labor legislation than any other country in the world. The movements in other countries are therefore completely apart from us, as Fascism as we know it, is our own creation and was conceived for Italy.

Calls It "Revolution."

There is no doubt that abroad the full significance of Fascism as a governing force is not yet completely understood. We have created a new state and when we refer to the Fascist revolution, we mean just exactly revolution, for what has transpired has been as truly a revolution as any in history. We have created a whole new code of government, a whole new system of government. That our creation is a success is attested by the fact that we are a strong nation within and without.

What is perhaps little understood abroad is that the work of the regime touches the whole population. It is a reorganization of the whole country to meet its particular economic needs. To fight the economic battle in the world market, we have evolved the relation between producing and directing groups which is designed to increase the production of national wealth and to insure a fair distribution of that wealth. No government in the whole world has yet undertaken schemes so extensive and colossal as the Fascist regime; schemes which have completely changed the old system of the country's economic life by placing greater stress on agricultural riches and developing the nation's latent potentiality thereto, rather than letting land lie idle and allow congested cities to grow to consume the nation's living.

Government Reforms.

It would take volumes to tell of the reforms enacted by the Government in social well-being, maternity assistance, industrial compensation, pensions, insurance, etc. Volumes have already been written on the progress accomplished by Italy in the realm of social welfare. It is enough to examine our unemployment

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

De Valls Bluff and Other Bridges.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I HAVE read with a great deal of interest of the sale of the De Valls Bluff bridge in Arkansas to the State. This was the outstanding example of how private interests exploit the public highways of the country by the construction of private toll bridges.

First, I want to commend the Post-Dispatch for the columns of publicity it has given this project and I say that this publicity had a great deal to do with settling a controversy that will save the public millions of dollars in the future.

It is true the owners charged the State a price over twice the actual cost of construction, but when you consider that this bridge is credited with earnings of from $250,000 to $500,000 annually it will be seen that it will be but a short time before the State will be in a position to declare the bridge free to the traveling public.

The bridge was looked upon as a gateway to the Southwest. The promoter, Harry Bovay, who has promoted other toll bridge projects in the Middle West, secured for the franchise granted by Congress not only all the common stock issued but also nearly $50,000 in cash. This confirms the statement that I have made on many occasions that toll bridge promoters had no interest in the construction of bridges other than from their own financial standpoint and that they sold the grants received from Congress.

Those of us who are opposed to toll bridges have been promised a hearing on bills pending for several years when Congress reconvenes in December. It is hoped that we can enact legislation that will prevent the construction of toll bridges by private interests in the future.

We have many newly constructed toll bridges across the Mississippi River. With two exceptions I understand these projects are not earning sufficient to pay the interest on the outstanding obligations. In one case the construction fund was overfinanced and the interest on the bonds is now being paid from that fund. The Cape Girardeau project has been almost a total loss to the investors. Bonds that sold at par on these projects can now be bought for prices ranging from $10 to $30. Despite this there is a movement on foot at the present time to construct a toll bridge across the Mississippi River in South St. Louis at Osage street or that vicinity. It is a new project. It would be folly for one to entertain an idea that a toll bridge costing several millions of dollars within a mile or two of a free bridge would ever be a financial success. Nevertheless, I have been urged not to oppose the granting of a franchise for the construction of this bridge.

If the people will not subscribe for toll bridge bonds the day of the private toll bridge will soon be at an end.

Again I congratulate the Post-Dispatch on the sale of the De Valls Bluff bridge to the State of Arkansas. The traveling public can in part thank your paper for bringing this about.

For Exclusive Compensation Insurance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I NOTE in your editorial of Thursday, Sept. 18, on the subject of compensation insurance, the following sentence: "We are disposed to think that the states which permit private competition with their own funds in this field have a better idea than the one advocated in Missouri and effective in Ohio." I think this might be questioned. The Federal study, which you quoted earlier, showed an expense ratio of 38 per cent plus in private insurance, 4 per cent in exclusive State funds and 10.6 per cent in competitive State funds. The competitive fund thus costs two or three times as much to administer as the exclusive one. Where state and private companies act as competitive insurers, there is a tendency for the private companies to grab off the good risks and leave the poor ones to the state fund. The exclusive fund can operate at a lower cost and charge employers a lower premium.

C. W.

Unnamed Sonnet.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I SHOULD be sad because the end is coming:
The moment when no longer will you care.
(I recognize the song that you are humming
So delicately to the stars out there.)

But who am I to argue that it matters?
I that am nothing when the cool white rain
Comes weeping through the night again, and patters
A cosmic tune upon the window pane.

I am not one to cherish long hereafter
A garden and a moonlit parapet;
I will forget our cruel mimic laughter
That you will never, never quite forget.

You will remember when the moon is bright,
And when the rain comes weeping through the night.

CARDINAL LE GROS.

TO THE CARDINALS!

We confess delight, but not surprise, at the Cardinals' brilliant victory. If we may be pardoned at so ecstatic a time as this for a bit of boastfulness, we have been saying all season that they are the best team in the league and needed only the nod of Lady Luck to gallop first under the wire.

When Wild Bill Hallahan on April 18 struck out 11 Cubs and yielded only two hits, we heralded his performance as a sign that when October rolled around there would be a world series at Grand and Dodier. On May 2, we noted that J. Roy Stockton of the Post-Dispatch staff had pronounced the Cards pennant contenders because of the excellence of their pitching, and that Hugh Fullerton, baseball's Delphic oracle, thought so, too, because he was impressed by the superior distribution of the team's strength. We said: "Bill Hallahan is the flaming youth that is lighting the way of our hopes. . . . There's a pennant in that left wing." There was.

May was a merry month at Sportsman's Park. By the 22nd the Cardinals had won 12 of their last 13 games, and we made so bold as to say, "They are now in second place, if you please, outhitting, outfielding and outgaming any team in the league." When in June, Flint Rhem signalized his return from Elba by pitching a beautiful game on a broiling Sunday afternoon, we, in Spartan mood, cried: "Shovel in the fuel, ye cosmic stokers!" July was a sad month, the Cardinals spending their earlier gains in wastrel fashion and demonstrating an inconstancy which gave the pop-eyed populace a long series of nervous shakes. Yet in that dark hour we pointed out the Cardinals continued "to evoke a medley of emotions—now lifting us to the heights, now dropping us to the depths, and always commanding our unflagging interest. They are more than a baseball team; they are a psychological potion."

They are still that psychological potion—in our opinion the most powerful and scintillating team in the history of baseball, notwithstanding there is not one Cardinal among Babe Ruth's all-stars. They have surpassed the feat of the old Boston Braves. They have eclipsed the flag-rush of the celebrated "Hitless Wonders." There are few, if any, parallels in baseball to their record of winning 35 of their last 40 games. The Brooklyn series and the New York series showed the Cardinals the gamest team the national pastime has ever known. They would not be beaten.

In the black and despairing days of early August, with the Cardinals limping along in fourth place, we said: "They are nine and a half games behind the soaring Brooklyn Robins—a desolate chasm to negotiate when the calendar has slipped into wilting August. With any other team the possibility of a pennant, in such gloomy circumstances, were a forlorn, yes, a futile, hope; but the Cardinals are not any other team. The Cardinals are the Cardinals, unparalleled, unpeered, unique and sui generis, before whom the dope abdicates, the traditions flicker out, the law of probability nose dives and the customary formulas of calculation subside."

"We wear no prophet's cloak," we blushingly admitted on Aug. 15, "but if the Cardinals should slaughter the Giants, massacre the Robins and annihilate the Cubs and finally perch on the pinnacle, this September into which we are heading will be something to talk about during the rest of the here and all of the hereafter." On Sept. 13, recognizing that the remainder of the schedule did not favor the Cardinals, we said: "We think they will win. After all, if the team plays to the end the way it has been playing, the schedule will not make any difference. That sort of team can knock over the big ones as easily as it can knock over the little ones."

It is fortunate for the National League that the race ended as it did, for the Cardinals are undoubtedly the best equipped and most spirited team of the lot, and the logical opponents of the cocky Athletics. Not the Cubs, nor the Robins, nor the Giants would have had a chance against Mack's machine. The Cards alone have the stuff it takes to redeem the National League from three straight, humiliating defeats in the World Series. Bring on the Athletics! We made Chicago and Brooklyn return the money sent for World Series tickets, and we will trail in the dust the proud plumes of "Lefty" Grove and the rest.

THE KING OF GOLF.

Like Alexander, Bobby Jones can only weep for other worlds to conquer. In a single season he has won the amateur and open championships both in the United States and England. It is something that no other golf player has ever done, and it establishes him securely as the superman of golf.

The Proverbs tell us that he that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city. Nine years ago the same tournament from which Bobby emerged victor in Philadelphia yesterday was held in St. Louis. The Georgia boy who was to conquer the golf world had not then conquered himself. He lost his temper over a bad shot and broke up one of his clubs. He was never a contender in the tournament thereafter, and departed sadly from the scene while "Siege Gun" Guilford walked off with the cup.

Thus has Bobby demonstrated a very old moral.

PICTURES BY POE.

Interest in the three small pencil portraits which have been identified as the work of Edgar Allan Poe lies in the subjects. One is of Virginia Clemm, the dissolute dreamer's girl wife whose long illness and death heightened his morbidity and made more frequent the temporary crises of delirious fever. Another is of Mrs. Sarah Shelton, a woman of letters, who belonged to the poet's later years and their fits of platonic affection. The third is a self-portrait, the face of which indicates the wizard of words thought of himself as a man of resolution rather than as a victim of strange susceptibilities.

Thus the sketches, if genuine, are interesting as rare relics of the timeless and placeless writer and throw new if small lights on his tragic life. But they are little else. No drawings can add to the work of the gentle, obliging, devoted man, the irritable, somber, rebellious genius. He drew his pictures with words, not lines and curves. No sketch could show the love for the maiden who lived in the kingdom by the sea or the adoration for Helen of the hyacinth hair, the classic face, the Naiad airs. Only words could build the domes, spires, kingly halls and time-eaten towers of the strange city where Death reared himself a throne; the haunted palace, once fair, stately, radiant, with golden banners, now become the dominion of hideous throngs moving fantastically behind red-litten windows; the ghosts of the dying embers playing about the floor on that bleak December midnight; the lordly raven, grim and ominous in the gloating lamplight.

His tales, whether of death, wickedness, fatality or mystery, no less than the poetry, are full of settings, landscapes and situations so grotesque, so uncannily all-possessing that no artist has ever drawn them. Poe was a visionary, an imaginist. To the imagination of each reader must be left the conjuring of his pictures burning first with brilliant sheen, now with a dismal glow, but always burning.

CANDIDATES WORTH VOTING FOR.

Dwight W. Morrow, Republican, for Senator from New Jersey, because he is responsible for the friendliest relations that have ever existed between the United States and Mexico.

Wilbur L. Cross, Democrat, for Governor of Connecticut, because during his long deanship at Yale he built a reputation as a scholar and citizen which makes his stand on prohibition one of utmost importance.

George W. Norris, Republican, for Senator from Nebraska, because his courage and conscience, his steadfast refusal to compromise with his convictions and his faithful practice of political honesty is a great object lesson in the essential soundness of democracy.

Cordell Hull, Democrat, for Senator from Tennessee, because his long and industrious career in the House has made him widely known for intelligence and honesty in tariff matters.

Gifford Pinchot, Republican, for Governor of Pennsylvania, because, pre-eminent among conservationists and arch enemy of the Power Trust, he beat the Vare machine, is the implacable foe of the Philadelphia gang and illustrates anew the meaningless nature of the party label.

M. M. Neely, Democrat, for Senator from West Virginia, because during his previous term he fought a lone battle to have the Senate establish a legal limit for the amount of money which could be used in senatorial elections.

James Rolph, Republican, for Governor of California, because he is a known liberal and his nomination over the reactionary Gov. C. C. Young is a blow at political fanaticism along the Pacific coast.

Joseph T. Robinson, Democrat, for Senator from Arkansas, because he was broad enough to come back from the London naval conference and lead the debate for the treaty, despite the fact that its ratification would be considered a triumph for his political opponents.

James Couzens, Republican, for Senator from Michigan, because he is neither hampered by the demands of party regularity nor estopped from serving the people by the possession of great wealth.

J. Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, for Senator from Illinois, because he has taken an unequivocal stand on prohibition and is the opponent of Mrs. McCormick, whose excessive campaign expenses, cowardice and vindictive defiance have dragged the politics of Lincoln's State to lowest levels.

Philip La Follette, Republican, for Governor of Wisconsin, because he is perpetuating the family tradition of government for the people.

Edward P. Costigan, Democrat, for Senator from Colorado, because he is an outstanding fighter for the liberal cause.

William E. Borah, Republican, for Senator from Idaho, because he made a splendid fight against Judge Parker and "yellow dog" contracts, and is so often his useful and independent self.

James F. Byrnes, Democrat, for Senator from South Carolina, because as a Congressman he gained a reputation for character and standing and because he defeated Cole Blease, apostle of lynching.

Albert C. Ritchie, Democrat, for Governor of Maryland, because his administrations have been marked by true democratic tolerance, ordered liberty for the individual and the conviction that a self-governing state should be free to settle its local problems in conformity with the needs of its people.

ISRAEL WEINBERG'S AWAKENING.

Israel Weinberg, 44-year-old tailor of Miami, Fla., believed this was a free country where a man could think his own thoughts and utter them without molestation. He was under the impression that the right of thought and speech was what brought the Pilgrims here in the beginning. Moreover, he knew the Constitution forever guarantees freedom of speech to the citizens of the United States.

Nevertheless, because his thoughts did not conform to those of some other citizens of Miami, Weinberg was beaten, tarred, feathered, bound, gagged, wrapped in a white-hooded garment and thrown from an automobile in the downtown district of the illustrious Florida city. Weinberg, it is said, entertained communistic beliefs and had in his home literature on communism, racial equality, religion and other subjects. In such matters as religion, politics and the racial problem, it is not safe in Florida to think independently.

So Israel Weinberg has had an awakening. He knows that in some sections of the State of swamps and peonage, the first amendment to the Constitution does not exist, and civilization is still somewhere in the Neanderthal stage.

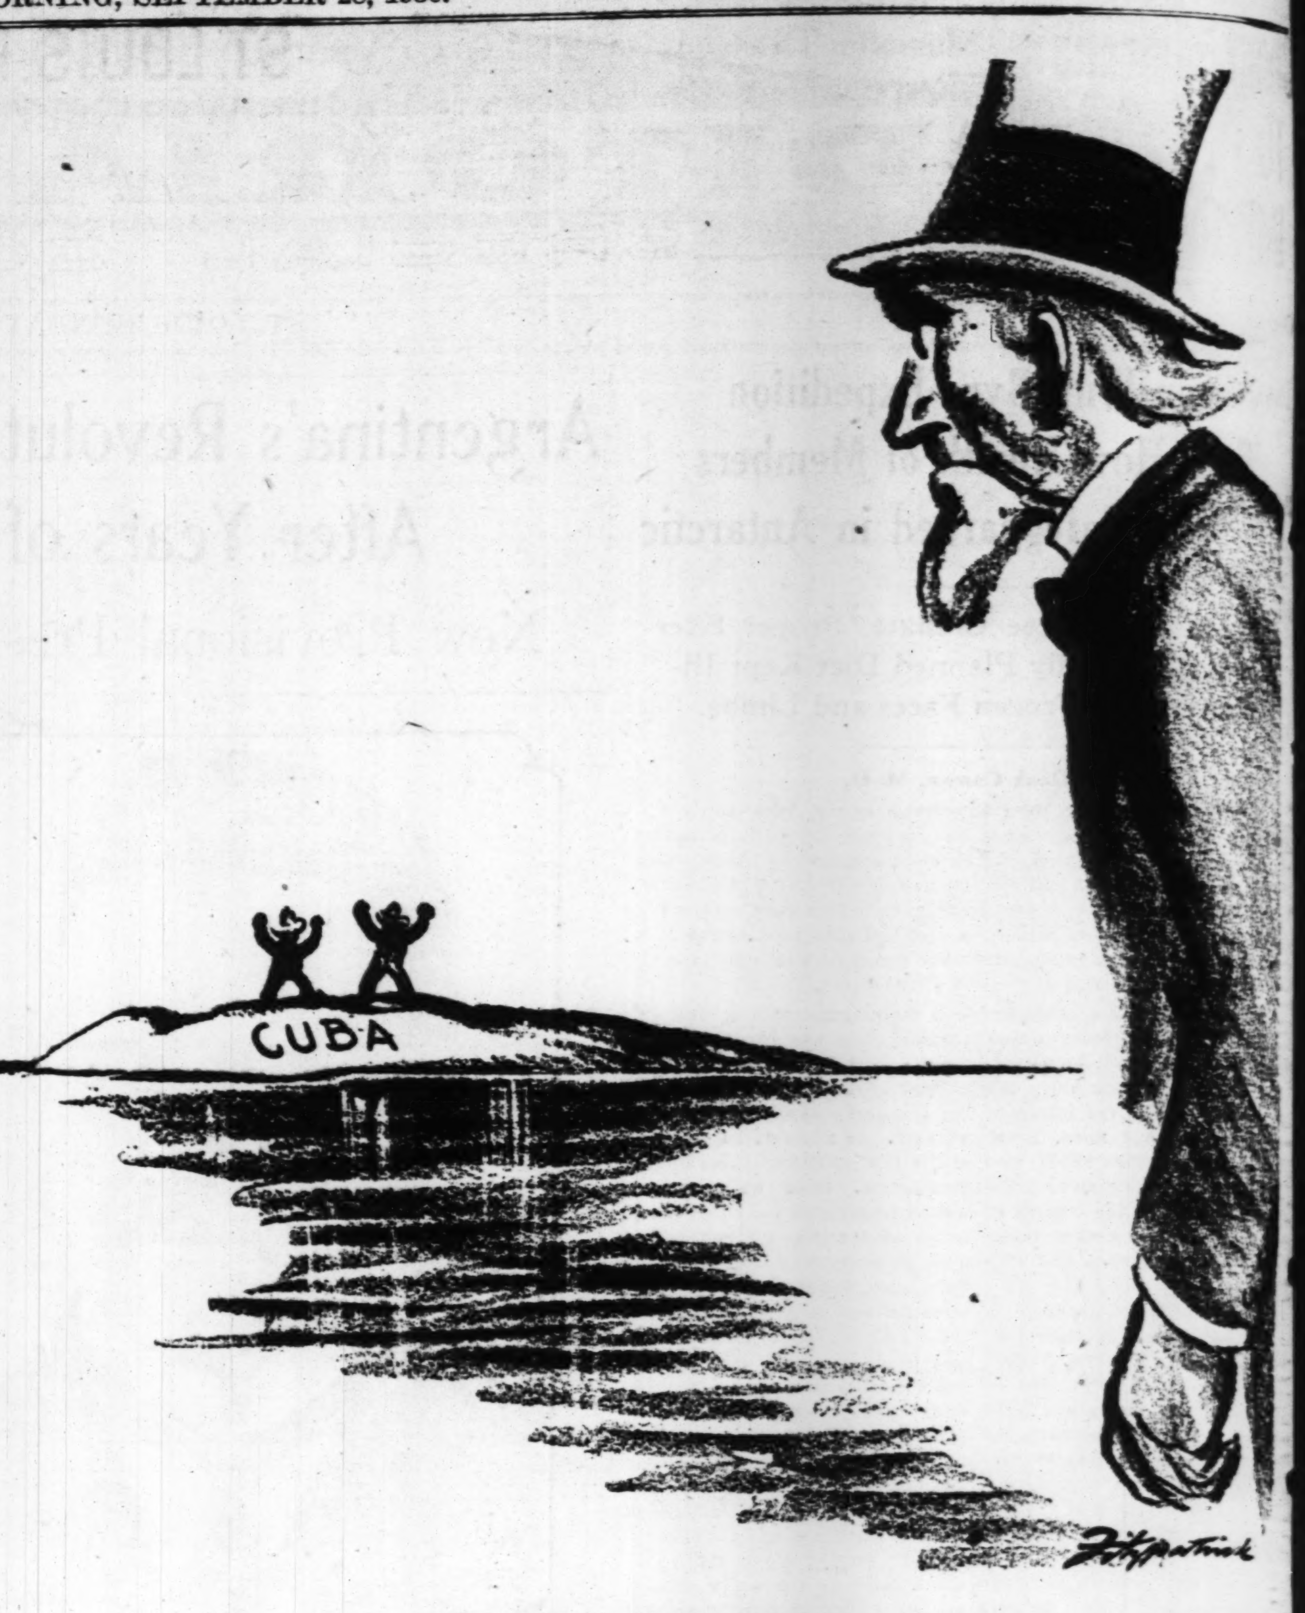
IN THE STATE OF ELIJAH P. LOVEJOY.

Merger of three newspapers in Rockford, Ill., under the presidency of Ruth Hanna McCormick has been announced by the Associated Press. Previous to the consolidation Mrs. McCormick possessed the Daily Republic, purchased some time prior to her race for the senatorial nomination. Lieutenant-Governor Fred E. Sterling was editor of the morning Star and the evening Register-Gazette. In the new organization, Rockford Consolidated Newspapers, Inc., he will be vice president under Mrs. McCormick, who will head the board of directors as well as hold the presidency.

Newspaper mergers upon occasion have left certain cities better off than they were before. An example is Springfield, Mass., where the publishers of the Daily Republican, famous journal of Samuel Bowles, purchased control of the other papers. The benefit or harm of consolidation depends entirely on those who are doing the consolidating. Benefit to Rockford as a result of the triple merger is highly doubtful. If Mrs. McCormick runs her monopoly as she is running her campaign for Senator the result will be anything but a credit to journalism in the State of Elijah P. Lovejoy, who accepted the martyr's death 93 years ago in Alton rather than yield to those forces which his Observer said "would forbid liberty of the press and the free expression of opinion."



"MAY WE FIGHT, UNCLE?"

The Case for Proposition No. 4

Proposition No. 4, for exclusive state insurance under the workmen's compensation law, will greatly reduce premiums now paid by employers, as well as correct the inequalities and injustices now prevalent under the private insurance system; Ohio employers aided inauguration of exclusive state insurance in that State, and are pleased with its results.

Written for the Post-Dispatch by R. T. Wood,
President, Missouri Federation of Labor.

THE campaign launched by the Missouri State Federation of Labor, through the initiative, for the amendment of the workmen's compensation law, to provide for exclusive State insurance in the settlement of personal injury cases coming under the law, is no departure from the position the Federation has held for many years. Every law sponsored by the State Federation in the session of the Missouri General Assembly since 1919 has originally carried the exclusive State insurance plan.

Of the 16 states that have the State insurance feature in their workmen's compensation laws, seven have the exclusive State insurance plan. This means that all private insurance is prohibited. The employer either must insure in the State fund or carry his own insurance if he can show the Fund Commissioners that he is sufficiently solvent to do so. Under this system the employer pays his insurance premium into the State fund and the Fund Commissioners handle the claims for compensation, except that the State fund makes no profit and operates the business with very little friction and with much less expense.

Thus we will see that exclusive State insurance in the administration of workmen's compensation laws is not a new fantastic theory of some dreamer, but is in actual, practical, successful operation in seven states. The experience of these states has long since convinced us that State insurance is the more logical, practical and beneficial, both to the employer and the employe, who are the two vitally interested parties under the workmen's compensation law.

We placed proposition No. 4 on the ballot because it will greatly reduce the insurance premiums now being paid by employers under the law, and will at the same time enable us to amend the law, correcting some of the inequalities in its beneficent features. It will also enable the injured worker to receive a more just and adequate portion of what he is entitled to under the law, by the practical elimination of litigation and unnecessary delay in the settlement of personal injury cases, now being occasioned by the unwarranted and underhanded tactics being employed by the insurance claim adjusters. Some of them are resorting to unscrupulous methods in their attempt to beat down claims for compensation, and in many cases through the machinations of their physicians, injured workers have been forced back to work before they were in physical condition to perform their tasks.

The insurance companies have taken advantage of every known legal trick to weaken the law. They have appealed to the courts minor awards of the Workmen's Compensation Commission, where not enough money in compensation was involved to enable the injured worker to carry his case to the higher courts which necessitates the employment of counsel and the filing of briefs with the higher courts. Thereby important points of law have been established by default that entail a great loss of compensation in the more serious injuries. Thus by judicial decision the insurance companies have impaired the beneficent features of the workmen's compensation law.

Judging from the very unfavorable and distasteful experience the organized workers are having with the insurance claim adjusters and the manner in which we have had to combat them to secure just awards in accordance with the provisions of the law I am wondering just what experience the unfortunate unorganized worker is having with the cunning and more unscrupulous insurance claim adjuster who is very eager to show his company how much money he can save them by whittling down the compensation due the injured worker.

The insurance combinations will, of course, raise the hue and cry, in their opposition to the ratification of proposition No. 4, that exclusive State insurance is an entering wedge to state socialism. It is no more an entering wedge to state socialism than are the public ownership and operation of our public parks, public schools, public highways and the Federal postal system, or the municipally owned water plant of the largest metropolis of the State, St. Louis. All these enterprises were once privately owned and operated for private profit. But for the safety and welfare of the people these institutions were acquired by the State and Federal Government and operated in the interest of the people and for their safety and protection.

Now let us see what the organized employers and the organized workers of Ohio think of the Ohio workmen's compensation law. In 1917 the General Assembly of Ohio, with the full co-operation and approval of the Ohio Manufacturers' Association and the Ohio Federation of Labor, made the State fund the sole carrier of workmen's compensation insurance. The right of the Legislature to exclude the private insurance companies from the field was later upheld by both the State and Federal courts.

The Ohio employers have upheld the exclusive State fund in the Ohio law because they are convinced that they have secured insurance at a lower rate than they could have otherwise obtained, and that their employes have been provided with adequate medical services and compensation for loss of time with more promptness and in such a way as to reduce to a minimum the litigation and friction between employer and employe which is likely to arise in personal injury cases.

No one can successfully deny that the Ohio workmen's compensation law, with its exclusive State insurance feature, is a great benefit to both employers and injured employes. The cost of administration of the Ohio law under the State fund plan is approximately 3½ per cent of the premiums collected from the employers; whereas in Missouri, as in every other state where the private insurance companies carry the risks of the employers, the State Superintendent of Insurance allows the companies to deduct 40 per cent of the premiums they collect from the employers for administration expense and profit.

Therefore the Ohio law costs 36½ per cent less for administration than the Missouri law. Reflected in insurance premiums and considering refunds made to employers on their premiums by the State fund, the Ohio law is 50 per cent cheaper to the employer than the Missouri law, and in some instances there is a wider difference. For instance, for structural steel (erection), the premium rate in Missouri is $17.33 on the $100 payroll. The Ohio insurance manual gives a rate of $7.50 on the $100 payroll.

In the last session of the Missouri General Assembly, we attempted to secure some very important amendments to the law that would remedy some of the defects in the administration and adjust some of the inequalities. We were confronted with the spectacle of insurance lawyers and representatives appearing before the committees of the General Assembly in the guise of representing some group of employers, stubbornly contesting every amendment for improvement of the law. The major opposition to our amendments came from the insurance representatives, who were hiding behind the skirts of the employers' organizations. They have, therefore, become a very serious menace to the successful operation of the law.

The forces of organized labor are in thorough co-operation in our campaign for ratification of proposition No. 4.

Personal injury is incident to industry, and should not be made an object of personal gain. We hold that no individual or corporation should have the legal right, and certainly no moral right, to make fabulous profits out of the mangled flesh and crushed bones of the unfortunate workers, and the misery and suffering of their dependents.

The insurance premiums paid by the employer to insure his employes against industrial accident should be passed on to the injured worker with a minimum of litigation and no profit. The State being the conservator of the health, peace and safety of the people, it is therefore right and a matter of good public policy that the State should be the agency in conveying the compensation due the injured employe, thereby eliminating unnecessary litigation and delay and remedying the injustices now endured by the injured workers under the private insurance plan.

Fear or Thrift?

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

IS it thrift or fear of accident that keeps so large a proportion of Americans from trying flights at commercial airfields? Perhaps the question was answered by the experiment of the Gates Flying Service at the Holmes Airport, Jackson Heights, recently. A $1 minimum price for the day was announced. This meant one minute, one thrilling minute, in the air. For $2.50 one could be taken to the Queensborough bridge and back. And for $5 the trip circling the Battery was a bargain. The final showing was 5182 tickets sold, nearly all for the $1 flights. The crowd had to be herded in with ropes. There were old men and old women, mothers with youngsters, beaus and sweethearts, laughing and careless; not an evidence of fear anywhere. As a matter of fact, not a single accident was recorded. The natural conclusion is that among Americans air-shyness is almost nonexistent, but pocket-shyness is nearly universal.

Board of Direction to Open Sessions Today — Separate Meetings for Specialized Topics.

The fall meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers, oldest engineers' institute in the country, having been founded in 1852, will be held here this week, preceded by a session of the society's board of direction.

Some of the world's most distinguished engineers are on the board of direction and other leaders in the profession are among the membership. About 500 members of the society, which has about 14,[illegible] members, are expected to attend. Headquarters will be at Hotel Jefferson.

The board of direction will meet today, tomorrow and Tuesday. Sessions of the society proper will be opened on Wednesday by W. W. Horner, president of the St. Louis section and chief engineer of paving and sewers for the city, followed by a welcome from Gov. Caulfield and response by J. F. Coleman, New Orleans consulting engineer and society president.

Wednesday's program is designed around the theme of the modern city and its functions and needs. The speakers will be St. Louis experts, as follows: "Why the City?" Dr. W. F. Gephart, a vice president of the First National Bank; "Municipal Preparedness," President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service; "Supervised Regional Expansion," A. P. Greensfelder, chairman of the University City Plan Commission and general contractor; "Water Supply," Edward E. Wall, consulting engineer and former Water Commissioner and Director of Public Utilities; "Municipal Drainage," Horner; "Co-ordination of Terminals," F. G. Jonah, chief engineer of the Frisco Railway, and "Mass Transportation," R. J. Lockwood, consulting engineer and former assistant general manager of the Public Service Co.

Like a Corporation.

The purpose is to show that the modern city has become primarily a big public service corporation and to consider how to make it a better place in which to live.

Specialized topics will be presented at separate meetings of the construction, highway and waterways divisions on Thursday. St. Louisans on these programs will be: Baxter L. Brown, consulting engineer, opening the discussion on waterways; L. R. Viterbo, consulting engineer, on "Floating Foundations;" Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks, on advance qualification of contractors, and S. W. Bowen, on caisson foundations.

On Friday morning the construction, highway and surveying and mapping divisions will meet. Chief Engineer Cutler of the Missouri State Highway Department and County Highway Engineer Jablonsky of St. Louis County will address the road builders. Stanley Stokes, assistant vice president of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., will tell the third group about the aerial survey of power transmission lines between St. Louis and the Osage River dam being built near Bagnell, Mo.

Choice of Inspection Trips.

A choice of inspection trips will be offered Friday afternoon, to see the water front from the city harbor boat, to view the new underground terminal work of the Illinois Terminal System, to see Lambert-St. Louis Field, or anywhere else desired. On Saturday the engineers will be taken to the Bagnell dam by courtesy of the electric company and the Missouri Pacific Railroad, in a special train, observing the railroad's double-tracking work on the way.

A program of entertainment for the engineers' wives has been arranged by a committee headed by Mrs. Horner. There will be a dinner dance at Hotel Jefferson Wednesday evening.

A conference of members of student chapters of the society will be held Tuesday afternoon. Delegations from the student bodies of Washington, Missouri, Iowa and Kansas universities, Iowa State College and Rolla School of Mines are expected to attend the convention and to make special inspection trips to places of interest from the engineering standpoint.

Noted Engineers to Be Here.

The grades of member and associate member of the society are awarded only to engineers who have carreid out work of considerable importance, and mean much within the profession. There are more than 200 members in and near St. Louis.

Among distinguished engineers on the board of direction, most of whom are expected to be here, are: President Coleman, an expert in drainage, river improvements, railroad work and public utility valuation; Harrison P. Eddy of Boston, Frank E. Winsor of Boston, Malcolm Pirnie of New York, A. T. Dusenbury of New Orleans, Jo-schemes, our Government finance and our educational system, our reform in municipal administration. These are mute monuments to the work of Fascism and are so far-reaching that before a real conception of Italian Fascism can really be gained, it is necessary to feel the real renovation it meant for the nation. Fascism in no uncertain way has meant a new Italy.

Whether these movements which are called Fascist abroad will be able to enact a program as broad as ours can only be told after they have had a chance of directing the country. There is this significant fact, however, that the nations of the world have recognized the efficacy of the Fascist rule and have already begun to move toward the adoption of many Fascist principles. The ills of vacillating democracy are today striking some of the nations rather serious blows and well we may wonder in this stifling international competition how many are going to survive.

The present age is a new age in which speed and efficiency are counting. Government cannot stay behind in this procession but must be brought to full efficiency. The government which does not keep in step with the quickened pace of the time is bound to hold its nation behind in the onward march. Today more than ever before thinkers have dwelt upon what is wrong with democracy and the springing up of movements in practically every country signifies to the world the unrest over the old parliamentary systems.

New President Of Argentine Explains Revolt

paying them corresponding salaries for all their years of inactivity.

The most inexcusable cases were the promotion accorded to an officer who for many years had been secluded in a lunatic asylum, and the posthumous promotion of several officers with the sole object of enabling their families to draw larger pensions.

Paralysis of Business.

All of this produced an atmosphere of intense disquiet. Capital was withdrawn in view of the uncertainty of the situation. Business was paralyzed and the nation's money was devalorized. The commercial and industrial world found itself as a soldier in battle awaiting the attack of the enemy.

When the opposition sought to make its voice heard in recent times the Government began persecuting it openly. There were criminal attempts against persons participating in political meetings in the capital of the Republic, as in the case of the Plaza Once; in the Province of Buenos Aires as in the case of the town of Lincoln; in the Province of Cordoba, as in Las Rosas; and in almost all of the departments of the Provinces of Mendoza and San Juan.

Moral, political, social, financial and economic causes which cannot be more amply analyzed in this article brought about an extreme situation. Never, as in the months that have passed since the beginning of this year, has Argentine society found itself in such a state of indecision, of fear, of misconfidence, and of disorientation respecting its own destiny. It knew not where it went. Everyone was profoundly convinced that such a state of affairs could not long continue but no one could foresee how it would terminate. The electoral triumph obtained by the opposition in the Federal Capital in the elections of last March and the resurgence of the same opposition in the Provinces of Buenos Aires, Cordoba and Entre Rios, made it clear at last that the people had comprehended the pernicious and dissolvent effects of the Irigoyen policy.

It was evident, however, that the country could not wait. Irigoyenism, which was sure to be defeated in subsequent elections, would nevertheless remain in power until such elections were effected, or for practically all the remaining years of Irigoyen's presidential term. In other words, everyone was sure that the next President would not be an Irigoyenist, but it was also a certainty that the country could not wait for the normal replacement of its legal and official authorities. Such was the state of the country in the last week of the Irigoyen regime.

Byrd's Physician Tells How Party's Health Was Guarded

a frozen hand or foot; we became quickly and painfully aware of it and did not scoff at it. Rubbing the frozen part we found was very bad treatment, especially rubbing with snow, for the tissue was apt to be torn and bruised by such methods and an extensive crusted "burn" would result instead of a quick and complete return to normal.

As it was only necessary to bring the frost-bitten part back to body temperature, one held the hand gently over the part until circulation was re-established, or if a hand were frozen it was held next to the skin in the armpit or between the thighs. We had several bad freezings such as when Dean Smith lost his fur gloves while on top of one of the steel radio towers and had to climb down bare-handed, but in every case by calm and sensible treatment not a blister remained where a few minutes previously the part had been as white and stiff and lifeless as a plaster cast.

Bruises and muscle strains seemed to seal very slowly. A sledge runner fell on Larry Gould, giving him a black-and-blue arm that instead of healing in a few days was sore for several weeks; and Paul Siple, who seemed to pick out the hardest work to do, strained a shoulder muscle in chopping up dog food and as a result of the delayed tissue repair, carried his arm in a sling for a couple of months. With protective eyeglass that would not fog we suffered very little from snow glare.

Fight Against Scurvy.

The provisionng of our expedton followed dietary basis worked out largely on the advice of Prof. E. V. McCollum, the nutrition authority, and our statistical computations made by the heads of the diet school at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, the Misses Lewis and Rowe. Not only did this elimination of guesswork save considerable expense, but with an economical larder it provided a balanced ration furnishing the necessary calories, the essential food factors, minerals and roughage with an opportunity for variety sufficient to eliminate many of the diseases former large expeditions have suffered in polar regions.

Scurvy, of course, was especially kept in mind. And to combat it, we had citrus fruits in every conceivable form. We had such fruit preserved in syrup or partially dehydrated under carbon dioxide; we had vacuum-packed sterile fresh juice and the powdered whole fruit; and, most satisfactory of all, we had the actual frozen grapefruit and lemons which experimentally proved a brilliant success, for until the end of our stay when thawed out they were to all apearance, taste and reaction the fresh fruit.

Various forms of yeast, wheat germ, cod liver oil, etc., were provided, and powdered whole milk, malted milk, tinned sweet butter, whole wheat and white flour as well as cake flour and potato flour, frozen eggs and dried eggs, canned tomatoes, spinach, string beans, peas and unbleached green asparagus, and a large variety of carefully selected canned fruits, including cranberry sauce and applesauce, green gage and damson plums, etc., until we felt that even the most evasive vitamin must be present.

We anticipated the lack of mineral salts in the only water available, the melted neve or granular snow being practically distilled water, by providing lime, specially treated table salt and large quantities of dehydrated foods rich in potash, iron, etc. The dehydrated potatoes, for instance, had been scrubbed but not peeled, and the rice was unpolished. Paying attention to such items was a complicating detail, but without question was a large factor in our unusually satisfactory health record.

Besides frozen carcass beef, mutton, fresh pork, etc., which we carried, and for which extensive refrigeration was necessary across the tropics, the region itself provided a great abundance of whale meat, seal meat, penguin and skua gull. The whale meat was like very coarse beef, but slightly fishy; we preferred the Crabeater seal as less gamy than the Wedell variety; the penguin seemed like not overtender beef liver flavored with fish oil, and the skua gull, according to Jack Bursey, was not quite as good as the common seagull here.

But all these were sources of fresh meat; potentially at least, and Byrd by his own example tried more than any one else to get the men accustomed to this somewhat distasteful fare, for he realized the ever-present possibility of disaster, of the ships not being able to get through the ice pack, or of the isolation of one or the other contingent. Yet the best that most of us could do was to eat very small portions of these curiosa.

The emergency food for use on the trail and on the airplane flights proved exceptionally satisfactory. The pemmican, consisting of compressed blocks of a mixture of beef, suet and cereal, depends for its palatability and quality almost entirely upon the care used in its preparation. One of the last services Amundsen did for Byrd was to supervise the preparation of this product in Denmark. We found that we could depend quite freely upon the pemmican as our principal emergency food, many of us liking it so well that we know we will miss it on our first frosty morning.

The Eskimo biscuit, a hard bread rich in bran and containing finely shredded beef, formed a perfect balance for the pemmican. It contained a large amount of roughage and became a popular bedtime snack throughout the winter. Like the pemmican, it had been made with great care, Floyd Bennett and Bernt Balchen, supervising its preparation in Canada.

How Rail Transportation First Came to St. Louis

The Name of the City Appeared, for the First Time, in the Title of a Railroad Corporation, in January, 1837.

Before the first railroad in the United States had been in successful operation for a period of five years, agitation had begun for the building of rail lines into St. Louis from the East and out of St. Louis to the great Southwest, according to Columbus Haile, president of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Lines.

Building of America's great system of rail transportation began little more than a century ago. Within 25 years from that beginning, the railroads became the main transportation agency of the country and within a century they had developed into almost the sole means of overland transportation.

The rapid expansion of rail transportation is not a matter of wonder, for commerce, ever dependent for progress chiefly on transportation, is quick to avail itself of improved means and agencies. Early civilizations in all countries clung perforce to the seaboard and the waterways because water craft provided the most economical and expeditious means of distance communication and transport. The development of the United States into the first great continental commercial nation was coincident with the growth of its rail systems, and American commerce must continue to rely on railroad transportation in increasing measure, President Haile said.

St. Louis' First Railroad.

The name of St. Louis appeared for the first time in the name of a railroad corporation in January, 1837; the St. Louis & Belleview Mineral Railroad Co., which was the progenitor of the first railroad actually to operate out of St. Louis.

Great names appear on the list of the early advocates of rail development from St. Louis. Thomas H. Benton was the first advocate in Congress of a Pacific railroad, and Stephen A. Douglas presided at a conference in October, 1849, for the purpose of promoting the construction of a St. Louis railroad.

From these early beginnings, St. Louis in the short space of half a century became the second largest railroad terminal in America, a place which once attained it has never surrendered. An average of nearly 3,000,000 freight cars are handled through the St. Louis terminal each year, and coincident with its development as a railroad center has come the city's development as a manufacturing and distributing center.

City's Rail Facilities.

Outstanding among American cities in its number of trunk line railroads and the territory they reach, St. Louis lines of trade have been extended like the spokes of a wheel in every direction, penetrating every part of the Mississippi and Ohio valleys, and carrying St. Louis trade to all sections of the Southeast and Southwest, and to the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast territories.

Through its splendid railroad facilities, St. Louis enjoys a distinctive position among American cities, both as a commercial and industrial center, and as a great traffic gateway.

INTERESTING DATA ON LOAN STATISTICS

Sources From Which Statistics Governing Brokers' Loans Are Assembled.

Relatively few persons, according to Thomas N. Dysart of the Knight, Dysart and Gamble Investment Co., know the statistics of brokers' loans, which, he says, are compiled and published from two separate and quite different sources, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and the New York Stock Exchange.

Both sets of statistics are confined to the New York market. Federal Reserve figures are compiled each week as of Wednesday, and are drawn from the lending banks and trust companies of New York which are members of the Federal Reserve System. They do not include loans on securities made by banks directly to their customers, these latter loans constituting a substantial addition to the amount of the security loans. The Federal Reserve weekly reports group total security loans reported therein, but without distinction as to loans to banks and the loans on securities made direct to other customers of the bank. Loans by the Reserve member institutions for themselves and their customers to stock brokers or security dealers not members of the exchange are included in these statistics.

The Federal Reserve figures are sub-divided into three classes: 1. Loans for the account of New York City member banks; 2. Loans made by them for the account of out-of-town banks; 3. Loans made by them for the account of other lenders; including individuals, firms and companies of this country and also foreign individuals, firms and banks. These figures are available each week back to October 5, 1917.

The second set of brokers' loan statistics is compiled by the New York Stock Exchange as of the close of business each month, being drawn from the borrowing stock brokers and security dealers who are members of the Stock Exchange. These figures are divided into two classes: 1. Loans obtained from New York banks and Trust companies; 2. Loans from private banks, brokers, foreign bank agencies and others in New York City.

The first class is to all intents and purposes, identical with the total figures reported by the Reserve Bank, although it is not entirely the same. The difference is caused chiefly by the different dates of compilation and also by the fact that Reserve members sometimes lend to stock brokers and security dealers not members of the Exchange, and also because Stock Exchange firms sometimes borrow from New York brokers and trust companies not members of the Reserve.

VALUES TO RIVAL "ST. LOUIS DAY"

300 PARK EXECUTIVES TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Animal Collectors and Plant Authorities on Four-Day Program.

The four-day convention of the American Institute of Park Executives, opening here tomorrow at Hotel Jefferson, will have in attendance more than 300 leading park executives and zoological authorities, according to members of the local convention committee.

Included in the group are a number of noted animal collectors, among which are Joseph Ellis of Australia, Herman Ruhl and Heinz Ruhl of Alfeld, Germany, and John T. Benson, a representative of the Hagenbeck zoological gardens in Germany. Henry Bartels, New York bird collector, and Herman Merkel, in charge of a large park development program in Westchester Park, N. Y., both have signified their intention of attending the meeting.

Visit to Park Zoo.

Tomorrow's program includes an address of welcome by Mayor Miller, a forum on park problems and an address by Harland Bartholomew, City Plan Commissioner, on "Park Planning in St. Louis." A visit to the Forest Park Zoo and a tour of inspection in the park is planned for the afternoon.

At Tuesday's morning session George H. Pring, superintendent of Shaw's Garden will discuss "Plant Movements," and the afternoon will be spent in a visit to Shaw's Garden and East St. Louis parks. A group of addresses are planned for the Wednesday morning meeting. Those who will speak are: Dr. Reuben Hilty of Toledo, O., discussing "The Value of Scientific Veterinary Service in a Zoological Park"; Charles J. Renner, engineer of the New York Zoological Society, who will speak on "Park Economy"; Gilmore M. Haynie, executive secretary of the park commission of Evansville, Ind., whose subject is "Value and Problems of Zoological Parks in Smaller Cities."

Discussion of Breeding.

In addition C. Emerson Brown, director of the Philadelphia Zoological Park will dscuss "Breeding and Raising Some of the Anthropoids in Captivity" and John T. Milton, director of the Zoological Park Commission of Detroit, will lecture on "Design, Construction and General Work of Building a zoological park." At the noon meeting Wednesday Dr. David C. Todd of the Board of Education, will discuss "St. Louis Municipal Athletic Ideals."

A golf tournament at the Sunset Hill Country Club, a tour of counties surrounding St. Louis and an illustrated lecture on African hunting by Mrs. Mary L. J. Akeley Wednesday night are other features of the day's meeting. The last day of the convention will be devoted entirely to business sessions.

Fred W. Pape, St. Louis Park Commissioner, is chairman of the convention committee.

HEARINGS TO BEGIN OCT. 22 ON UNION ELECTRIC AUDIT

State Public Service Commission May Cut Rates If It Approves Examiners' Report.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 27. — The Public Service Commission announced today that it would begin hearings Oct. 22 on the audit the Union Electric Light and Power Co. of St. Louis, recently completed by its accountants.

This audit, as has been told, showed the company's return for the year ending June 30, 1929, was approximately 11.2 per on an original cost valuation of about $57,000,000.

The hearings before the Commission are to enable the company to present evidence affecting the valuation. The Commission then may or may not adopt the report of the accountants. If it adopts the report it will probably order a rate reduction, unless the company voluntarily agrees to a reduction. Another possibility is that the company may ask for a full appraisal of its property, a proceeding which would take many months and be very costly.

FUNERAL OF L. M. SHLENKER

Services at 10 A. M. Tomorrow For Hat Company Official.

Funeral services for Leon M. Shlenker, secretary-treasurer of the International Harvest Hat Co., 2528 Texas avenue, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow from the Rindskopf Undertaking Co., 5216 Delmar boulevard, to Mount Sinai Cemetery.

Mr. Shlenker, who was 53 years old, died last Thursday of heart disease at Congress Hotel, where he lived with his wife, Lillie. He came to St. Louis in 1915 from Fort Smith, Ark., and had been connected with the International company since 1918.

ON WAY TO SAFETY CONGRESS

St. Louis Delegates Depart for Pittsburg, Pa.

St. Louis delegates to the annual Safety Congress at Pittsburg, Pa., departed yesterday and this morning. The meeting will open tomorrow and continue through the week.

The St. Louis delegation includes plant executives and members of the Executive Committee of the St. Louis Safety Council. Local speakers at the congress will include John Barada, Laclede Gas Light Co., E. K. Eastham, Public Service Co., and Reyburn Hoffmann, manager of the Safety Council.

CITY ART MUSEUM HOURS FOR CHILDREN

Lectures, Gallery Talks, Drawing and Story Periods Are Announced.

An extensive series of lectures, gallery talks and story hours for children has been planned by the educational department of City Art Museum in Forest Park for the season beginning Saturday and ending next May.

The program for Saturdays includes gallery talks at 10:30 a. m., a drawing period for children at 1:30 p. m. and the children's story hour at 2:30 p. m. The gallery talks to be given by Miss Caroline Gleick and Miss Mary Powell, supervisor of education, form a course on the history of art, and include discussions of current expositions. Subjects for October are: "The Land of the Nile," Oct. 4; "Greek Temples and Gods," Oct. 11; "The American Artists' Exhibition," Oct. 19, and "Spires and Lancet Windows," Oct. 25.

The drawing period for children will be conducted by Miss Margaret Wuerpel. Paper, pencil and crayons will be furnished, and the subjects are to be selected from among the museum's collections. Museum games, based on the collection, are to be held each Saturday at 2 p. m., with Miss Gleick and Miss Elise Mardorf in charge. Miss Powell will conduct the story hours. Stories from legend and history are told in relation to objects on view in the galleries and children are encouraged to participate in the discussion which follows:

During October and November there will be a special series of stories for children less than 7 years old. Subjects include "How the Camel Got His Hump," "Why the Sea Is Salt," and "Bird of China."

Museum hours for adults are to be held on Tuesdays at 11 o'clock and repeated at 10 o'clock Fridays. Miss Powell will give informal talks on the museum collections and on special exhibitions.

A series of talks on prints will begin Oct. 8, and continue until March 25. One will be given each Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Discussion of the various processes of print making will be illustrated by examples from the museum's collection.

Business and Art Club to Have Monthly Dinners.

The formation of a "Business and Art Club" by the St. Louis Art League, at which business men and artists will meet once each month at dinner to discuss practical art problems is a feature of the league's program for the new season, announced yesterday by I. R. L. Wiles, president.

Exhibitions planned include a special collection of pictures interpreting the scenic charm of the Missouri Ozarks and a loan collection of St. Louis art from early days to the present. These are to be shown in the memorial galleries of the old Courthouse. The Thumb Box exhibition, an annual feature, will again be held.

The league plans to issue a quarterly magazine and a monthly bulletin of art news. Early next year a campaign to raise funds for a new building will be undertaken.

The architectural prize for the most outstanding building erected in St. Louis each year will be revived, the prize to be a picture of the building painted by a member of the league. A drama competition will be sponsored, and prize-winning plays will be produced next spring.

REAL ESTATE MAN SOUGHT

R. C. Wilson, Wood River, Ill., Wanted on Contempt Summons.

Efforts to locate Richard C. Wilson, missing Wood River, Ill., Justice of the Peace, and Republican candidate last spring for the office of Sheriff of Madison County, have proven unavailing, according to a report submitted to Circuit Judge Louis Bernreuter in the Circuit Court at Edwardsville by Sheriff Otto Herman.

Wilson is being sought by the Sheriff to serve a summons in contempt proceedings growing out of a divorce action of his wife, Mrs. Rose Wilson. At a previous court hearing Wilson was ordered to pay $15 a week alimony; not to molest his wife or take their three children, and to leave their furniture undisturbed. Claims are made by Mrs. Wilson that all provisions have been broken. When Wilson disappeared several weeks ago it was said he had taken their two older children, both boys, with him. The youngest child, a daughter, is with her mother.

MORROW TO BE IN ST. LOUIS

Will Pass Through City on Way Back to Start Campaign.

Dwight W. Morrow, United States Ambassador to Mexico, returning to New Jersey to begin his campaign for United States Senator, will pass through St. Louis early today.

Coming from Mexico City, in a private car, the Ambassador's party will arrive at Union Station at 7:30 a. m. on a Rock Island train and will leave for New York at 9:02 a. m. on the Pennsylvania's "American."

English Teacher to Visit St. Louis.

Miss Marie L. Roberts of the Chesterfield Girls' School, Chesterfield, England, will arrive in St. Louis tomorrow evening for several days, during which she will inspect St. Louis schools. Her study tour of the United States is sponsored by the Kentucky chapter of the English-Speaking Union. In St. Louis, she will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis, 8 Brentmoor Park, Clayton.

COSTE AND BELLONTE NOT TO PARADE HERE

Luncheon to Be Held Instead—They Will Arrive Next Friday Morning.

There will be no parade for Coste and Bellonte, French trans-Atlantic flyers, during their stay in St. Louis next Friday and Saturday. Instead, plans for a civic reception, at which the public will have an opportunity to see them, are being prepared by the Chamber of Commerce.

The flyers, at present on the West Coast, will arrive at Lambert-St. Louis Field next Friday morning, according to word from their manager. The exact time of arrival will be announced later. They will be taken to Hotel Jefferson, where a large luncheon in their honor will be held. Invitations for the luncheon will be mailed out tomorrow night. Details of the affair have not been completed.

Tentative plans call for the flyers' public appearance following the luncheon. Plans for a parade were abandoned when it was learned that the aviators would seek to rest as much as possible while in St. Louis, as they have been flying almost daily for several weeks. It is expected that they will be received by Mayor Miller at city hall, and have expressed a desire to inspect the Lindbergh trophy collection at Jefferson Memorial.

Coste and Bellonte are scheduled to leave St. Louis next Saturday morning for Memphis, Tenn.

Welder, Ill, Kills Himself.

John Doroghazi, 33 years old, a welder, ended his life by shooting himself in the head in his room at his brother's home, 1751 Chestnut street, Granite City, yesterday. He had been ill for several days.

MADISON CASHIER SILENT ON APPARENT SHORTAGE

Tri-City Bank President Says State Examiner Found $19,983 Missing.

R. B. Studebaker, cashier of the Tri-City State Bank of Madison, declined to comment yesterday on the statement made by President O. S. Schooley that State bank examiners had found an apparent shortage of $19,983 in the cashier's account.

The bank was closed Sept. 3 when it was announced negotiations were under way to transfer its ownership to a financial group. State Bank Examiner Rodenberger began an audit at once. Schooley's announcement Friday followed a conference at Springfield between directors of the bank, State Auditor Nelson and Chief Bank Examiner Nicholson.

Studebaker was treasurer of the village of Madison, but resigned after the bank was closed. He is also treasurer of the Venice Township School Board.

CONVICTIONS IN ALL CRIME TRIALS OF WEEK

Slayer Gets Death Penalty — Pistol Toter and Auto Thief Found Guilty.

Juries for the second consecutive week convicted all persons who went to trial in the criminal division of Circuit Court last week, one receiving the death penalty and two others being found guilty of infractions of major crime statutes.

The death penalty was assessed against Amos Carroll, 45 years old, Negro, of 1927 Franklin avenue, who shot and killed another Negro, Roy Clark, the father of five children, who had become indebted to Carroll for the board of his motherless family to the extent of $10. Carroll tried to collect the obligation after Clark moved from his premises. He was not successful in a justice court, so on May 12 last he went to Clark's home and killed him. Carroll has served notice that he will appeal the jury's decision.

The others convicted by juries were Peter Viviano, a service car chauffeur on the Washington-Delmar route, who was found guilty of carrying a concealed weapon, and Earl Coleman, 20, Negro, 3944 West Belle place, who was adjudged guilty of the theft of a motor vehicle. Viviano was fined $105, which was paid, and Coleman is to serve six months in city jail. Coleman was arrested in the automobile of James Smith, an employe of the Wabash Railroad, which had been taken from Grand and Cook avenues on April 5.

Four men pleaded guilty during the week and received penitentiary sentences. They were: C. J. McFarlane, embezzlement by bailee, five years' imprisonment, and Emmett Martin, James Thomas and William Pain, each of whom pleaded guilty of burglary and larceny of motor vehicles, receiving concurrent sentences of three years for each crime. All the cases were before Judge Rutledge and were prosecuted by Assistant Circuit Attorney John L. Sullivan.

NEISNERS LEASE STORE BUILDING ON SOUTH GRAND

99-Year Leasehold Acquired South of Arsenal From Dickmann Company at Rental Based on $4000 a Foot.

DOWNTOWN DEALS BEING NEGOTIATED

Activity Regarded as Favorable Omen — Education and N. O. Nelson Properties Figure in Market.

By Berry Moore

A 99-year lease acquired by Neisner Bros., Inc., a nationally known chain store concern, on a three-story building at 3121-23-25 South Grand boulevard, is said to have set a new record for inside property in this part of the city.

As announced by the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co., the lessors, the lease involves an annual net rental of $9000 for the first five years and $10,000 a year for the remainder of the term, or an average net rental of $9980. On a 5 per cent basis, the property thus is given a valuation of approximately $200,000, or $4000 a foot for the Grand boulevard frontage. In addition, the Neisner company will expend a large amount in altering and remodeling the building, it is announced.

A Neisner store will occupy the entire building. The site has a frontage of 50 feet on South Grand by a depth of 135 feet. It is situated just south of Arsenal street. Possession is to be given Oct. 1.

The building, which is known as Dickmann Hall, was purchased five years ago by Barney F. Dickmann and Otto F. Dickmann, composing the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co., to insure light for the seven-story Dickmann building adjoining on the north.

The ground floor of the Dickmann building is occupied by the Woolworth company under a long lease at a very substantial rental. The Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. several years ago acquired a 99-year lease of the southeast corner of Grand boulevard and Arsenal street, while the Walgreen Drug Co. recently acquired a long lease of the southwest corner of Grand boulevard and Arsenal street, which is to be remodeled for a store to be opened Jan. 1.

Downtown Negotiations.

It is pointed to as a favorable omen that negotiations have been resumed for a number of large properties in the downtown district coincident with the advent of the fall season.

These include among others the building at the southeast corner of Tenth and Chestnut streets, formerly occupied by the N. O. Nelson Manufacturing Co., and the Board of Education property at the northwest corner of Ninth and Locust street, comprising a quarter of a block in each instance.

Offers are reported as having been renewed for the N. O. Nelson building, an eight-story, slow combustion structure, one of the largest available for jobbing or light manufacturing purposes in the central business area. The building was inspected last week by a large manufacturing concern which has begun negotiations for it, it is understood.

The N. O. Nelson building has been placed on the market through Martin & Breitt for sale or for lease. It was erected by the Liggett estate for the N. O. Nelson Co., which took it under a 99-year lease, subsequently purchasing the fee to the property. A relatively low sale price has been placed on it, according to real estate men.

The N. O. Nelson Co. vacated the Tenth and Chestnut street building last fall when it moved to its new building at Duncan and Boyle avenues. The move was decided upon because of the railroad facilities of the Duncan avenue location together with its geographical advantages for local distribution. The new building of the N. O. Nelson Co. is situated just east of the auxiliary plant being erected on the south side of Duncan avenue west of Boyle by the Post-Dispatch.

Education Building Deal.

Arthur Blumeyer, president of the Board of Education, said yesterday that Shaw & Francis, real estate operators, had signified their intention of concluding the deal initiated by the late W. J. Holbrook for the Board of Education property at Ninth and Locust streets. Shaw & Francis were identified with the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Co. in various apartment building and subdivision enterprises in the Moorlands, now known Claverach Park.

On a 5 per cent basis, the property thus is given a valuation of approximately $200,000, or $4000 a foot for the Grand boulevard frontage. In addition, the Neisner company will expend a large amount in altering and remodeling the building, it is announced.

A Neisner store will occupy the entire building. The site has a frontage of 50 feet on South Grand by a depth of 135 feet. It is situated just south of Arsenal street. Possession is to be given Oct. 1.

The building, which is known as Dickmann Hall, was purchased five years ago by Barney F. Dickmann and Otto F. Dickmann, composing the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co., to insure light for the seven-story Dickmann building adjoining on the north.

The ground floor of the Dickmann building is occupied by the Woolworth company under a long lease at a very substantial rental. The Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. several years ago acquired a 99-year lease of the southeast corner of Grand boulevard and Arsenal street, while the Walgreen Drug Co. recently acquired a long lease of the southwest corner of Grand boulevard and Arsenal street, which is to be remodeled for a store to be opened Jan. 1.

Downtown Negotiations.

It is pointed to as a favorable omen that negotiations have been resumed for a number of large properties in the downtown district coincident with the advent of the fall season.

These include among others the building at the southeast corner of Tenth and Chestnut streets, formerly occupied by the N. O. Nelson Manufacturing Co., and the Board of Education property at the northwest corner of Ninth and Locust street, comprising a quarter of a block in each instance.

Offers are reported as having been renewed for the N. O. Nelson building, an eight-story, slow combustion structure, one of the largest available for jobbing or light manufacturing purposes in the central business area. The building was inspected last week by a large manufacturing concern which has begun negotiations for it, it is understood.

The N. O. Nelson building has been placed on the market through Martin & Breitt for sale or for lease. It was erected by the Liggett estate for the N. O. Nelson Co., which took it under a 99-year lease, subsequently purchasing the fee to the property. A relatively low sale price has been placed on it, according to real estate men.

The N. O. Nelson Co. vacated the Tenth and Chestnut street building last fall when it moved to its new building at Duncan and Boyle avenues. The move was decided upon because of the railroad facilities of the Duncan avenue location together with its geographical advantages for local distribution. The new building of the N. O. Nelson Co. is situated just east of the auxiliary plant being erected on the south side of Duncan avenue west of Boyle by the Post-Dispatch.

Education Building Deal.

Arthur Blumeyer, president of the Board of Education, said yesterday that Shaw & Francis, real estate operators, had signified their intention of concluding the deal initiated by the late W. J. Holbrook for the Board of Education property at Ninth and Locust streets. Shaw & Francis were identified with the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Eestate Co. in various apartment building and subdivision enterprises in the Moorlands, now known Claverach Park.

The deal contemplates acquisition of the Board of Education Building under a 99-year lease, with plans for three additional stories. It is proposed to alter and remodel the first six floors for a woman's apparel shop. The seventh floor is to be retained by the Board of Education, and the upper floors are to be leased to an insurance company.

Holbrook sought the Board of Education property, captivated by the possibiliities of this part of the city, notably plans for a huge combination department store and office building for the Federal building block, bounded by Ninth, Olive, Locust and Eighth streets. The latter will be available with the completion of the proposed new Federal building on the block between Market and Walnut and Eleventh and Twelfth streets.

More Confident Attitude Shown.

Skouras Brothers had previously submitted an offer for a 99-year lease for the Board of Education property, with plans for a 37-story building. The 99-year leasehold of the Victoria Building at the northwest corner of Eighth and Locust streets, was purchased by Skouras Brothers several years ago, with plans for ultimately replacing the present building with a taller structure.

A more confident attitude was shown during the week on the part of prospective purchasers, especially those in the investment fields. In the opinion of W. A. Giraldin, president of the Giraldin Bros. Real Estate Co., just returned from the North, a comparatively good fall is in prospect.

This is indicated, he says, from offers submitted for investment and residential holdings.

Prices have reached levels which are attracting the attention of both investors and speculators, he says.

ROBERT B. WALLACE HOME LEASED FOR TWO YEARS

Albert T. Terry & Co. reports having leased the country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Wallace in the St. Louis Country Club grounds to Mr. and Mrs. Allen L. Snider, of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., for two years.

Two Join Real Estate Exchange.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, Frank Mead, manager of the St. Louis branch of the accident and liability department of the Aetna Life Insurance Co., and George Grimm Jr., assistant engineer of the Department of Streets and Sewers, were admitted to affiliated membership.

Drive to Clear Debt on Home.

A campaign to clear the Catherine Springer Home for employed young women, 220 North Spring avenue, of a remaining $8000 indebtedness has been initiated by directors of the home to celebrate the tenth anniversary of its founding. Its present property was purchased for $75,000 by the St. Louis Woman's Christian Association. It is otherwise self-supporting.

ONE SAMPLE HOME SOON TO BE BUILT

Perfect Homes, Inc., Proposes to Start Construction in Near Future.

Plans are being drawn for the sample house, intended to exemplify the best standards of residence design, material construction and workmanship, to be built by Perfect Homes, Inc., organized for this purpose.

The sample house is to be built in a suitable location which will be announced later. It was stated in the Post-Dispatch Aug. 31 that a number of such homes would be built. This, it has since been learned, was incorrect. Trustees of the new company have explained that the plan contemplates only a single structure.

Charles Paul, R. L. Mernagh and C. H. Heidbrink, who have been appointed trustees for the enterprise, in an authorized statement explaining the matter, said: "Many reports have reached various departments of government regarding shoddy building and impositions on the public. President Hoover in due time initiated a better homes plan, which, locally, the Building Industries Exhibit Bureau, Inc., Arcade Building, in collaboration with the local chapter of the American Institute of Architects, is attempting to carry out in St. Louis.

"In order to show the public what it is entitled to in the way of best design, material construction and workmanship, they concluded to build a sample home. Plans are being prepared and construction will start in the near future. They selected the best materials for the construction, and selected also a board of three trustees to handle the work."

The trustees are members of various branches of the material trades. Paul is secretary of the Standard Sash & Door Co., Mernagh is sales manager of the Alton Brick Co. and Heidbrink is president of the Vitrolite Sales Co. They explained that they were interested in the new enterprise solely as a matter of public information as to standards of home building, and not as a promotional or commercial scheme, in competition with their own clients.

Last winter members of the St. Louis Chapter, American Institute of Architects, carried on an educational campaign in a series of radio talks explaining the architects' service, design, workmanship and materials and it is for the purpose of demonstrating these educational talks that this home is to be built.

PREDICTS CONSISTENT GAIN IN REAL ESTATE BUSINESS

Consistent improvement in the real estate business from now on is the prediction made by Herbert U. Nelson, executive secretary of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, following the recent annual convention of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America, at Detroit, Mich.

Nelson attended the meeting and spoke on "New Uses for Real Estate." He reports that the convention was well attended and that the feeling of the country's leading mortgage men toward real estate projects was one of confidence.

"From the meeting as a whole it was apparent that over-financed and speculative building has been pretty thoroughly eliminated and that funds for needed projects are now available for financing sound developments," Nelson reported.

Real estate market activity for August is indicated by the figure 69.6, according to the index compiled monthly by the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The index is based on official reports of the total number of deeds recorded in 63 typical cities throughout the country. Real estate activity for 1926 is taken as the base year in computing the monthly figure.

PREDICTS SWING TOWARDS NORMALCY NEXT SUMMER

Executive Secretary of National Building Trades Employers Foresees Steady Resumption of Construction This Winter.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Steady resumption of building activities during the winter months, renewed activity by Jan. 1, and a swing toward normalcy during the summer of 1931 were predicted today by E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers, who made public a survey of conditions in the United States and Canadian cities. He said the low point of depression had passed and a slow, steady return to activity might be expected.

"One factor intended to aid the Nation's building industry to emerge from its depression will be official ratification of the new Board of Trade claims by the convention of the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor Oct. 3," he said.

"This is a tribunal established for adjustment of jurisdictional disputes between building trades. Its inauguration was urged by President Hoover, who declared its adoption would maintain public confidence in building."

INCREASE IN INQUIRIES FOR HOME PROPERTY REPORTED

Inquiries for home and investment property have shown an increase recently, according to Louis F. Yeckel, president of Yeckel, Earickson & Co., Inc.

The company reports the following sales: 4955 Upton street to Charles Dischinger; 5207 Upton street to Joseph Cizek; 6126 Wanda avenue to Charles Goell; 6140 Wanda to Willbert L. Wulf.

The firm sold a lot on the west side of Alexander street, near Neosho, for Theresa Goin to Herman Rolfes, who will improve with a home; also a lot on the west side of Thirty-seventh street, south of Osceola, for the Norso Realty Co., to Joseph P. Schenker, who is improving the lot with a bungalow. The firm also sold a flat at 3639 Pennsylvania avenue for Harry A. Daume to Charles Bogdan.

DELBERT S. WENZLICK TO ADDRESS ARCHITECTS

Delbert S. Wenzlick, vice president and treasurer of the Albert Wenzlick Real Estate Co., will address the first fall meeting of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, to be held at the Hotel Chase Tuesday evening.

Wenzlick will discuss "Systematic Research vs. Incidental Experience in Selling Real Estate." The Wenzlick firm for several years has been a pioneer in the systematic study of the basic factors effecting trends. Some of their work has received widespread recognition, especially that deaing with the analysis and valuation of pedestrian traffic from the standpoint of purchasing power for specific merchants.

Wenzlick also is scheduled to speak at the convention of the Wisconsin Real Estate Association, to be held at Racine, Wis., in October.

CALLS HOUSING TOWN PLANNING PROBLEM

Architect Disputes Contention It Is Centered Chiefly on Better Financing.

Housing is more a problem of town-planning than one of the financing purchasers of homes, according to Henry Wright, architect and city-plan expert. In an article on "Prosperity and the Architect," appearing in the October issue of the Architectural Record, Wright says: "In the recent announcement of a Washington conference on home building there is an indication of some appreciation of the importance of city planning and contingent factors, yet the emphasis has been centered largely on better financing. No one will deny the importance of credit in stimulating home building, but if credit is merely to add more rows of flimsy, monotonous houses to those unfortunate border communities which remain to us from the great landbooms of 1922-26, we could almost wish that such credit might be suppressed. Only one worse fate could be imagined, that new home-owning agitation may again be used as a cloak to open up more miles of unused vacant lots or sparsely populated wastes of cement sidewalks and rusting utility pipes of which we have acquired enough to satisfy even the most ardent expansionist.

"Here is a study in regional needs as well as in the changing habits and requirements of the normal family which might well occupy the enforced leisure of local groups in the profession and which, if intelligently directed, might bring forth concrete suggestions, which could be put into operation as a result of the projected conference."

Wright is of the opinion that the most important architectural accomplishments of past and present have been building projects undertaken in the community interest, even though many of them have been promoted and financed by individuals. The new tendency of architectural thought which views housing as a problem of community and environment rather than one of catering to individual tastes is destined to broaden the field of usefulness of architects' services and give them an increased participation in the designing and building of habitations for the great mass of the American people.

"Acquire a home and then realize the deficiencies of your environment," says Wright, "has been the unfortunate experience of countless thousands during the last generation. Here is a single problem which more muddled agitation has been taking place than any other. Not only is it large enough to occupy a considerable part of the thought of the profession, but it represents by far the largest block of normal building construction and probably the smallest percentage of architectural participation. Some advance may be shown by statistics over the past 10-year period, but it scarcely yet represents more than a fraction of the possible contribution of architects to the community or its possible importance to the profession."

$17,933,200 CONSTRUCTION IN ST. LOUIS AREA IN AUGUST

This Total Slightly More Than in July, But Far Below Month Last Year; Public Works Building Leads.

New construction in August in the St. Louis territory (Southern Illinois, Eastern Missouri, Northeast Arkansas, Western Tennessee and Northwest Mississippi) totaled $17,933,200 as against $17,474,000 in July and $29,274,000 in August of last year, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. The last month's record showed $10,416,800 for public works and utilities, $4,604,100 for nonresidential building, and $2,912,300 for residential building. The nonresidential total included $2,044,500 for industrial plants, $888,400 for commercial structures, $721,800 for educational buildings, and $949,400 for all other nonresidential buildings. Construction undertaken in this area during the first eight months of 1930 aggregated $178,439,600 as against $185,574,900 for the same period of 1929.

Awards for new construction Missouri for August totaled $15,466,100, as compared with $11,622,200 in July and $19,567,900 in August, 1929. The August, 1930, record showed $9,062,200 for public works tand utilities, $4,165,000 for nonresidential building, and $2,238,900 for residential building. The nonresidential total included $1,760,000 for industrial plants, $954,000 for educational buildings, $609,500 for commercial buildings, and $841,500 for all other nonresidential buildings. For the first eight months of 1930 new Missouri construction totaled $172,625,200 as against $150,946,900 during the corresponding period of 1929.

St. Louis contracts in August totaled $1,735,300 as against $2,804,800 in July and $7,904,100 in August, 1929. The August, 1930, record showed $856,000 for residential buildings, $724,400 for public works and utilities, and $154,900 for nonresidential buildings. For the first eight months of 1930 construction undertaken in St. Louis totaled $24,009,300, as against $44,865,800 in the same period of 1929.

August awards for new construction in Texas totaled $9,892,000 as against $14,003,900 in July and $17,972,300 in August, 1929. Contracts let for new construction of all types during August in the Central Northwest (Minnesota, the Dakotas, Northern Michigan and Northwest Wisconsin), totaled $7,023,600, as against $10,433,500 in July and $9,019,200 in August of last year.

ST. LOUISAN IN CHAIR AT DETROIT SESSION

G. C. Smith to Preside Over Division at Realty Board's Conference Oct. 27-28.

George C. Smith of St. Louis, chairman of the industrial property division, will preside at its sessions during the conference of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in Detroit, Mich., Oct. 27 and 28.

The afternoon of the second day of the conference will be taken up with an inspection trip of industrial areas.

The importance of power as a factor in locating industries and advantageous power rates will be discussed by C. P. Wood, New York City engineer, on the morning of Oct. 28. Power, Wood thinks, is not so important a factor today in plant location as it was formerly, because of the development of transmission lines, supplied by large steam and hydro generating stations serving all the most important sections of the country, and making comparatively cheap power available to all classes of industry.

Virgil Jordan, New York City, economist, will give a survey of the fields in which the services of the industrial location experts will be most needed in the future. Following Jordan's address, there will be a round-table discussion based on the material presented by him.

18 PLANES LAND IN DETROIT ENDING NATIONAL AIR TOUR

Harry L. Russell of Detroit Wins $7500 Edsel Ford Trophy; Other Prizes Awarded.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 27.—The 18 contesting planes in the 1930 national air tour sped into Ford Airport late today, completing a 4500-mile jaunt through the Midwest and Canadian prairie provinces.

Harry L. Russell, Detroit, was announced winner of the $7500 Edsel Ford reliability trophy and a $2500 cash prize.

John Livingston, Aurora, Ill., landed second, gaining a $2000 cash prize. Third was Art Davis, Lansing, Mich., pilot, and fourth was Myron E. Zeller, Detroit. Davis and Zeller will receive $1750 and $1500 respectively.

Eddie Schneider, junior transcontinental record holder and youngest pilot on the tour, landed in eighth place but was announced winner of the Great Lakes trophy offered for lower powered planes. Miss Nancy Hopkins, only woman pilot on the trip, arrived in last place. The fliers finishing from fifth to tenth place received awards from $1250 to $300.

Those finishing after the first four contestants in order were: George Haldeman, New Castle, Del.; W. H. Beech, Wichita, Kan.; J. W. Smith, New Castle, Del.; Eddie Schneider, Jersey City, N. J.; T. T. Wadlow, Wichita, Kan.; Les Bowman, Los Angeles, Cal.; J. B. Story, Kansas City, Mo.; B. Stevenson, Moline, Ill.; Charles Meyers, Cleveland; L. Ruch, Kansas City; W. J. Carr, Detroit; H. C. Mummert, Hammondsport, N. Y.; George Meissner, New York, and Nancy Hopkins, Washington, D. C.

ANDES MOUNTAIN EARTHQUAKE

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 17.—Fragmentary reports reaching Salta today brought news of an earthquake in the Andes Mountains last Tuesday in which several villages were either razed or severely damaged. At least one death occurred, that of a woman.

One shock was felt in Salta. About 37 consecutive shocks were experienced in the Calchaquies Valley. The villages of La Merced, Montevideo, Poyogastilla, Lavima and San Carlos suffered serious damage. Santa Rosa was said to have been razed.

LEADING CITIES REPORT BUILDING PROSPECTS

St. Louis Outlook Listed as "Excellent" in Survey; Fair Fall Program.

Reports from builders in 175 cities in the United States and Canada indicate a fairly active construction program for fall and early winter, according to E. M. Craig, the executive secretary of the National Association of Building Trades Employers, who has made an analysis of construction, compiled by the builders' research department.

One factor intended to stimulate building will be the official ratification of the new Board of Trade Claims by the convention of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor in Boston on Oct. 3.

This is a tribunal established for adjustment of jurisdictional disputes between building trades. Craig said the building contractors of both the United States and Canada think the building depression will begin to pass after Jan. 1, but points out, that the upgrade will not become noticeable until spring.

Boston builders report construction will show renewed signs of activity in early spring. Most of the work being done there now is on public construction projects and many of the Boston schools are included in this line. Boston builders report 45 per cent of resident building mechanics employed and that ample funds are available for home building at 6 and 7 per cent interest.

New York Outlook Poor.

Secretary William G. Wheeler of the New York Building Trades Employers' Association sees little prospect of renewed building activities until the spring of 1931. He states between 40 and 50 per cent of the resident mechanics are now employed, as against 70 and 80 per cent in the fall of 1929.

Des Moines, good. Cincinnati builders report a large sized building program, Cleveland, fair, Toledo, poor; Dayton, fairly good. Duluth, fair; Minneapolis, not so good; St. Paul, good; St. Louis, excellent; Billings, Mont., poor; Butte, fair; Great Falls, fair; Kansas City, only fair; Asheville, N. C., good; Charlotte, N. C., fair; Fargo, N. D. construction larger than in 1929; Boise, very good; Wichita, fair; St. Joseph, Mo., 50 per cent decrease over 1929 and Salt Lake City, fair.

Special Chicago Plans.

Chicago builders are hopeful of a spring revival with further development of street car extensions and construction of world's fair buildings. Plans have been advanced by the Building Construction Employers' Association in this city to stimulate employment for resident tradesmen by having home modernizing done at this time of the year. The campaign of the American Construction Council to eradicate tenement neighborhoods in large American cities has been taken up by the local builders.

SALE OF LOT ANNOUNCED BY HENRY R. WEISELS CO.

Henry R. Feisels Co. announces the sale of a lot on the sast side of Fifteenth street, at the southeast corner of Linden, about 177 feet south of Morgan street, owend by Miss Thekla M. Bernays of New York City. The identity of the purchaser is withheld.

The lot has a frontage of 70 feet by a depth of 34 feet and is directly opposite the new 10-story warehouse of the International Shoe Co., now under construction.

Cardinals' 1926 Flag on Exhibit.

The 1926 world championship flag of the Cardinals officially raised at Sportsman's Park in 1927 by Col. Lindbergh will be put on display along with the other Lindbergh trophies in Jefferson Memorial today.

625 Skinker Boulevard

With its beautiful apartments of 7, 8, 9 or 10 rooms, and plentitude of baths, has been acknowledged and accepted by St. Louis' best families as an address of social significance.

Distinctively Different

In every respect 625 Skinker Boul. has shown the way to the ultimate in modern apartment homes. From its setting at the west end of Forest Park to such details as forced electric ventilation, this beautiful building offers to its residents all of the finest conveniences known to present day architects. The rentals are surprisingly reasonable. Inspect the model apartment that has been furnished for your inspection.

Skinker Boulevard at Northwood

The moment you enter one of these apartments you notice that environment of rich dignity. The conveniences—the appointments—the service . . . all bespeak those characteristics that establish in these apartments a finer scale of living.

THE CONGRESS—

Apartments providing 3 to 5 room efficiency offer a delightful flexibility of living. Complete hotel service, or service by the hour. Furnished or unfurnished—complete with all modern appointments.

The art of fashionable living attains new heights of excellence at these apartments, where niceties of service and luxurious appointments blend into one exquisite ensemble of perfection.

THE SENATE—

Offers large housekeeping apartments of 7 to 8 room sizes with two and three baths. Every room an outside room. All apartments are up-to-the-minute and no detail has been overlooked.

There Are Different Kinds of Higher Up Jobs

—but the method of finding the right man to fill the place is the same in all cases—for the better workers nearly all read Post-Dispatch Help Wanted Columns to find work—and help wanted calls placed in the Post-Dispatch find the right man who is looking for the vacancy.

The Post-Dispatch regularly leads all other St. Louis newspapers in the number of paid help wanted advertisements printed—and this newspaper reaches far more readers in St. Louis than any other newspaper—morning or evening, daily or Sunday.

A Setting of Unusual Beauty

. . . for your fine home

HERE are home sites of unusual beauty . . . shaded by great trees . . . covered with rich blue grass . . . along the top of a high, gently-rolling ridge . . . at Lake Forest.

Go out to Clayton and Hanley roads today. Drive in, past the new entrance gates, over the new system of drives.

But do not try to see Lake Forest from the seat of your motor. You'll miss half its charm that way! Get out and tramp around under the great trees, over the thick turf, sprinkled now with a covering of autumn leaves.

See for yourself what a beautiful setting this new, restricted residence section will make for fine homes!

See, too, what an opportunity offers for sound investment . . . investment in property situated in the heart of the fashionable West End, in a region where values are increasing daily.

SKILL AND BEAUTY

Are being built into the modern bungalows in NORTHAMPTON PARK because we believe you and your family want more than just a house to live in. We restricted NORTHAMPTON PARK to bungalows of first-class workmanship to be sure you would enjoy good health as far as honest modern construction could insure it. But in NORTHAMPTON PARK you get more because your home here will be a thing of beauty with

PLEASANT SURROUNDINGS

NORTHAMPTON PARK is building up on the highest spot in all St. Louis, away from the smoke and dirt but still on a direct short line down town.

BUY OR BUILD

Buy a beautiful home already built by one of these first-class builders: Richardson Const. Co., Frank Hortleder Building Co., Kurt Mayer Const. Co., Leo Kozeny & Son Const. Co., Frank Hardt Const. Co., or buy a fine building lot and build to your own plans.

SEE THE DISPLAY HOME

This home, completely furnished by Trorlicht-Duncker, is here for your inspection any day at all hours. It is worth the trip; come and see it. (Built by Richardson.)

DAVID P. LEAHY & STEDELIN BROS.,
Owners of NORTHAMPTON PARK.

6 PICTURESQUE BRICK BUNGALOWS

Now being erected at 6701 to 6719 Oleatha, in Ivanhoe Park, where all homesites are on a hillside; 5 large rooms and bath on first floor and second floor can be finished into 2 additional rooms if wanted; 13-inch brick walls, hardwood floors, hot-water heat, vitrolite bath and kitchen and front drive to garage; also a wonderful basement that can be used as a playroom for the kiddies or grown-ups; each home on a large lot, 40x160, with front and side streets, walks and city sewers made; have built more than 100 bungalows in "Lindenwood" and I invite you to inspect these picturesque homes and compare prices and quality with other homes; prices as low as $8900 with garage. Drive south on Watson Boulevard to Oleatha avenue (only 3500 south), and then 2 blocks up the hill. Very handy to green and yellow bus and public and Catholic schools. These homes are nearing completion; inspect them now. Open all week.

k of Late Summer Recovery Reached on Above Date — Composite Level of 90 Shares Breaks Through the Year's Low t Final Session of Week

S. STEEL TOUCHES 157 1-4 AT DAY'S LOW

arish Professionals, Having Met With Little Reistance in the Last Fortnight Seemed Intent on Breaking the June Low Levels

he Associated Press.
EW YORK, Sept. 27.—A 20-t decline in the averages since . 10, which was the peak of late summer recovery in share es, is the stock market's new record.

oday the composite price of 90 ks carried in the standard istics averages broke through year's low. Constantly increas- pressure from professional rces, which brought a steady of liquidation from holders had bought well above pres- prices, has been forcing the ket steadily lower for nearly e weeks. The momentum of movement has been so strong the support so timid that the blishment of a new low index the year was rather inevitable. ear traders, with this goal to ot at, have spared no ammuni- in their attack, for they have eved that the psychological ef- t of the break would bring out more selling, some in the form collateral on the banks' loans. th the trade recovery slow, com- dity prices distinctly weak and r third quarter earnings state- nts just around the corner, mat- have played into the hands of shorts.

News of the Week.

Wall street is now willing to ad- that it made a poor guess en it supposed that the fall re- l of trade would be vigorous, bid stocks up to meet its es. There has been improve- nt in business, but it is slow; ever, the cooler heads are ar- ng that too much must not be pected in view of the sweeping djustments that have been evi- nt throughout the world in the t year.

The week ended today heard the couraging report of a 2 per cent rt in steel production and the d news that employment had en an upward trend. On the er hand, the wheat market was erely agitated, copper companies duced their dividends and money akened. The latter development, de from helping bonds, was bear- ly construed for it bore out the ry told by the weekly bank state- nts of the slow demand for com- rcial credit.

Unsettling rumors from abroad d a disturbing effect on a mar- t sensitive to every breath. There s also a report that Federal Re- rve member banks were being ged to liquidate loans, but this s denied.

The cumulative effect of the gen- l impatience, nervousness and couragement, whether needless not, was to stimulate trading in cks to the highest point since ne.

Notwithstanding late covering the -share average today broke just der the June 24 low of 154. At e close this composite stood at .2, while both the industrial and ilroad averages had punctured eir old minimums. The utilities ld only one-tenth of a point ove the group's bottom level of 4.7.

Bearish professionals, having t with little resistance in the t fortnight, seemed intent on netrating the June lows. Rail- ads, oils and coppers drew the rcest fire, but the general mar- t was weak. Rallies seemed a ttle more frequent, although they re still feeble, and shorts who anted to close out for the week d found little trouble in cover- g. The market was at its best at e close when enough buying me in to lift a few stocks higher the day and reduce the losses l around. Several important ares were only fractionally off.

ak of Late Summer Recovery Reached on Above Date — Composite Level of 90 Shares Breaks Through the Year's Low at Final Session of Week

S. STEEL TOUCHES 157 1-4 AT DAY'S LOW

earish Professionals, Having Met With Little Resistance in the Last Fortnight Seemed Intent on Breaking the June Low Levels

the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A 20-int decline in the averages since pt. 10, which was the peak of late summer recovery in share ices, is the stock market's new record.

Today the composite price of 90 cks carried in the standard tistics averages broke through e year's low. Constantly increasing pressure from professional urces, which brought a steady w of liquidation from holders o had bought well above present prices, has been forcing the arket steadily lower for nearly ee weeks. The momentum of e movement has been so strong d the support so timid that the ablishment of a new low index the year was rather inevitable. Bear traders, with this goal to ot at, have spared no ammunin in their attack, for they have lieved that the psychological eft of the break would bring out ll more selling, some in the form collateral on the banks' loans. ith the trade recovery slow, comdity prices distinctly weak and or third quarter earnings statents just around the corner, mate have played into the hands of e shorts.

News of the Week.

Wall street is now willing to adt that it made a poor guess en it supposed that the fall reval of trade would be vigorous, d bid stocks up to meet its pes. There has been improvent in business, but it is slow; ever, the cooler heads are arng that too much must not be pected in view of the sweeping adjustments that have been evint throughout the world in the st year.

The week ended today heard the encouraging report of a 3 per cent urt in steel production and the od news that employment had ken an upward trend. On the her hand, the wheat market was verely agitated, copper companies duced their dividends and money akened. The latter development, ide from helping bonds, was bearly construed for it bore out the ory told by the weekly bank statements of the slow demand for commercial credit.

Unsettling rumors from abroad d a disturbing effect on a mart sensitive to every breath. There as also a report that Federal Reerve member banks were being ged to liquidate loans, but this s denied.

INCREASED TRADE MARKS WEEK ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

Wagner Electric, International Shoe and National Candy Show Losses for the Period — Mo. Portland Higher.

An increased volume of business was done on the St. Louis Stock Exchange during the week just closed but the larger total was due materially to turnover of 1420 shares in Wagner Electric and of 1450 Fulton Iron, 1200 shares of the Iron selling at one early-week session at 1½. Wagner Electric lost more than a point. The low point of week was made at the last session.

International Shoe sold down fractionally to 53¼, the previous 1929-30 low figure. National Candy declined a point and Dr. Pepper 2 points. First National Bank closed lower.

Rice-Stix trade was in excess of 500 shares at 13. Missouri Portland gained some. Ely-Walker was unchanged at 25. Coca Cola Bottling declined a fraction and Hussmann-Ligonier a point.

In the bond section Scullin Steel 6s sold higher at 89.

Russian offerings broke wheat 2 cents a bushel and all months made new lows, closing 1⅞ to 2⅛ off. Corn's break ranged from 1¾ to 2⅛, while cotton lost 5 to 16 points in a heavy market.

Commission houses which had been looking for a vigorous technical rally were disappointed. Sentiment was confused, but in one quarter it was held that a selling climax seemed to be imminent, emphasizing that the turn might come suddenly. But with buying orders placed at a liberal scale-down, and the public obviously none too eager to venture, the professional element had things just about its own way.

U. S. Steel eased off to a new low for the movement at 157¼, but its range was narrow and its net loss was only ⅛. American Telephone likewise broke through its previous resistance point temporarily, yet it recovered all but ⅝ of its loss. General Motors reduced a loss of more than a point to ¼, while American Can showed a net advance of 1⅜. Standard Oil of New Jersey was particularly heavy, in common with the other Petroleum shares, and lost 1¼ net. Standard of California, after touching a new low, rallied briskly for a gain of nearly 2 points.

Many of the investment carriers declined to new lows, including Pennsylvania, New Haven and Baltimore & Ohio. Atchison and Canadian Pacific reduced declines of around 5 points.

Coppers Are Down.

In the copper group Anaconda and Kennecott made new lows; so did Standard Oil of New York and Texas Corp., in the petroleum division, and American Sugar, General American Tank, Radio, International Telephone, Republic Steel and Electric Auto-Lite, among miscellaneous shares. Radio, however, closed ⅛ higher.

The few stocks up as much as a point included Bethlehem Steel, Woolworth, Vanadium and American Smelting. International Harvester rose ⅝. United Aircraft, Westinghouse, Pennsylvania, Consolidated Gas, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward were off about one each. Net losses in many rails ranged from one to four.

Foreign exchanges were quiet. Sterling rallied, but South Americans were heavy.

DAY'S BUSINESS INDICATOR

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. — Building contracts executed last week fell off slightly as compared with the previous week. The Census Bureau reports totals for the region east of the Rocky Mountains, for comparable periods, as follows:

Week ended Sept. 20, $14,402,000.

Previous week, $15,254,000.

Same week last year, $18,119,000.

HIGH-GRADE RAILROAD BONDS FORGE AHEAD

Some Utility Issues Also Move Into New High Ground.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—High-grade obligations of domestic railroad and utility companies forged into new high ground in a very active half day session of the bond market.

The session developed considerable irregularity due to the unsettling effect of the stock market upon stock privilege bonds and certain liens that are influenced by general business conditions. The movement of foreign bonds was again mixed, further selling forcing German bonds back toward the lows established earlier in the week. U. S. Governments were firm and active.

Although Saturday usually is a quiet day in the bond market, the continued strong investment demand influenced sharp advances in some of the best grade railroad and utility issues. Canadian Southern 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern 4⅜s, Kansas City Southern 1st 3s, Lehigh Valley of New York 4½s, Morris and Essex 4½s, Nickel Plate 4½s, Southern Pacific, Oregon Line 4½s and Wabash 4½s reached new highs for the year, some on advances of a point. Some reactionary spots developed, Chicago Eastern Illinois 5s declined 4½ points. International Great Northern 6s declined 1½ and Seaboard All Florida 6s dropped more than 2 to a new low for the year.

Among the domestic bonds affected by the trend of stocks, American International 5½s, American I. G. Chemical 5½s, St. Paul Adjustment 6s, Dodge Brothers 6s, Shell Union 5s, all stock privilege issues, moved down from ½ to more than a point. Warner Quinlan 6s and Cuba Cane Sugar 6s reached new lows. Manati Sugar 7½s, off 3½; Parmalee 6s, Gannett 6s, Central Steel 8s, off 2 points each, and White Sewing Machine 6s and Trumbull Steel 6s were the weakest industrials. Commercial Investment Trust 6s soared more than a point to a new year's high. Loews 6s and Schulco 6½s were strong.

Brooklyn City Railway 5s, infrequently traded, advanced 3 points and with Laclede Gas 5½s and Montana Traction 5s A, were the principal utilities to gain new highs. Both Postal 5s, and Western Union 5s were well bought.

In the foreign section German 5½s resumed its downward course, losing a point. German Central Agricultural Bank 6s lost 2½ and other German industrial and municipal issues declined although generally on thin sales. There was renewed buying interest in French bonds. The 7½s and 7s were very firm. Cologne City 6½s gained more than a point.

COTTON PRICES NEAR LOWEST OF SEASON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A continuation of the recent selling movement in cotton was reflected by a further decline during today's trading, with new December contracts selling off to 10.40c, or 11 points net lower. That delivery closed at 10.41c, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 5 to 18 points. Spots quiet; middling, 10.30c.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 4 points in response to the relatively easy showing of Liverpool and overnight selling, which came partly from the South. The decline to 10½c for new December contracts brought out some liquidation of long accounts, partly on stop orders, and active months sold about to 13 points net lower during the middle of the morning. This carried the price of new October off to 10.21c and March to 10.68c, after which the selling became little less urgent and the market steadied up a point or two on trade buying or covering. Very little rallying power developed, however, and closing prices were within a point or two of the lowest for the day and season, so far.

The further decline did not appear to be connected with any particular feature in the day's news. Rumors that some resting orders in the market to buy had been withdrawn or that buying limits had been lowered seemed to be colored by the break through 10½c for the new December contract, and this probably accounted for some liquidation of long accounts. Southern selling was again considerably in evidence, presumably in the way of hedging against the increasing new crop movement, and there was also some selling here during the early trading for Liverpool and continental account.

Liverpool cables said the market there was lower under hedging and general liquidation and reported that buyers of cotton cloths and yarns were holding off pending a more stable raw material market.

The weakness in wheat may have been a factor in the market here, but the continuance of the recent decline was again very generally attributed to the recent increase in the volume of hedging and disappointing features in the general situation, including recent political advices from abroad and the action of the stock market. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 148,000 bales against 160,000 last year.

HIGH-GRADE RAILROAD BONDS FORGE AHEAD

Some Utility Issues Also Move Into New High Ground.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—High-grade obligations of domestic railroad and utility companies forged into new high ground in a very active half day session of the bond market.

The session developed considerable irregularity due to the unsettling effect of the stock market upon stock privilege bonds and certain liens that are influenced by general business conditions. The movement of foreign bonds was again mixed, further selling forcing German bonds back toward the lows established earlier in the week. U. S. Governments were firm and active.

Although Saturday usually is a quiet day in the bond market, the continued strong investment demand influenced sharp advances in some of the best grade railroad and utility issues. Canadian Southern 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern 4¾s, Kansas City Southern 1st 3s, Lehigh Valley of New York 4½s, Morris and Essex 4½s, Nickel Plate 4½s, Southern Pacific, Oregon Line 4½s and Wabash 4½s reached new highs for the year, some on advances of a point. Some reactionary spots developed, Chicago Eastern Illinois 5s declined 4½ points. International Great Northern 6s declined 1½ and Seaboard All Florida 6s dropped more than 2 to a new low for the year.

Among the domestic bonds affected by the trend of stocks, American International 5½s, American I. G. Chemical 5½s, St. Paul Adjustment 6s, Dodge Brothers 6s, Shell Union 5s, all stock privilege issues, moved down from ½ to more than a point. Warner Quinlan 6s and Cuba Cane Sugar 6s reached new lows. Manati Sugar 7½s, off 3½; Parmalee 6s, Gannett 6s, Central Steel 8s, off 2 points each, and White Sewing Machine 6s and Trumbull Steel 6s were the weakest industrials. Commercial Investment Trust 6s soared more than a point to a new year's high. Loews 6s and Schulco 6½s were strong.

Brooklyn City Railway 5s, infrequently traded, advanced 3 points and with Laclede Gas 5½s and Montana Traction 5s A, were the principal utilities to gain new highs. Both Postal 5s, and Western Union 5s were well bought.

In the foreign section German 5½s resumed its downward course, losing a point. German Central Agricultural Bank 6s lost 2½ and other German industrial and municipal issues declined although generally on thin sales. There was renewed buying interest in French bonds. The 7½s and 7s were very firm. Cologne City 6½s gained more than a point.

COTTON PRICES NEAR LOWEST OF SEASON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A continuation of the recent selling movement in cotton was reflected by a further decline during today's trading, with new December contracts selling off to 10.40c, or 11 points net lower. CURB LIST DECLINES, CLOSES IRREGULAR

New Low Ground for the Movement Explored Before Partial Technical Rally.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Curb stocks explored new low ground for the movement in the short session today before a partial technical recovery converted some losses into small gains.

The finish was very irregular. Quoted values of utilities and investment trust and holding company issues were generally steady to firm. On the other side was the weakness of the petroleum group, many of which declined to new lows for the year, and the mixed appearance of miscellaneous industrials.

Although trading went in spurts, sales for the day totaled 375,400 shares, comparatively large for a half-day session on the curb.

The recovery of some shares at the close was ascribed to week-end evening-up operations of traders who took their profits on short sales, and the slowing up of offerings by others who hoped for improvement next week.

Despite the sharp losses registered by petroleum issues this week, they worked into new low ground for the movement today. In the late rally Standard of Indiana and Cities Service were the only active oil stocks to advance. Vacuum, Standard Oil of Ohio and Cosden registered new lows, on losses of 1 to 3 points, and Gulf and Humble also were weak.

Aviation stocks were especially weak. Fokker Aircraft declined to a new low, and Aviation of America, and Bellanca lost about 3 points each. Western Air Express moved up 2 points. For the first time in several sessions Technicolor advanced, up 1¼ from its year's low reached yesterday. Newmont Mining declined 3 points, Noranda Mining, American Cyanamid B and Aluminum of America established new 1930 lows. Deere, Dow Chemical new, Crocker Wheeler were among the industrials to gain one or more points.

Small gains and losses were the rule in the utility group. Electric Bond and Share dipped to its year's low, then rallied to close ⅛ higher. United Gas, Niagara Hudson Power and several others made small fractional gains. A feature was Associated Gas A, which moved away from its almost stationary position around 30 to advance 1⅛. Duke Power, American Light and Traction, Central Public Service A, Eastern States Power, Northern States Power A and United Light and Power B yielded 1 to 4 points.

GRAIN FUTURES CLOSE LOWER ON LOCAL BOARD

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 27.—Grain futures ruled on a lower basis at the final session of the week on the local market. Both wheat and corn had substantial setbacks, the former closing 1⅛ to 1½c off and corn down 1⅝ to 2⅛ cents.

A setback of 2 to 2⅜d in Liverpool prices with report of Russian offers of grain were credited with bringing about selling in domestic markets. Winnipeg was down early. Corn followed wheat down.

December wheat opened at 78⅝. May wheat 84¾. December corn 79⅞, and May corn 83.

Closing prices were as follows: Dec. wheat, 78c; May wheat, 84½c; Dec. corn, 79¼c; May corn, 82⅜c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 110,600 bushels, compared with 130,200 a week ago and 81,200 a year ago, included 27 cars local and 52 through. Corn receipts, which were 79,800 bushels, compared with 72,800 a week ago and 119,000 a year ago, included 38 cars local and 19 through. Oats receipts, which were 28,600 bushels, compared with 44,000 a week ago and 48,400 a year ago, included 11 cars local and two through. Hay receipts were 16 cars local and 95 through.

In the cash grain market soft wheat was down 1c. Premiums advanced ½c to 1½c. Offerings were light and the demand was limited, but there were a few orders on hand and there was a pretty good clearance. Sales of No. 1 and No. 2 were on a basis 8c to 9c above the Chicago December figure, a new high for the crop. Hard wheat was off 2½c for low grades. There were no milling grades on sale. There was good inquiry reported, and as the market lacked offerings, buyers supplied their needs from elevators. Sales of No. 2 from store aggregated 37,500 bushels. Country run No. 1 was nominally 79c to 80c, or on the basis of 1c to 2c above the Chicago December figure and No. 2 about ½c to 1c less. Corn was down 2c to 3c. A good demand for the yellow came from industries and a good clearance of this class was effected, but there was no urgent call for the white variety. Oats were steady to ½c lower. There was a little of the white cereal offered and the demand was also light. Quite a few red oats were on sale and there was outside demand for these.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Sales of cash grain made on the exchange Saturday were as follows:

Wheat—No. 1 red winter 87c; No. 2 red winter 87c.

Corn—No. 1 yellow 87c, No. 2 yellow 87c, No. 3 yellow 86c, No. 4 yellow 85c, No. 6 yellow 82½c.

Oats—No. 3 white 37c.

WHEAT—No. 1 red winter, 87c; No. 2 red winter, 87c; No. 1 hard winter, 79@80c nominal; No. 3 hard winter, 76½c; No. 4 yellow hard, 78½c; sample-grade hard winter, 73c; No. 1 mixed, 85 per cent hard, part smutty, at 78c.

CORN—No. 1 yellow, 87c; No. 2 yellow, 87c; No. 3 yellow, 85½c to 86c; No. 4 yellow, 85c; No. 5 yellow 83½c; No. 6 yellow, 82½c.

MILL FEED FUTURES MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 27.—Continued weakness in grains had a further distressing effect on mill feed futures. Demand slow. Little interest was shown the volume of trade being very light. Sales totaling only 925 tons. There were apparently no orders of any consequence in the market. Bran closed 25c to 50c lower. Gray shorts and standard middlings steady to 50c lower.

WEEKLY COPPER REVIEW

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Copper prices turned easier during the latter part of the week when a custom smelter offered metal at further concession of ⅛ cent after the reduction by larger producers to 10.50 cents failed to stimulate demand. Domestic consumers are still holding off, inasmuch as they have not expanded operations to the extent anticipated and withdrawals of metal on contract have been correspondingly small. The liberal offerings to the home trade at lower levels have again placed foreign consumers at a disadvantage, as the export price has been maintained at 10.80 cents c. i. f. and demand has been small. Nevertheless, large producers continue to hold steady.

Lead was without particular change. While demand was largely for prompt shipment, it was said that there was an increasing tendency to request October delivery as well.

Zinc was steady with reports of a fair demand prevailing largely for prompt shipment.

Silk Market.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Raw silk futures closed weak. Sales, 1800 bales; December, $2.29; March, $2.28; May, $2.27. Open market quotations (60-day basis): Shanghai steam extra B, $3.05; Canton, double extra A, 14-16s, $1.65; Japanese crack double extra, $2.75.

NEW LOWS MADE BY GRAINS AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Wheat closed semi-demoralized today at a maximum price setback of 2⅜c a bushel compared with yesterday's finish. The closing quotations in Chicago were the lowest reached here either today or since 1906, and were but little more than 5c above the bottom then touched at 69⅛c for 1906 September delivery. Wild trading characterized the market here at times today, but during a great part of the day transactions were lacking in volume, with buying only spasmodic, and the market hinging mostly on news about Russia.

Every kind of grain, as well as wheat, dropped to new low records today, with wheat closing 1⅞c to 2⅜c under yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1¾c to 2⅛c down, oats unchanged to ⅛c off and provisions unchanged to a setback of 40c.

Price breaks today plunged wheat down as far as 57c a bushel under the top quotations commanded this season. The fall was likewise nearly that amount below the price prevailing a year ago. From start to finish, the Chicago wheat market today was semi-demoralized, but although trading at times was wildly urgent, business lacked volume a large part of the time, buying being only spasmodic and the course of values depending in great degree upon news about Russia.

A fresh unsettling factor was an assertion from a leading trade authority that Russia is capable of doubling her wheat exports this season to 100,000,000 bushels whereas heretofore the largest estimate has been 50,000,000 bushels.

An alleged lull in Russian charterings for shipments from Black Sea ports was virtually ignored and so too was a reiterated comment that grain markets of the United States would be on a purely domestic basis before another crop was harvested. On the other hand, weakness of security markets contributed to the depression of wheat and other cereals, rendering rallies ineffective except at intervals that were few and brief.

Corn and rye market changes were a parallel to those of wheat. Orders to sell out corn and rye holdings, and thus put a stop to losses, were numerous.

Oats values, although weak, held better than anything else, the oats market being already away below normal, even as compared with other cereals.

Provisions tumbled as a result of the new smash in grain prices and because of fresh downturns in the value of hogs.

GOOD AND CHOICE GRADE STEERS UP

Decrease in Supplies Helps Market During Week at National Yards.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Sept. 27.—(U. S. Department of Agriculture)—Aided by a decrease in supplies, the selling end of the trade was enabled to effect an upturn in good and choice steer prices here the past week that failed to entirely offset the decline of the previous week. Other classes of native steers showed weak to lower tendencies and, with the exception of fat mixed yearlings and heifers, veal calves and stocker and feeder cattle, all other classes were lower. Arrivals approximated 17,800 as compared with 19,663 and 27,992 for the previous week and corresponding week last year. Compared with the previous week's close, good and choice steers finished 25c to 50c higher, other natives steady to 25c lower; western steers cleared 25c to 50c lower; fat mixed yearlings and heifers 25c higher; other mixed and heifers, beef cows, low cutters and bulls 25c lower. Good and choice vealers closed $1.50 higher, stocker and feeder cattle steady. Tops for the week were: 922-lb. yearling steers $13; 1115-lb. beeves $12.50; 1596-lb. steers $12; 856-lb. mixed yearlings $12.40; 714-lb. heifers $11.50; western steers $8; beef cows, $6.75; medium bulls, $5.25; vealers $13 and stocker steers $8.40. Steers averaging 1468 and 1630 lbs. were noted at $10.60 and $11.25, while some scaling 1506 and 1596 lbs. were sold at $11.75 and $12, those at the latter price strictly choice beeves. Other heavy steers of 1311 to 1377 lbs. average went at $11.35 to $11.50 and medium weights from 1234 to 1284 lbs. varied between $8.75 and $11.60. Other medium weights ranging in poundage from 1112 to 1187 lbs. spread from $7.60 to $12.50, bulk going at $9.85 to $11.50. Lightweight steers ranged from $6.50 to $13, the majority $9.10 to $12 which was also bulk of all steers. Western steers ranged from $5.25 to $8 with bulk at $6 to $7.65. Most fat mixed yearlings and heifers went from $10 to $11.50, medium fleshed kinds $6.50 to $9. Cows bulked at $4.50 to $5.25; low cutters $2.75 to $3. Western heifers ranged from $6.60 to $9.25; range cows $4.65 to $5.50; low cutters and cutters $3.25 to $4.25.

Bulk and top prices corresponding week last year: Steers $11.40 to $14.30, top $14.75; fat mixed yearlings and heifers $13 to $14; top $14.50; medium fleshed descriptions $9 to $12.50; cows $7.25 to $8.25, top $10.50; low cutter $5.25 to $5.50, top sausage bulls $8.50; top vealers $17.75; stocker and feeder steers $7.25 to $10; top $10.75.

Hog Market Lower.

Swine receipts totaled around 54,400 this week compared with 52,717 last week and 80,735 corresponding week last year. Although marketings here and elsewhere continued moderate and substantially below the runs of a year ago, bearish influences dominated trade and prices dropped sharply. Dressed pork in Eastern wholesale centers continued on the downgrade which contributed to the declining live values. Compared with the close of last week, averages quotations were 35c to 50c lower with some lighter weights 50c to 65c off. Pigs and light lights met a fairly good demand during the last half of this week and the net loss was 10c to 25c. Saturday trade was quoted 10c to 25c lower than the average of Friday, with pigs 25c to as much as 50c off. Top price reached $10.25 for a load of choice 280-lb weights, while the next highest price was $10.15 paid for 235-lb averages. Most 180 to 220 lb descriptions cashed at $9.90 to $10, the latter price also taking several lots of slightly less desirable 225 to 240 lb weights and one load of 311-lb heavies. At the close two loads of good 250s sold down to $9.90. Most 150 to 175 lb weights cleared at $9.50 to $9.85 and 130 to 140 lb light lights sold from $9 to $9.25. Lighter pigs were salable down to $8.50 and below, such kinds being very scarce today. Packing sows sold up to $8.25 for a very few light kinds, majority making $7.75 to $8 and heavies down to $7.50.

Fat Lambs Lowest in Nine Years.

Receipts of sheep and lambs this week approximated 14,800 head compared with actual arrivals of 14,652 last week and 15,312 corresponding week last year. Increasing receipts around the livestock circuit proved a bearish factor in trade and with declining prices of dressed lamb to further depress values, fat lamb quotations were reduced a full $1.00 this week, to the lowest point in nine years. Efforts to similarly cheapen costs of common grade lambs failed and these held steady. Fat ewes held steady until Thursday, when a half-dollar reduction was placed in effect. Other classes were too scarce to quote. City butchers paid an extreme top of $8.50 for closely sorted lambs early in the week but at the finish nothing was able to pass $7.25. On Friday one deck of choice native lambs went to packers at $7.25 while bulk of natives earned $7.00 and a double deck of Southwest lambs realized $6.75. Buck lambs were sorted off of each lot at a discount of $1.00 while common throwouts bulked at $4.50. One deck of yearling wethers, which graded no better than good, sold early in the week at $6.00. Fat ewes sold up to $3.50 until Thursday, on which date values were set back until a spread of $2.00 to $3.00 took practically all offerings, culls down to $1.00.

Horses and Mules.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Sept. 27.—Trade in horses and mules today consisted of a few odd head changing hands in dealers' alleys on a retail basis. Prices about in line with the level established previously this week. Receipts for the week were fair to heavy but the market maintained a steady level.

CARDS OF THANKS

MR. and Mrs. Clarence F. Nelson and family express their deep gratitude to the many friends and relatives for their sympathy and floral offerings in the loss of our beloved son, Quentin. We especially thank the Rev. Hansen for his consoling words, the kindness of the Oak Hill School staff, Principal W. L. Schlueter and lovable teachers, together with St. John's Sunday School, his playmates and neighbors for many acts of kindness and Ziegenhein Bros., undertakers, for their friendly and efficient services.

On Sept. 10, 1930, God took to rest a dear one and we wish sincerely to thank our friends for their kind expressions of sympathy and for their beautiful floral offerings, in our recent bereavement in losing our dear daughter, sister and sister-in-law, Vera Allman.
ALENE, ROBERT, RAYMOND AND LOIS ALLMAN.

Mrs. Alexander Zander and children wish to thank their many friends and relatives for their kind expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings during our sad bereavement in the loss of my beloved husband and our father; special thanks to the Rev. Bleibtreu for his consoling words, and Bakers' Local No. 4. (c)

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives for their kind expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings; special thanks to the Rev. J. Johnson for his consoling words during the late bereavement
MRS. H. L. RENO AND FAMILY. (c)

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our relatives and friends for their kindness and beautiful floral offerings; also the Rev. Mr. Eilts and the Rev. Mr. Liebner for their consoling words in the loss of our darling mother, Emma Meyers.
HER DAUGHTERS. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

BECK—In memory of Charles A. Beck, who departed this life Sept. 29th, 1929.
His memory is as dear today,
As in the hour he passed away.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, DAUGHTER AND SISTER.

BLAKELY—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Corporal Walter M. Blakely, who gave his life for his country, Sept. 26, 1918. Sadly missed by FATHER, MOTHER AND SISTER.

DUCHEK—In memory of our dear husband and father, Joseph F. Duchek Sr., who passed away Sept. 27, 1927. Sadly missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN

FAHRENHOLZ—In loving memory of our dear father, George A. Fahrenholz, whom God called Oct. 1, 1927.
HIS CHILDREN.

FINK—In memory of Otto F. Fink Sr., who died Sept. 28, three years ago:
We think of you in silence,
No eye may see us weep,
But many silent tears are shed,
When others are asleep.
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

FITZGERALD—In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Officer John Fitzgerald, who passed away two years ago, Sept. 27, 1928:
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we love
From memory pass away.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND SON.

KESSELHEIM—Emma, in loving memory, who died Sept. 27, 1929.
We think of you in silence,
No eye can see us weep;
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
Sadly missed by DAUGHTERS AND SON.

KOLNOSKI—In loving memory of Frank Kolnoski, who passed away Sept. 25, 1928:
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last;
The world's weary troubles and trials are past.
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
Till God called him home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed by mother and all those who loved him. (c)

KOLNOSKI—In loving memory of Frank Kolnoski, who passed away Sept. 25, 1928.
No one knows how much I miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
I have suffered since I lost you;
life will never be the same.
Sadly missed by his sweetheart,
ROSE FREY. (c)

KOSER—In loving memory of our dear mother, Elizabeth Amanda Koser, who departed this life Sept 29, 1924.
Sadly missed by SON AND DAUGHTER.

LONGSTRETH—In loving remembrance of my dear brother, Charles R. Longstreth, who departed this life Sept. 25, 1929.
One year has passed, since that sad day
My dear brother passed away;
I saw him suffer, heard his sighs,
With aching heart and weeping eyes,
I saw him sinking, hour by hour,
Yet could not stay death's awful power.
But now he calmly sleeps at last,
All pains, all aches, all suffering past.
Sadly missed by brother,
WALTER J. LONGSTRETH.

LOVELY—In memory of my dear husband, Eugene N. Lovely, who departed this life Sept. 28, 1926. ALICE LOVELY.

OWSLEY—In memory of William F. Owsley, who died Sept. 29, 1927:
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
Sadly missed by
THE OWSLEY FAMILY. (c)

SCHAFERMEYER—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Martha Elise Schafermeyer, who departed this life Sept. 29, 1929:
Her memory is as dear today as in the hour she passed away.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

NENNINGER—In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Cora Delventhal Nenninger, who passed away Sept. 30, 1929:
One year has passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away;
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, ANN AND LAURA, GEORGE AND SWEETHEART, CONRAD SCHUELY.

SILVEY—In memory of our dear husband, father, son and brother, William E. Silvey, who departed this life Sept. 27, 1929.
Sad and sudden was the call, for one we held so dear,
We didn't think he had gone at all, and still he seems so near.
We little thought on that day he would be called so far away,
You're not forgotten dear, never shall you be
As long as life and memory lasts, we shall remember thee. HIS FAMILY.

WALKER—In loving memory of Mary Kain Walker who died Oct. 3rd, 1929: Pray for her soul. (c)

WITTER—In loving memory of Frank J. Witter, who departed this life Sept. 30, 1929:
The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said, come:
And with farewells unspoken
He gently entered home.
Sadly missed by his wife,
BERTHA WITTER. (c)

WOLF—In loving remembrance of my darling husband, Charlie Wolf, who passed on Sept. 25, 1929:
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and true in his heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND SISTER.

For Sale

I HAVE a piece of land out in the country which is a marvelous spot for clubs and cottages. This is located 5½ miles south of Owensville, Mo., 100 miles west of St. Louis. There is a highway between St. Louis and Owensville. Highway 19 passes this land. This is a new highway running north and south. The land is attractive to tourist people and serves as a camping ground for them many times. It contains springs and branches and rolling hills. It is about a quarter of a mile to a stream of water which is excellent for fishing and bathing. This spot would also be ideal for a new filling station and lunch cabin for the highway tourists. This is a community where clubhouses are being erected. This land will sell at about $50 to $75 per acre. For further information have them write me. Mr. Edw. Schaefferkoetter, Owensville, Mo.

CLUBHOUSE—Ideal location, 50 miles from St. Louis; one mile from Moselle, at junction of Meramec and Bourbeuse; $800. Phone owner, EVergreen 3954, Springmeyer, or inquire at C. H. Pipkin store, Moselle, Mo.

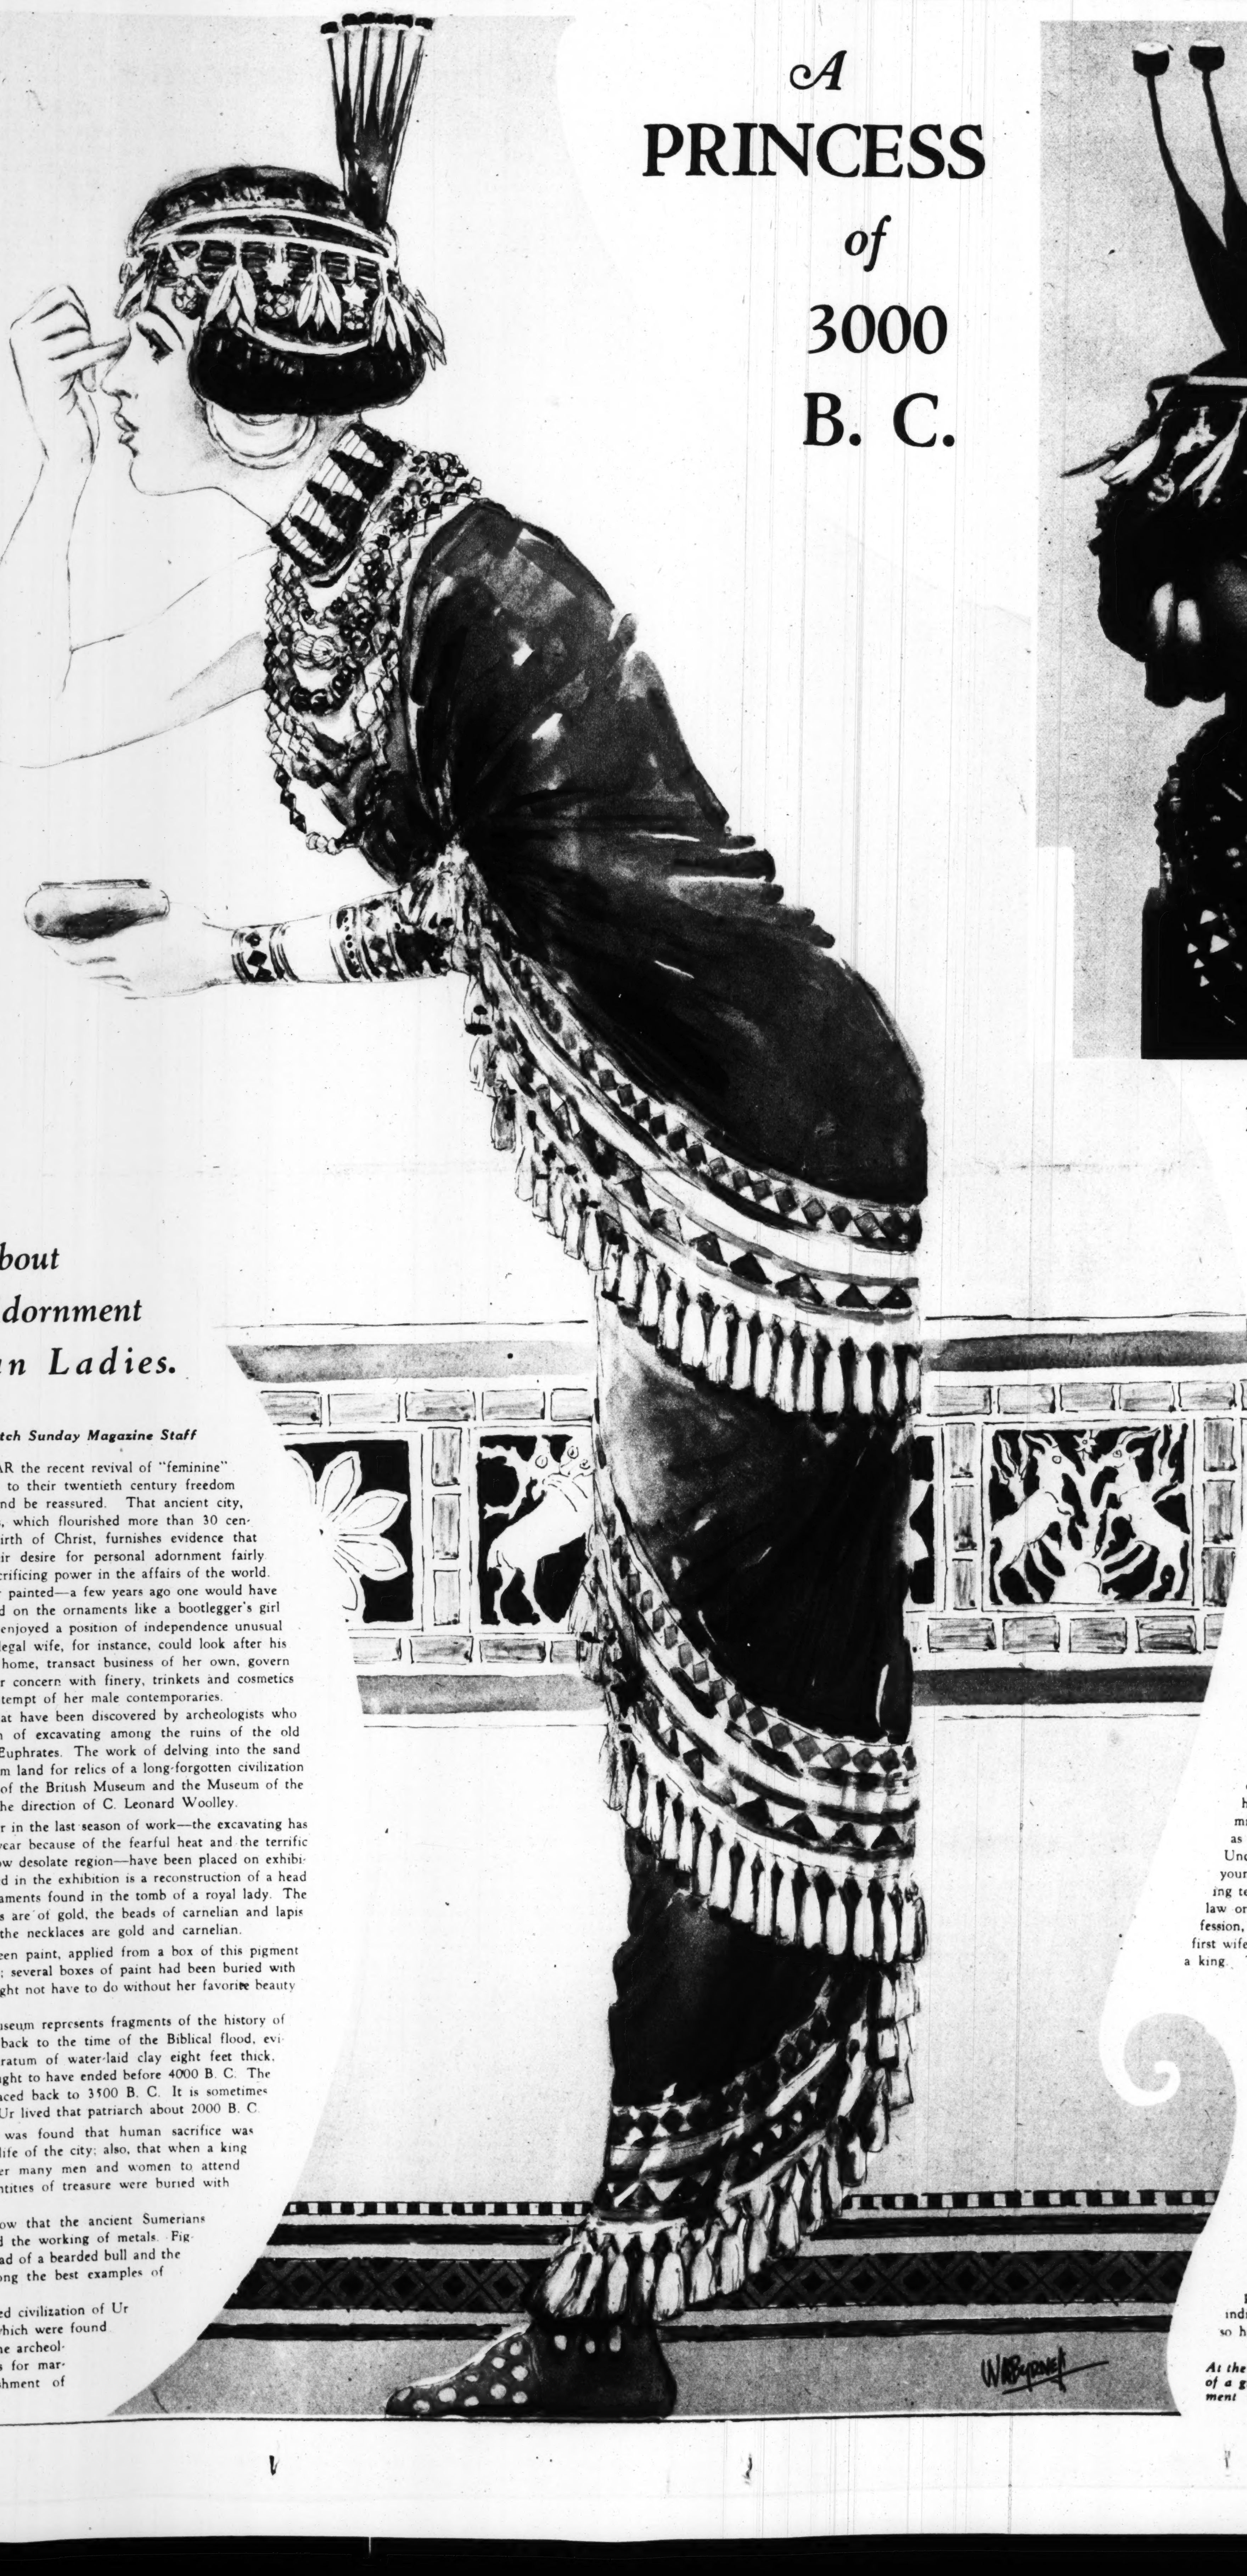
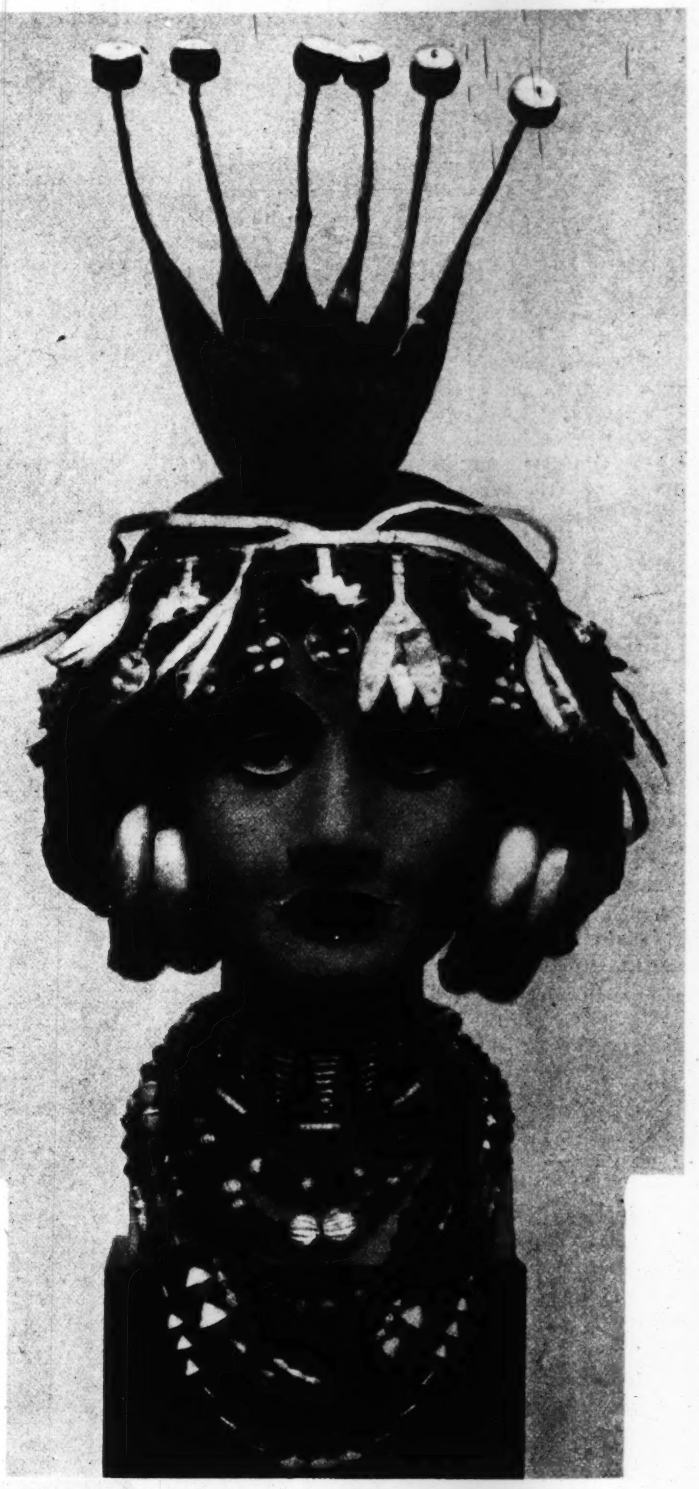
A PRINCESS of 3000 B. C.





A PRINCESS OF UR.

This reconstruction, shown in the British Museum, is founded on archeological discoveries in the valley of the Euphrates.

What Science Has Discovered About the Personal Adornment of Chaldean Ladies.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

WOMEN WHO FEAR the recent revival of "feminine" modes as a menace to their twentieth century freedom may think of Ur and be reassured. That ancient city, Ur of the Chaldees, which flourished more than 30 centuries before the birth of Christ, furnishes evidence that women can let their desire for personal adornment fairly run riot without sacrificing power in the affairs of the world.

The ladies of Ur painted—a few years ago one would have said, "like hussies." And they piled on the ornaments like a bootlegger's girl friend. Yet these Sumerian women enjoyed a position of independence unusual among Oriental peoples. A man's legal wife, for instance, could look after his business when he was away from home, transact business of her own, govern her slaves and testify in court. Her concern with finery, trinkets and cosmetics did not bring down on her the contempt of her male contemporaries.

These are some of the things that have been discovered by archeologists who have completed their eighth season of excavating among the ruins of the old Sumerian city in the valley of the Euphrates. The work of delving into the sand and clay of the Mesopotamian bottom land for relics of a long-forgotten civilization is being done by a joint expedition of the British Museum and the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania, under the direction of C. Leonard Woolley.

Some of the objects dug up at Ur in the last season of work—the excavating has to be abandoned for part of each year because of the fearful heat and the terrific sandstorms that sweep across this now desolate region—have been placed on exhibition at the British Museum. Included in the exhibition is a reconstruction of a head of a princess of Ur, fitted with ornaments found in the tomb of a royal lady. The ribbons and leaves of the head-dress are of gold, the beads of carnelian and lapis lazuli. The earrings are gold, and the necklaces are gold and carnelian.

Around the eyes are lines of green paint, applied from a box of this pigment found in the tomb with the jewelry; several boxes of paint had been buried with the princess—apparently that she might not have to do without her favorite beauty preparations in the hereafter.

The exhibition at the British Museum represents fragments of the history of Ur from the sixth century, B. C., back to the time of the Biblical flood, evidence of which was found in a stratum of water-laid clay eight feet thick, above the ruins of a civilization thought to have ended before 4000 B. C. The city built after the flood can be traced back to 3500 B. C. It is sometimes called the City of Abraham, for in Ur lived that patriarch about 2000 B. C.

In the graves of Ur evidence was found that human sacrifice was practiced in an early period in the life of the city; also, that when a king died it was the custom to slaughter many men and women to attend him in the next world. Great quantities of treasure were buried with the aristocratic dead.

Objects found in the tombs show that the ancient Sumerians were highly skilled in sculpture and the working of metals. Figures of rampant rams, the golden head of a bearded bull and the golden helmet of a prince are among the best examples of the work of those early craftsmen.

Also attesting the highly-organized civilization of Ur was the system of laws, records of which were found on numerous tablets unearthed by the archeologists. There were legal regulations for marriage and divorce, for the punishment of crimes, for recovery of damages, and on almost all other subjects dealt with by the courts of today. There was capital punishment. A freeman could be reduced to slavery for certain offenses. Parents could sell their children as slaves, and a man could give his child or wife to another as a temporary slave in payment of debt. If a free woman married a slave their children were born free.

Marriages were arranged by the elders of the contracting parties, and the bride brought a dowry to the union; this was held jointly by husband and wife, but went to her children or her father's family on her death. The wedding is thought to have consisted merely of the making of a formal nuptial contract—which set forth, among other things, the conditions under which a divorce might be granted. One of the common grounds for divorcing a wife was barrenness. In one of the late periods of the city's history she could be drowned for infidelity. If she were divorced, she took her dowry with her when she left her husband's bed and board. A wife had equal authority with her husband over their children; she could have an undutiful son branded an expelled from Ur. She inherited the same portion of her husband's estate as did each of the children. If, because of the barrenness of his original wife, a man took another without divorcing the first, the original wife maintained her authority in the household; the new wife might be required to wash the feet of the other as evidence of subserviency.

Under the religious system prevailing in Ur, many young women entered the service of a god, becoming temple women, as they take up the profession of law or medicine today. Theirs was a respected profession, and the high priestess of Nannar, the legitimate first wife of the Moon God, was often the daughter of a king. The children they bore were frequently adopted into good families.

Artists may find interest in the creations of their fellow practitioners of ancient Ur; architects, in the Sumerians' use of the column and true arch; theologians, in the worship of Nannar, the Moon God, and the evidence in Sumerian ruins supporting the Book of Genesis; historians in the dynasties, the wars, the rise and fall of this City of Abraham, that was a metropolis when Babylon was a village. But women of today who want to enhance their natural charms with the artificial allurements of cosmetics and jewelry and a profusion of feminine fripperies, without losing their modern independence, may deem chiefly notable the tombs of the ladies of Ur, who not only painted, but—a substance found on their skulls indicates—ornamented and bejewelled their heads so heavily that they had to wear wigs.

WHAT "REALISM" COST LON CHANEY

How the Physical Strain, Brought on by the Necessities of His Hard Roles, Led to the Illness That Killed the Films' Most Celebrated Character Actor.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

HOLLYWOOD, California.

THEY say that if he had spared himself a little, if he had not given quite so much of himself to the all-demanding eye of the camera, he might have lived 10, 15 years longer. Those who loved Lon Chaney most have said that very often since his death. They knew best of all the terribly exorbitant price he paid for fame and money. They realized what it meant in pain and in jangled nerves, the deliberate torture he endured in so many of his roles. And they realized as well how futile it was to protest, to argue with Chaney, to try to persuade him to cheat the camera a little, to fake.

The immediate cause of Lon Chaney's death was a hemorrhage of the lungs. But back of this can be traced a series of debilitating illnesses that can be traced in turn largely to the effects of his work for the screen. The operation for a throat ailment—that resulted from the excessively strenuous work Chaney did in his first and last talkie, "The Unholy Three"—that followed anemia that followed pneumonia. In his last picture, in which he took a ventriloquist's part, he talked in five different voices. Typical of Chaney, say the hard-boiled stage hands about the studio lots, who worshiped him—he would work five times as hard as anyone else, spurning the deception of the "ghost" voice, so often resorted to by other stars. As long ago as 1928 Jim Tully, sardonic commentator on the movies, writing in Vanity Fair, said:

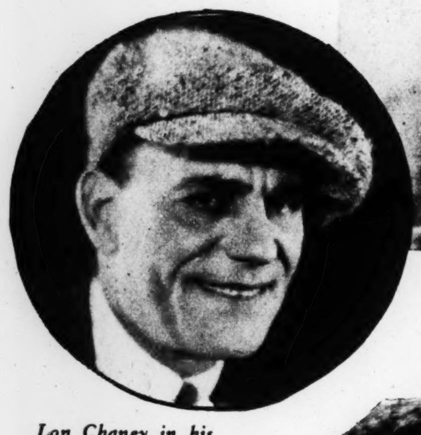
"Chaney has paid a heavy price for being able to twist his body to entertain the hoi polloi.

"He has a spinal ailment due to a role in which he was 'harnessed.' In a film called 'The Unknown' his arms were bound to his body with heavy leather. It stopped blood circulation. Some veins burst. But, still willing to pay the price of circus art, he resumed work quickly.

"He spends a portion of each day with a doctor.

"His sense of humor is bitingly keen. When the bones, often twisted to make a moron holiday, ache more than usual, his temper is uneven. It is said that one can tell how the great contortionist is feeling by the remarks he makes."

IT WAS Chaney's success in "The Miracle Man," after a long apprenticeship in the Westerns, that fixed on him roles that called for a crippled, distorted body, a weird, mis-shapen face. And, of course, once his great reputation was established in roles of this type, Chaney searched eagerly for even more grotesque parts.



Lon Chaney in his own person.

As the fake cripple in "The Miracle Man" Chaney had to twist his body and distort his face like a paralytic in acute agony. He had to drag himself along a stony road like a spineless dwarf for 200 yards before a camera planted on the porch of the hermit's mountain shack. In taking this scene the director first employed nonprofessional extras to swell the crowd that lines the hill. But so great was the agony Chaney simulated that three times as the scene was being taken women burst out of the crowd to help him. And finally the director employed all professional extras.

As Quasimodo, in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

As the engine driver in "Thunder."

Chaney next played the villainous Fagin in "Oliver Twist." Jackie Coogan, 9 years old then, played Oliver. The child was nervous, excited at the responsibility of his first big part. On the first day for trial shots of the kitchen scene—Fagin's initial entry into the picture—Chaney swooped down on the studio in his grotesque make-up, bowl-backed, evil-faced, greasy of beard and with half-bare legs. Jackie ran screaming away. Not until he saw Chaney light a cigarette and remove the beard to make better adjustments could the child star be calmed.

The most difficult role he ever assumed was the dual one of burglar and Bishop in an early picture, "The Blackbird." It added little to his fame, although critics have regarded his acting as of a higher quality than he ever again achieved. For entire days, with few rests, he had to keep the pose of a victim of hemiplegia—a man with one side of his body stiff from paralysis. The least muscular movement on that side of the body would have been detected by the camera, would have spoiled the picture. For weeks after the film was made, Chaney said later, he found himself involuntarily assuming the attitudes of a muscle-bound paralytic.

In "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" he scorned the ordinary padding that burlesque comedians use as shock absorbers for kicks and tumbles. An anatomist carefully designed from deformed life a hump of plaster, which was rigidly strapped to Chaney's back. Throughout the filming of the picture he had to maintain a crouching posture.

It was necessary in one picture to have his legs strapped back from the knee to give a semblance of deformity, so that he could appear to be walking on cushioned pads. He could endure this for only 10 or 12 minutes at a time, as it was so very painful. Circulation of the blood was stopped and, as in the instance when his arms were trussed back in a "harness," it is believed certain blood vessels were ruptured. This would be a contributory cause to anemia. For several years before Chaney's death there were rumors that he would not live long because of the contortions to which he had subjected his body. But medical evidence shows that the twistings and contortings he went through in various roles would not seriously have impaired his health, contrary to the popular superstition that contortionists and eccentric dancers are short-lived.

Wentworth, one of the best known contortionists of the last century, lived to be more than 70 years old. At 70 physicians who examined him reported that he seemed to have lost none of his earlier sinuosity. In the strictest usage of the word Chaney was not a contortionist. There was nothing abnormal about the makeup of his body. The contortions, writhings and twisting Chaney went through were not the only form of discomfort, torture even, that the actor endured in his work for the screen. Frequently the makeup he wore was painful in the extreme. Once in a vampire disguise he used a chemical to distend his eyes, a formula prepared by his oculist. In "The Road to Mandalay" the same oculist prepared a method for rendering one eye white and blank-looking. Both measures were more or less painful. In "The Hunchback" one eye was almost entirely obscured by a shell of collodion.

As Singapore Joe, in "The Road to Mandalay."

He regarded makeup as an art. For several roles it took him more than five hours to get his makeup on. His face served merely as a canvas, on which Chaney, the master artist, painted. He would begin by putting on muscles, shaped of plastic material, with infinite care over the corresponding muscles in his own face. He covered the whole with a smoothing solution. In effect, he built an entirely new face on top of his own.

In an article on motion picture makeup which he wrote for the Encyclopedia Brittanica he gives just a few hints on character makeup, a slight intimation of the extent of his artistry.

"Shaping the nose, building up the cheek bones, blotting out the eyebrows can best be accomplished by the use of putty or plasto wax. To puff out the face cotton wool is often inserted between the teeth and the checks. This material is also used for making bags under the eyes. Cut into a crescent shape, affix with spirit gum and paint over, mixing a little olive oil with the paint. To broaden the nose, Negro style, cut three-eighth-inch ends of two rubber cigar holders and insert into nostrils. For scars brush on collodion, which draws the skin; apply a second coat for deeper scars. To remove, add more collodion to soften the scar, then peel off.

"FOR very old age a thin coat of putty can be applied to the face and lines graved into it with a sharp point for criss-crossing deep wrinkles. Trace the lines with red water colors. Do not line the eyes. Make shadows with color a little darker than the foundation, and where the face would sink the most make the shadows darkest, always keeping the anatomy of the face in mind.

"For Chinese makeup, use bits of library mending tissue to draw back the corners of the eyes, thus giving a slant to them. Cover with the 'ground' color and then paint the eyebrows with an upward tilt. A number of light black lines downward from the inner corners of the eyes and upward from the outer corners accentuate the slant."

Lon Chaney in the process of turning from his normal self to the role of a Chinese.

While this was primer stuff in Chaney's complete lexicon of the art of makeup, it indicates how thoroughly he was grounded in every trick of the trade. He never spared his face, never considered the discomfort of hot, suffocating hours under blazing Kleig lights in a mask formed of such unpleasant things as putty, hair, collodion and glue. When it was a question of realistic effect, he never spared himself in any respect.

His work in "Thunder" is an example. In this picture he took the part of a locomotive engineer. He insisted that it wouldn't hurt him to ride in the cab of the locomotive with the windows open through a blinding snowstorm. Part of the time he was leaning far out into the storm for special shots. This stunt sent him to the hospital with pneumonia, the illness that was the beginning of the end.

Following his recovery from pneumonia, symptoms of anemia appeared. Chaney worried about it for a while, sought health with one doctor and another in New York and Los Angeles. Finally he decided to forget it in his work. He had a heavy job cut out for him in the talkie version of "The Unholy Three."

Right—As Professor Echo, in "The Unholy Three," his last role.

Against the advice of his doctor, and even of the directors of the picture, he decided to use five different voices. If he had been a natural ventriloquist it would have been different, much easier. For real ventriloquists have a special sounding box in the chest that enables them to use a different voice from their own without strain.

But normal persons, such as Chaney, have to learn to be ventriloquists. In imitating voices that come from a distance they must learn to contract the pharyngeal and laryngeal muscles in the throat. It is a very exhausting, fatiguing process.

NATURALLY, Chaney strained the muscles of his throat, taxed his failing energy. In "The Unholy Three" he wasn't an awfully good ventriloquist, but he was certainly good enough to be convincing. He threw himself into the part, forgetting everything else, as he invariably did. "The Unholy Three" was finished. Chaney looked thin and so tired. His wife and his friends were worried. They asked solicitous, timid questions. And as always the actor answered, "Bah! I'm all right. Lemme alone."

But this time he wasn't all right. There was something seriously wrong with his throat. Again he went from doctor to doctor and back and forth between New York and Los Angeles. At last he underwent an operation. It appeared to be successful. He came back to Hollywood. But just when everyone felt that he was out of danger the anemia took a malignant form. Even so, it was thought after he had been given a number of blood transfusions, that he would battle through. But he died suddenly of a hemorrhage of the lungs. He had worn his body out in the long fight for fame and fortune.

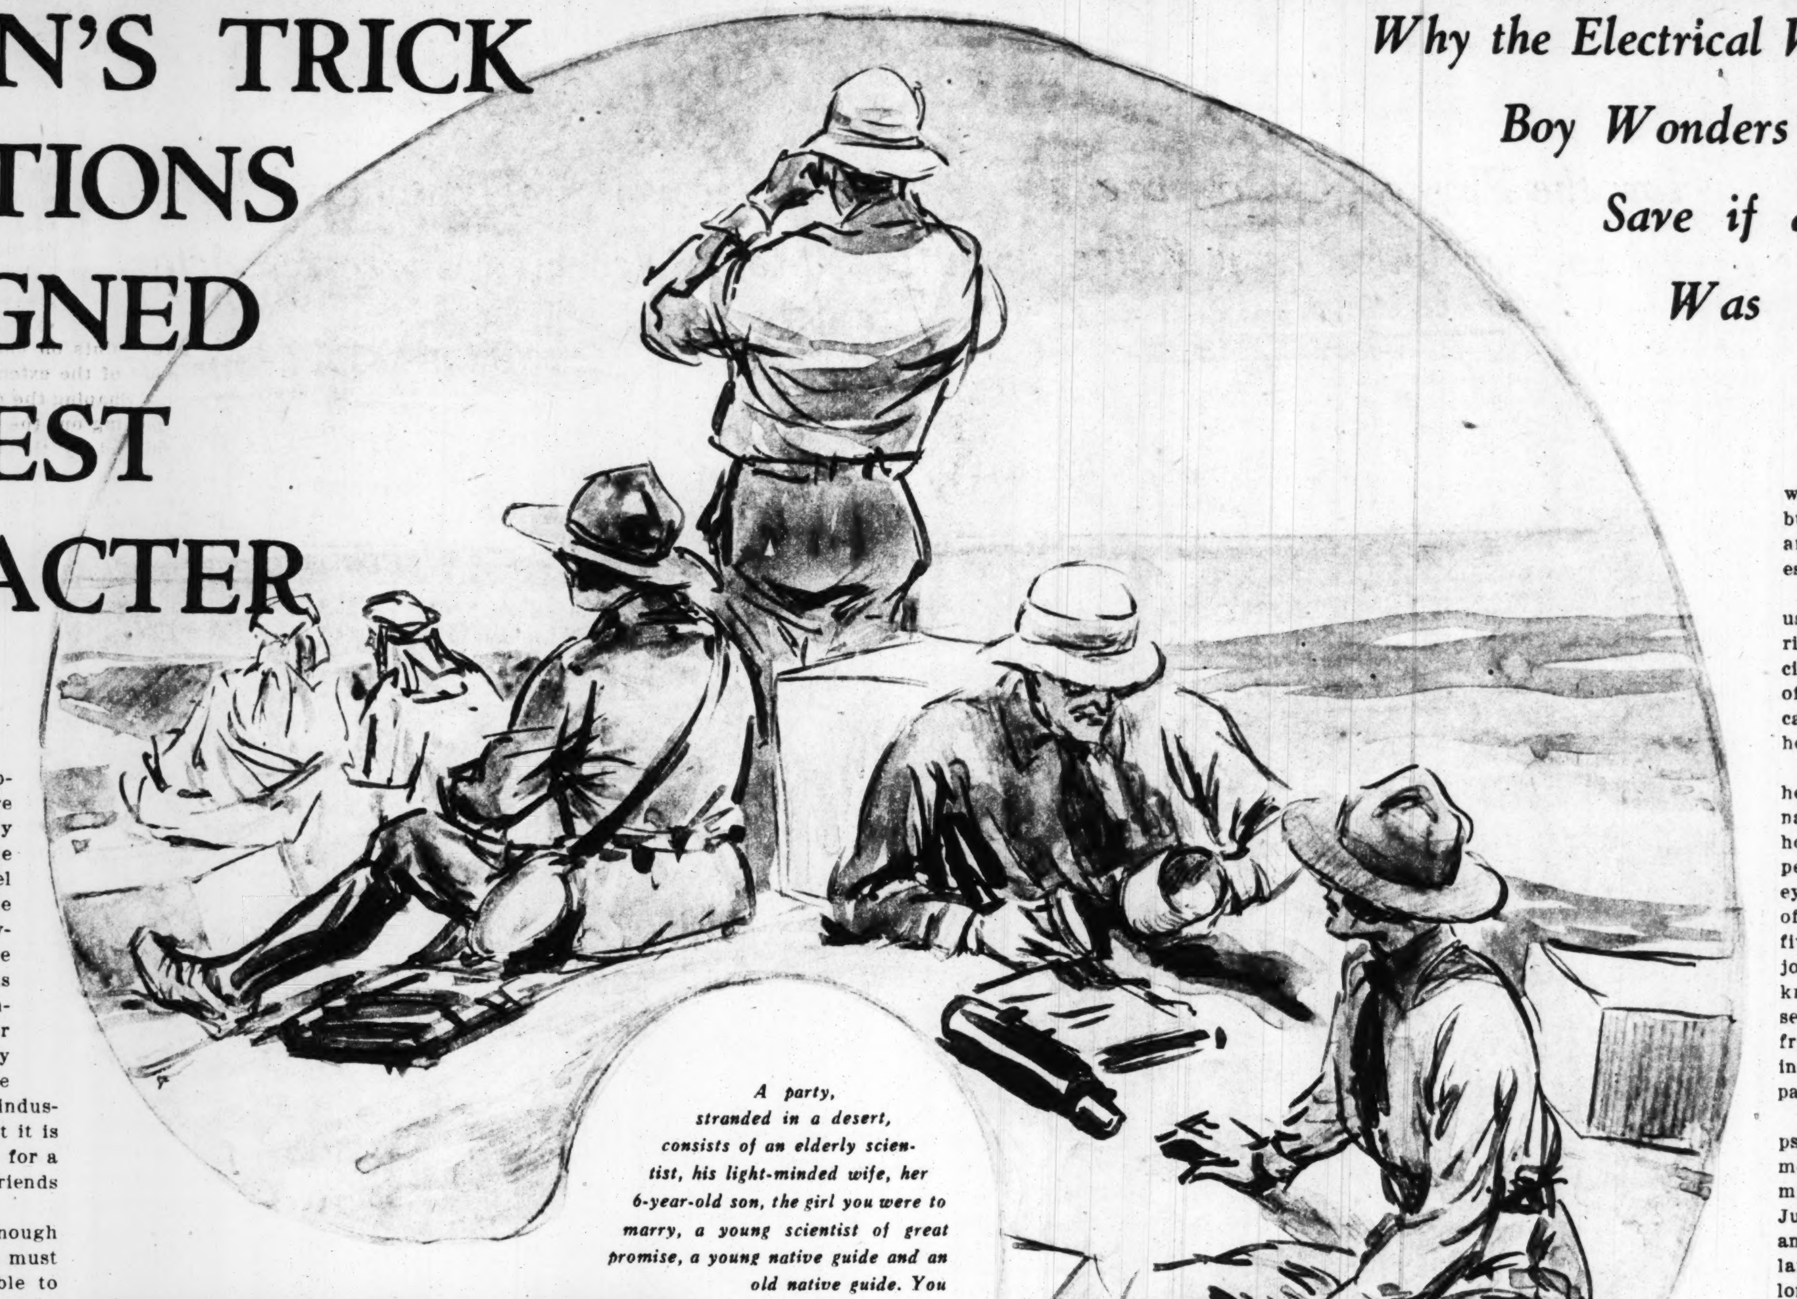
EDISON'S TRICK QUESTIONS DESIGNED to TEST CHARACTER

Why the Electrical Wizard Asked His Boy Wonders Which Three to Save if a Party of Eight Was Stranded in the Desert.



A party, stranded in a desert, consists of an elderly scientist, his light-minded wife, her 6-year-old son, the girl you were to marry, a young scientist of great promise, a young native guide and an old native guide. You are in command. Assuming that three of this group can be saved, which three would you choose?

EVER since psychological tests were used so successfully for classifying the drafted personnel of the army in the World War, psychologists have been trying to work out a means of testing character as well as intelligence. Mental tests, similar in many respects to the army tests, are being used in the schools and most of the big industries today. Executives find that it is much better to give an applicant for a job a test than it is to ask his friends whether he is a bright boy.

But for most jobs it is not enough that the applicant be bright. He must also be honest. He must be able to make decisions. He must have backbone. He must be able and willing to stick to a job. He must be able to get along with his fellow workers and his chief or foreman. Hence the need for character and personality tests. Psychologists say that such qualities can be measured and their presence or absence indicated through answers to certain questions. They admit that the tests so far devised are not by any means perfect, but still they are a step in the right direction.

In this connection, science is watching with interest to see how the two Edison proteges, Arthur O. Williams Jr., and Wilbur B. Huston, are going to turn out. Thomas A. Edison, it will be recalled, had 49 youthful aspirants in his "brightest boy" contest for two scholarships recently. He was bent on testing character as well as information and submitted in his list of questions several designed to determine how the applicants would act under certain unusual circumstances. Here is the most famous question:

"You are the head of an expedition which has come to grief in the desert. There is enough food and water left to enable three people to get to the nearest outpost of civilization. The rest must perish. Your companions are:

1. A brilliant scientist 60 years old.
2. Two half-breed guides, ages 58 and 32.
3. The scientist's wife—interested mainly in society matters—age 39.
4. Her little son, age 6.
5. The girl you are engaged to marry.
6. Your best friend, a young man of your own age, who has shown great promise in the field of science.
7. Yourself.

"Which would you choose to live and which to die? Give your reasons."

PSYCHOLOGISTS agree that there is no one best answer to such a test query. Possibly no two scientists would answer alike.

But to score 100 per cent the question must receive a definite answer. The important thing is to answer the problem and be able to defend your answer. Such a response as "We'd all get rescued in time" or "I don't know" would score a big fat zero. In other words, Edison's boy genius had to be able to make up his mind. He also had to display some ingenuity.

One of the questions in the Edison test last year was of the same sort. How would you answer this one:

"If you were to inherit $1,000,000 within the next year, what would you do with it?"

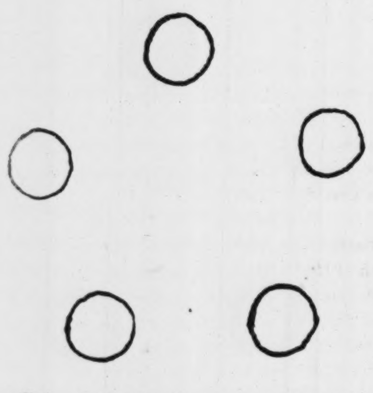
Probably there are as many correct answers to the question as there are dollars mentioned. One of the chief things the inventor sought to learn here was: Can the boy make a plan without taking a week to think it over?

Other steps have been taken by psychologists, and are now being tried out in laboratories on all sorts of people, good and bad. Some are giving excellent results; some not so good.

The following questions, for example, are not at all what they seem to be—but suppose you try them first; get some friend to take them, but don't tell him about the joker between the lines. It is only necessary to underline the answer to each question.

1. Are you ever rude to members of your family? Yes No
2. Are you always on time for your appointment? Yes No
3. Are you broad-minded? Yes No
4. Have you ever laughed at another person's misfortune, however slight? Yes No
5. If a ticket agent gave you 10 cents too much change, would you miss a train to return it? Yes No
6. If a telephone operator gave you the number, and then returned your nickel by mistake, would you drop it back in the box? Yes No
7. Do you always pick up papers you see strewn carelessly about on the sidewalks? Yes No
8. If you like classical music on the radio and your wife, or husband, likes jazz, do you always play the jazz? Yes No
9. Do you always pay for personal calls you make on the office telephone? Yes No
10. Do you always return borrowed books within two weeks? Yes No

Questions like these are being used by psychologists to test the character of children, but not to find out whether they would actually do these things. If all the questions were answered "yes" with the exception of number 1 and number 4, then the child would be judged "a pious fraud." It is seldom indeed that anyone is so perfect.

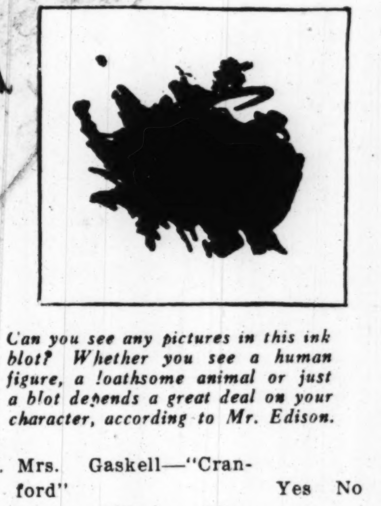


Take a pencil, close your eyes, put a mark in each circle. If you have a nearly perfect score you would make a bad cashier. It can't be done without cheating.

Here is another test where the joker is more carefully hidden:

Read the following list of 10 books and authors carefully and indicate which books you have read. Be sure to include only those you have actually read, not those you have merely heard discussed:

1. Charles Dickens—"Oliver Twist" Yes No
2. Ernest Hemingway—"A Farewell to Arms" Yes No
3. Rev. Arthur Stowe—"Tree of Life" Yes No
4. Mrs. Gaskell—"Cranford" Yes No
5. Clyde Wilton—"Romance of Architecture" Yes No
6. E. M. Hull—"The Sheik" Yes No
7. Norman Douglas—"South Wind" Yes No
8. Robert Stevens—"The Usurper" Yes No
9. Lieutenant Percival Ogden—"Espionage" Yes No
10. Leo Tolstoi—"Anna Karenina" Yes No



Can you see any pictures in this ink blot? Whether you see a human figure, a loathsome animal or just a blot depends a great deal on your character, according to Mr. Edison.

Perhaps you feel discouraged because you have had to put "no" after so many titles. Don't worry! It works the other way. The person who answers "yes" to too many has given himself away as one with extraordinarily poor memory or as a deliberate deceiver, because many of the titles belong to no books that have ever been written. Of course you have never read them! Numbers 3, 5, 8 and 9 are the false titles.

AND here is another way that is used to catch the fellow who will cheat if given a chance. An ordinary examination is given. The subject does not matter. Perhaps it is spelling. Then the papers are collected and another test is given.

Then, without the knowledge of the people taking the examination, the answers of each one are copied off by the examiner. Later on the papers are returned to the individuals with a list of correct answers and the request that each person score his own paper. The examiner leaves the room, and plenty of opportunity is given to erase answers and change them so as to increase the score.

The conscientious boy will, of course, leave his answers just as they were first handed in, right or wrong, but some boys will take a surprising amount of trouble in erasing even ink, especially if a prize is at stake.

Another test of honesty, which is used sometimes to measure the integrity of cashiers, is very similar in principle to the old child's blindfold game of pinning the tail on the donkey. It can be done with pencil and paper, however, and no blindfold is used.

The examiner tells the subject that he wants to test his muscular co-ordination, or that he wants to find out how well he can judge distance. The person tested is merely to close his eyes and place a pencil mark in each of a number of small circles. He has five trials. If he succeeds in a majority of the trials, the examiner knows that he has peeped. Try it yourself and see, or try it on one of your friends, using the small illustration in the lower left-hand corner of this page for your test.

Persistence is another quality that psychologists have found definite means of measuring. In fact, this is much more easily tested than honesty. Just give a person a particularly long and tedious task like the copying of a large table of figures, or copying in longhand the names in a telephone book. Time him, and see whether he keeps up an even pace, or whether he soon slows down and begins to look out the window. He may even give up after a short time.

Some psychologists believe that the chief value of the cross-word puzzle is as a test of persistence. Any sort of intricate puzzle, either mechanical or mental, is excellent for this purpose.

Here is one question that has been so used:

"FOUR boys arrived at a river and found a boat that would carry just 200 pounds, but no more. None of them knew how to swim; so they had to manage to cross in a boat. Tom weighed 200, Jim 200, Bill 100 and Dick 100. How did they get across?"

Yes, there is a way of working it out, but as a matter of fact it would serve the purpose just as well if there were no answer, just so that fact was not obvious.

Mechanical puzzles, such as the familiar wire ring to be separated from the larger triangle, or the irregular blocks of wood to be fitted into a seemingly impossible design, which may be found in any souvenir store, serve a double purpose of testing both persistence and mechanical ingenuity.

If your boy will work at one of these little tricks by the hour until he has solved the problem, you can be sure that he has one of the traits that Edison regards as most important to business success—the "will to work."

Another type of persistence is the ability to concentrate on a task in the face of various distractions, whether of an annoying or an amusing character. This is a trait that is very necessary in business. The person who can work only when alone, undisturbed and uninterrupted, will find success a difficult matter, for such ideal conditions do not exist in business.

There are several ways in which this trait may be tested. One is to give a routine test in arithmetic. For 10 minutes you are allowed to work quietly, and then a note is made of the number of problems completed. All at once a dog or a mouse is let loose in the room. Or someone comes in and starts to read aloud. Can you keep your mind on your work and make a good score in the second 10 minutes?

Psychologists have discovered that most people are more easily distracted by something which frightens or startles them than by anything which merely annoys, angers or embarrasses them.

Soldiers, in Wartime, MUST Be Turned into Brutes —Says Brigadier-General F. P. Crozier.

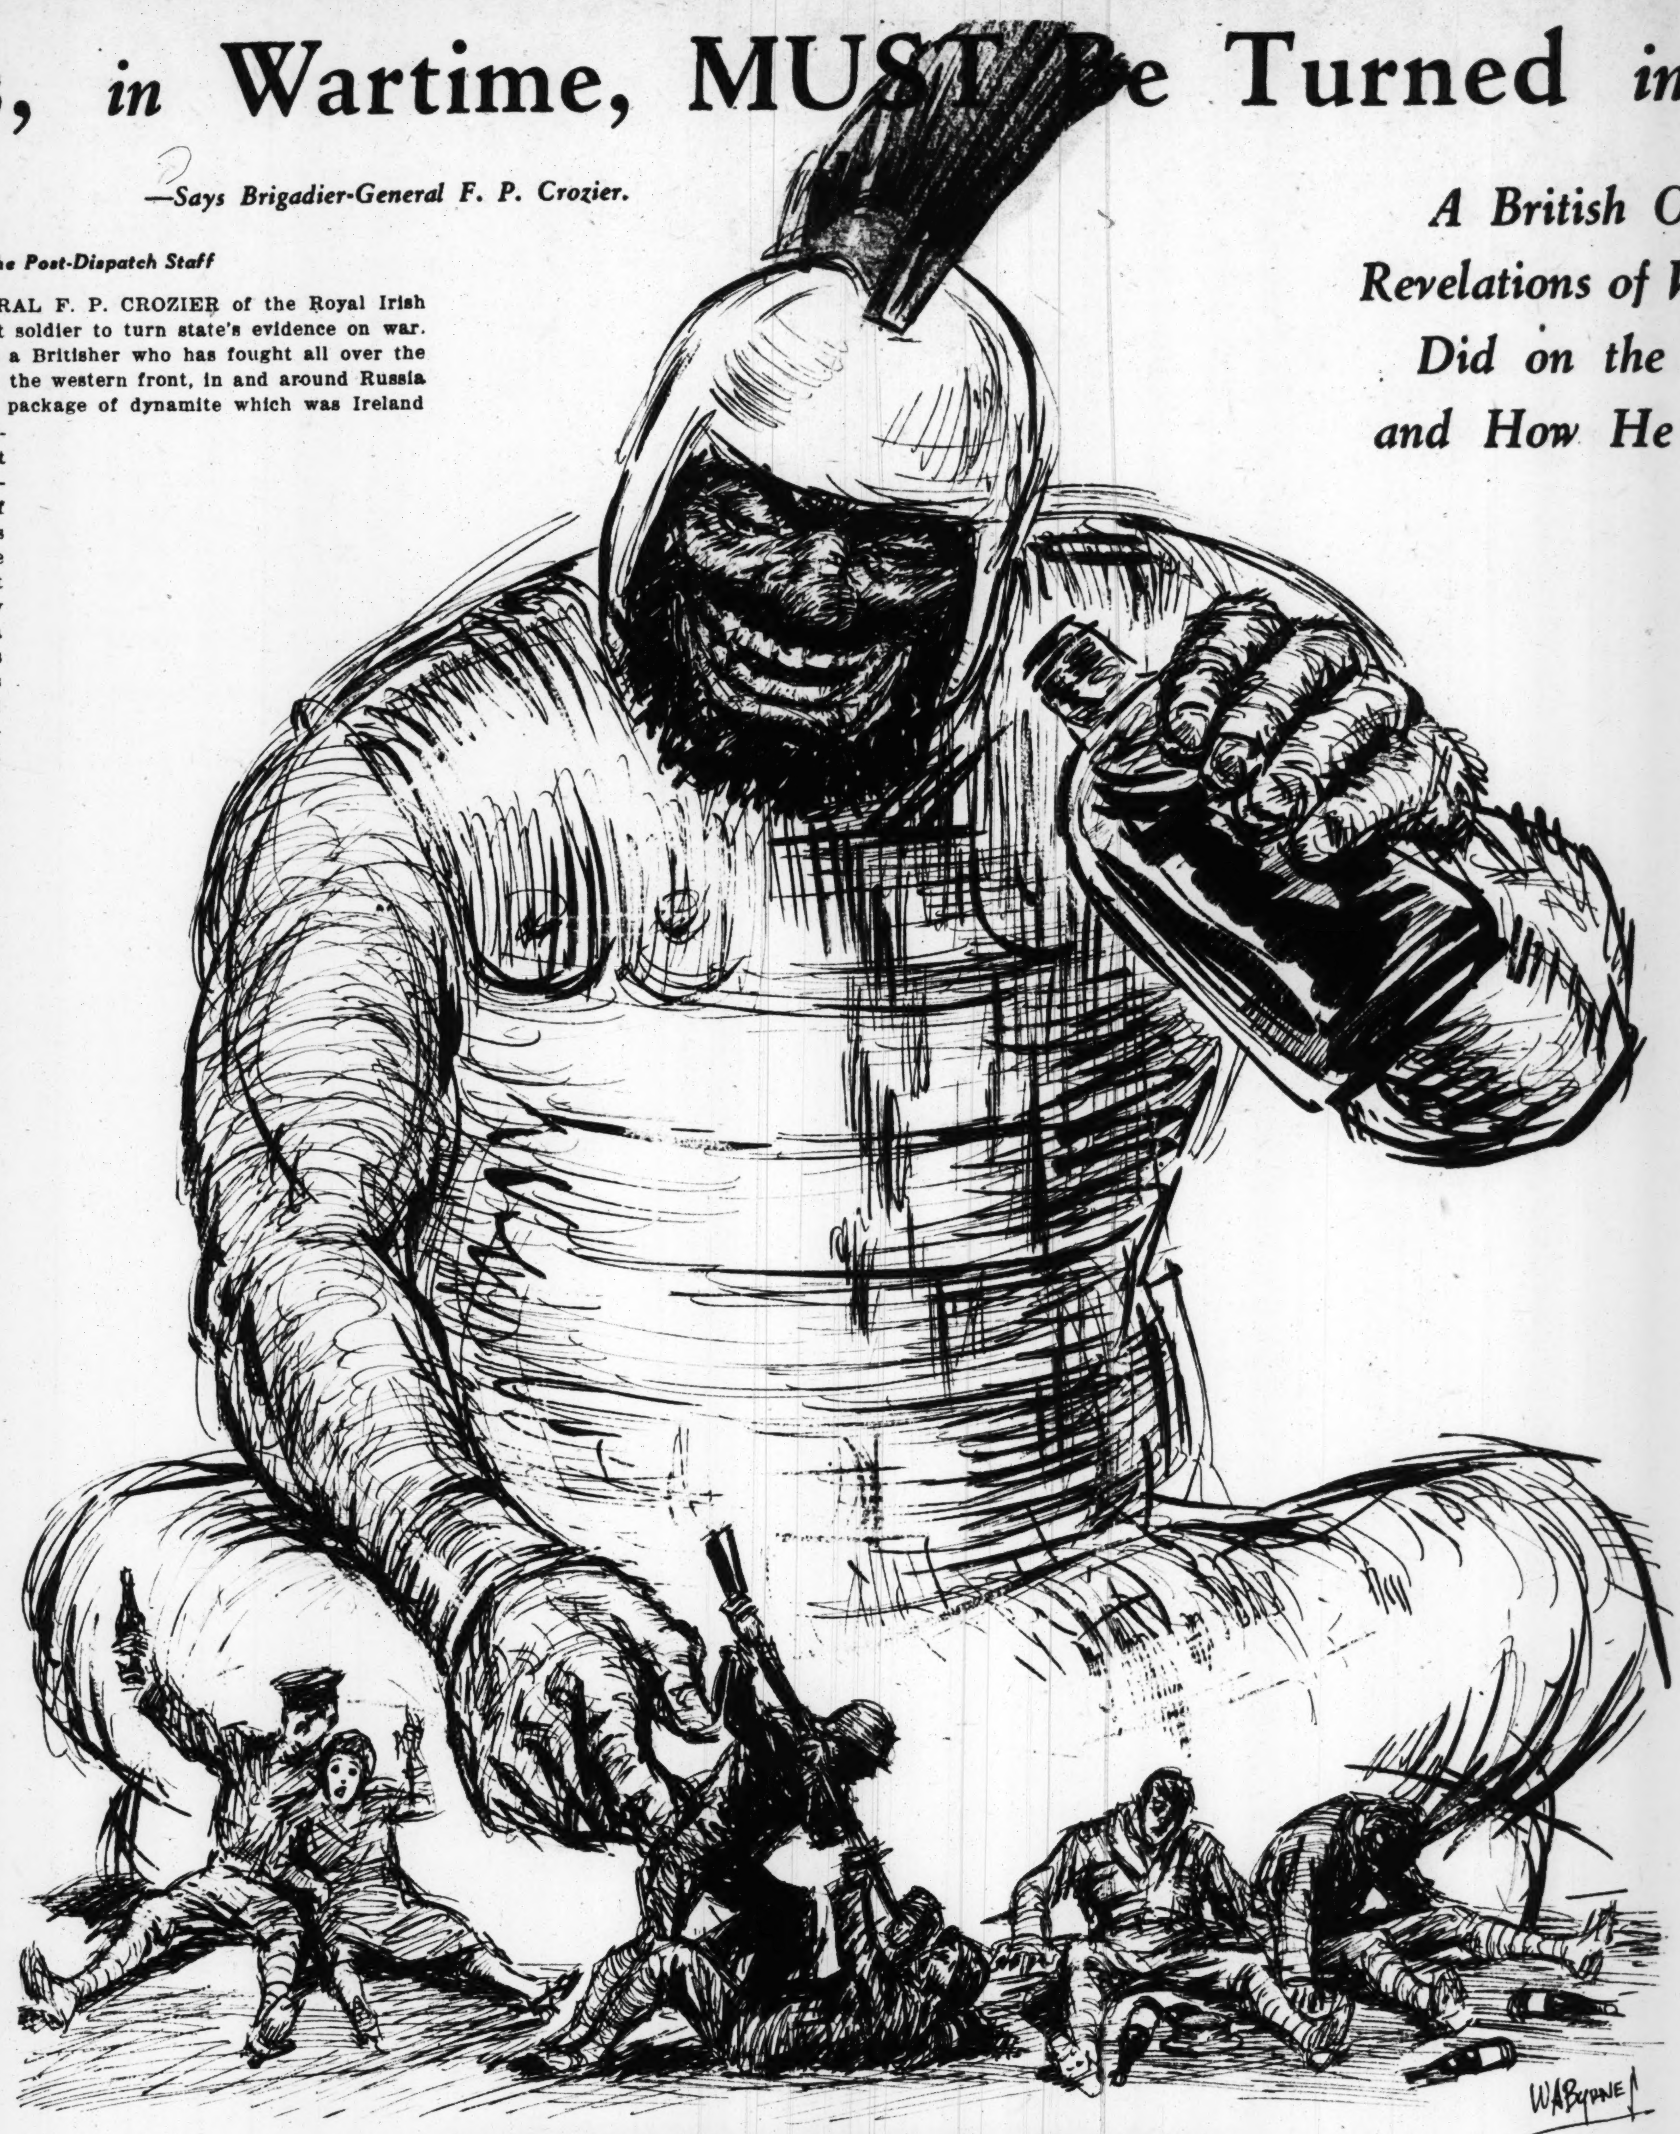
A British Officer's Frank Revelations of What He Saw and Did on the Western Front and How He Feels About It.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Staff



BRIGADIER-GENERAL F. P. CROZIER of the Royal Irish Rifles is the latest soldier to turn state's evidence on war. General Crozier is a Britisher who has fought all over the map, in Africa, on the western front, in and around Russia and in that small package of dynamite which was Ireland on an internal rampage. Add to that the Crozier ancestors, one line of whom were always in the Royal Navy while another line claimed descent from that ancient and rip-snorting fighter, Harry Hotspur, and you have some idea of the man. General Crozier has just published a book which has rattled all the windows in all the conservative clubs in London—particularly those where more reticent army officers forgather. The book is titled "A Brass Hat in No Man's Land," and has recently been published in America by Jonathan Cape & Harrison Smith. It tells in the frankest possible language what General Crozier saw and did on the western front and what his conclusions are on the whole subject of war.

A brass hat is what they call the cap of a General in the British Army or of a general staff officer of any rank. It has a scarlet band and a frieze of golden oak leaves decorating the vizor.

The cries of rage that greeted General Crozier's book in England were caused by several things—his bald statement of how the blood-lust was built up in green soldiers, his story of preparing a private for military execution by giving him enough liquor to get him so drunk that he could neither see nor stand up, and some of his observations on the conduct of the war, for example: "The Big Bugs thought in terms of millions, both of men and money, and left it at that."

At the outset, General Crozier tells of the way to put together a fighting machine: First, "by knocking the beer and politics out of all ranks." Second, by the blood-lust method. He says:

"I, for my part, do what I can to alter completely the outlook, bearing and mentality of over a thousand men in as short a time as possible—for blood-lust is taught for purposes of war in bayonet fighting itself and by doping the minds of all with propagandic poison. The German atrocities (many of which I doubt in secret), the employment of gas in action, the violation of French women and the 'official murder' of Nurse Cavell all help to bring out the brute-like bestiality which is so necessary for victory. The process of 'seeing red,' which has to be carefully cultured if the effect is to be lasting, is elaborately grafted into the makeup of even the meek and mild, through the instrumentality of martial music, drums, Irish pipes, bands and marching songs. Sacred and artistic music is forbidden, save at church, and even then the note of combat is struck. The Christian churches are the finest blood-lust creators which we have, and of them we made free use.

"THE British soldier is a kindly fellow and it is safe to say, despite the dope, seldom oversteps the mark of barbaric propriety in France, save occasionally to kill prisoners he cannot be bothered to escort back to his lines.

"In order that he shall enter into the true spirit of the show, however, the fun of the fair, as we may call it, it is necessary to corrode his mentality with bitter-sweet vice and to keep him up to the vicious scratch on all occasions. Casualties are never alluded to save in the vein of callous or careless regret. It is my hope that in days to come, in the near future, the men will not only regard death, gashing and gaping wounds, gas-destroyed organs, or even frozen feet (this latter a carelessly acquired condition, in most cases, and one which meets with severe retribution from the disciplinary point of view) as mere nothings, but that they will be able to joke lightly among themselves in these matters, fortified by the fact that they are giving more gashes, ripping up more bodies and causing more suffering generally than the other side. By September, 1915, everything we do is faultless, everything the Germans do is abominable. It is the only way in war, and both sides follow it."

Here is a sample from a little talk that General Crozier gave his men:

"All soldiers—except the most dense and unintelligent—are frightened in action, at times. There comes that pain in the tummy. That you have to master. You must never let your neighbor know you are in a funk, either by word, deed or suggestion. Funk itself is nothing. When unchained it becomes a military menace, and for that men die at the hands of their comrades. Much of my talks will be upon matters not directly found in military books. You must lose your gentle selves."

The problem of women, when soldiers are on leave or off front-line duty, and its consequences, General Crozier regards as inevitable. "I even heard a good judge of war say a man—or boy—in 1918, could not fight well unless he could love well," he says. And he uses "love" in a pretty broad sense. He also makes it clear that the woman problem affects officers as well as enlisted men.

"Many a bad old Captain," he reports, "ruins his subalterns in the company mess, and in clubs, by his example, conversation, behavior with women, and drinking habits generally. We know it. It is sad but almost inevitable. In peace times boys do not now often attempt to keep pace with or copy coarse-minded men, and if they do there is often someone to warn them. The senior officers are in loco parentis in this emergency, and they don't—or won't—see it. I hear coarse remarks in clubs, on the leave boats, in Boulogne hotels and in London, made by middle-aged roues, dressed up in uniform, which would horrify the parents of these young people if they knew. At a certain house in London, officers of all ages were found dancing, retiring, drinking and love-making with girls in Government employ, under quite extraordinary circumstances.

"A BOY, fresh from school, became an officer, went to France and was wounded. After recovery he was posted to a reserve battalion, and there it was that a great deal of the mischief took place. While there, and when he was 19 years of age, he met a prostitute to whom he was introduced by his Captain. They went off together for a week-end. Later, the woman told the lad she was going to become a mother and that he would be the father. He believed her and married her, as he was the soul of honor! She never had a child at all. This boy was the heir to vast estates. His father, a country squire, on being told of the calamity, sent for them both, glanced at the woman, kicked them both out of the house, disinherited the son, and, after the war, sent him a hundred-pound note with which to go to the colonies. There are dozens of cases of this sort, for which the war is alone to blame."

Brigadier-General F. P. Crozier.

Probably the most upsetting story in the book is the one about an officer named Rochdale and a private named Crocker and General Crozier's method of handling an execution. Here it is in his own words:

"Rochdale has been sent out earlier to put a notice on the German wire, by order of corps headquarters, a propagandic move to inform the front-line men that their families are starving at home. Now the trench mortaring is too much for him. He rises, rushes past me, and bolts down the trench in front of his men as fast as he can go. After daylight he is discovered in a disused French dugout behind the lines, asleep—apparently a deserter, as absence and evasion of duty are the two chief factors which go to constitute the offense. There is the additional fact that he has shown apparent cowardice in action, in front of his men. It is just as futile to be half a mile away from the duty point as 60 kilometers. I have already a private soldier absent. He will no doubt be caught and tried. What about this officer? I see him and put him back for trial by courtmartial for cowardice and desertion. He is tried and found guilty of one charge or both. Meanwhile, the private—Crocker—is caught by the military police, a long way back. He, too, is tried. I sign the charge sheet of both these men. Promulgation, where death sentences occur, is a long and painful job.

"ONE day we receive a wire. Rochdale is to be 'released from arrest and all consequences.' They try to send him back to duty, but I refuse to receive him. I am asked my opinion as to whether sentence of death should be carried out on Crocker. In view of certain circumstances I recommend the shooting be carried out. At last I receive the orders and documents relative to the execution. We leave the line for four days' rest at Mailly-Mailly.

"In the afternoon of the first day out we parade in hollow square. The prisoner—Crocker—is produced. Cap off, he is marched by the Sergeant-Major to the center. The adjutant reads the name, number, charge, finding, sentence and confirmation by Sir Douglas Haig. Crocker stands erect. He does not flinch. Perhaps he is dazed. Who would not be? The prisoner is marched away by the regimental police while I, placing myself at the head of the battalion, behind the band, march back to billets. The drums strike up, the men catch step. We all feel bad, but we carry out our war-time pose. Crocker didn't flinch, why should we? After tea the padre comes to see me. 'Might I see Crocker?' he asks. 'Of course, padre, but don't be too long-winded,' I say seriously. 'After you have done everything you can for him tell his company commander. But I don't think his people should be told. He can go into the "died" return. War is all pot-luck; some get a hero's halo, others a coward's cross. But this man volunteered in '14. His heart was in the right place then, even if his feet are cold in '16. What do you say?' 'I quite agree,' answers the good man.

"NOW, in peace time, I and the rest of us would have been upset indeed at having to shoot a colleague, comrade, call him what you will, at dawn on the morrow. We would not, in ordinary circumstances, have slept. Now, the men don't like it, but they have to put up with it. They face their ordeal magnificently. I supervise the preliminary arrangements myself. We put the prisoner in a comfortable, warm place. A few yards away we drive in a post, in a back garden, such as exists with any villa residence. I send for a certain junior officer and show him all. 'You will be in charge of the firing party,' I say; 'the men will be cold, nervous and excited; they may miss their mark. You are to have your revolver ready, loaded and cocked; if the medical officer tells you life is not extinct you are to walk up to the victim, place the muzzle of the revolver to his heart and press the trigger. Do you understand?' 'Yes, sir,' came the reply. 'Right,' I add. 'Dine with me at my mess tonight.'

"I want to keep this young fellow engaged under my own supervision until late at night, so as to minimize the chance of his flying to the bottle for support. As for Crocker, he leaves this earth, in so far as knowing anything of his surroundings is concerned, by midnight, for I arrange that enough spiritous liquor is left beside him to sink a ship. In the morning, at dawn, the snow being on the ground, the battalion forms up on the public road. Inside the little garde non the other side of the wall, not 10 yard distant from the center of the line, the victim is carried to the stake. He is far too drunk to walk.

"HE IS out of view save from myself, as I stand on a mound near the wall. As he is produced I see he is practically lifeless and quite unconscious. He has already been bound with ropes. There are hooks on the post; we always do things thoroughly in the Rifles. He is hooked on like dead meat in a butcher's shop. His eyes are bandaged—not that it really matters, for he is already blind. The men of the firing party pick up their rifles, one of which is unloaded, on a given sign. On another sign they come to present and, on the lowering of a handkerchief by the officer, they fire. A volley rings out—a nervous, ragged volley, it is true, yet a volley. Before the fatal shots are fired I had called the battalion to attention. There is a pause. I wait. I see the medical officer examining the victim. He makes a sign. The subaltern strides forward, a single shot rings out. Life is now extinct. We march back to breakfast while the men of a certain company pay the last tribute at the graveside of an unfortunate comrade."

In the Somme offensive General Crozier found the acid test of war. He took a battalion of 800 men into action, and in a couple of hours he saw more than 700 of them laid low over a piece of land less than a quarter of a mile square. The 700, he says, had "proved their ability to subordinate matter to mind. Intellectual discipline had triumphed." With 70 men he soon built a new battalion.

No one can accuse General Crozier of being a sentimentalist. He is nearer the other extreme. But at the beginning and at the end of his book he makes it plain he has had his fill of war, he is through, he wants peace and he wants it to last.

MITIGATING the HORRORS of the HURRICANE

Relief Methods Practiced After This Month's Disaster at Santo Domingo Show Tremendous Advances Made in Rehabilitating Survivors and Repairing Damage.

Santo Domingo, as it looked from the air before the hurricane struck.

THEY have had a lot of experience with hurricanes in the West Indies in the last three or four hundred years and are still where they began as far as prevention is concerned. Mere man, with all his scientific knowledge, can't stop a hurricane or steer it away from shore when it comes swooping down out of the Caribbean. If he lives on one of those islands southeast of Florida he has to figure hurricanes in his scheme of life and count on one striking every now and then. And when it comes, he has to let it strike and wreak such devastation as it will and then do what he can toward rehabilitating the survivors and repairing the damage. If he is killed, he is killed just as effectively as though a hurricane were a new kind of disaster in his region—one which he had never counted on or guarded against. But if he isn't killed his experience in battling hurricanes counts for something.

In two respects—in rehabilitating the survivors and repairing the damage—man has made some progress in his struggle with these dreaded tropical storms. In these two particulars his experience has been profitable. A century ago, when cities were left in ruins in the wake of a hurricane they presented scenes of horror for months. Sometimes weeks passed before word of the disaster reached North America and Europe. Then other weeks passed before relief funds could be raised and relief ships sent to succor the refugees. In the meantime, the wounded and maimed died by the hundreds from want of medical attention. Epidemics broke out and carried away other hundreds. Even healthy survivors frequently lost their battle against starvation. But conditions have changed somewhat since then. Several factors are responsible. The closer touch which one part of the world maintains with another nowadays is one. Experience with previous disasters of the kind is another. And perhaps of greatest importance are the organized, large-scale relief operations made possible by the Red Cross.

The work already done and that is still being carried on by the Red Cross following the recent Santo Domingo hurricane which laid the city in ruins and took a toll of 4000 lives, affords a good example of how much more effectively relief operations can be carried on now than was possible 100 years ago—in 1831, for instance, when the island of Barbados was swept by a similar disaster, with a loss of 2500 killed and some 5000 injured.

That disaster of 99 years ago struck the city of Bridgeton on the early morning of August 11. There was no warning of its approach save that the preceding afternoon was unusually sultry and the early part of the night was filled with ominous lightning flashes and gusts of rain, with intermediate calms. Modern meteorological observers would have noted the hurricane's advance while it was still far out at sea, and although they would have been unable to save the city, they would have given storm warnings so that the loss of life might have been smaller.

As it was, the inhabitants were caught virtually unawares when the storm broke "with violence prodigious beyond conception." No coherent account of what actually had happened reached the outside world until months afterward, when a West Indian newspaper editor wrote and published in book form a graphic description of the night of horror and the succeeding weeks of suffering.

"Humble cots or elegant mansions were alike hurled to destruction," he wrote. "The aged parent, the wife or husband, or the child on whom the fondest hopes had been placed, was now an ensanguined, disfigured corpse; others with fractured limbs and dreadful mutilations, rescued alive from under fallen buildings, were spectacles of misery hideous to the view, and pierced the heart with cries of agony. Many of the inhabitants of ruined Bridgeton wandered through those devastated streets which were not entirely blocked up with the wreck of former affluence; some, hardly crediting the evidence of their senses, would fain believe they dreamed, until the heart-broken salute of one and another acquaintance roused them to a perception of the dismal, irremediable truth. Half stifled expressions, scarcely articulate related the destruction of their all—the death of their slaves, relations, parents, their wives or children. . . ."

NO RELIEF ships came to the aid of the stricken city, for weeks passed before sailing ships of the time could carry news of the disaster to distant mainports. No doctors or nurses came from land cities with medicines and supplies. The doctors of the island were compelled to handle the situation as best they could with what medical supplies were left. Sickness broke out. Hunger drove a large part of the population to such desperation that groups wandered about the countryside, seizing upon anything that offered itself as food. Straggling cattle were killed and barbecued. Fields and orchards which had escaped destruction were raided. Five days after the city had been wrecked local relief committees were organized and food depots established, but in the meantime suffering was appalling. Not until December, four months later, did relief come from other countries, when England raised and sent to the sufferers about $30,000.

In the case of the Santo Domingo hurricane of September 3, relief work was hampered but little by the distance which relief workers had to travel to the scene or by time consumed in raising relief funds.

On the day after the disaster the American Minister at Santo Domingo, Charles B. Curtis, cabled a plea to the American Red Cross through the State Department, asking for aid and supplies. Immediately the machinery of disaster relief went into action.

The first thing the organization did was to cable $15,000 to Curtis to serve as an immediate and initial appropriation for first emergency work. It then dispatched a cablegram to Captain Antonio Silva, manager of the Porto Rico Red Cross chapter, at San Juan, directing him to go at once by airplane to Santo Domingo to superintend operations. Through the co-operation of the Pan-American Airlines he was able to reach the stricken city within an hour and a half after receiving the message. Silva was directed to make a hurried survey of the city's needs and report his findings to Washington. Then, two days later, the Red Cross cabled $25,000 more of relief funds to Minister Curtis, directing him to form an American Relief Committee, and $10,000 to Governor Roosevelt or Porto Rico for the purchase of supplies. With these funds the Red Cross made possible the purchase of food at nearby points, thus assuring their immediate availability, instead of dispatching the supplies themselves from Washington.

As a result of these measures, well-financed and well-trained relief workers were on the ground within less than 24 hours after the hurricane had struck. Churches and schools were converted into hospitals. Doctors and nurses speedily came in from the other islands and Florida. Food depots were established. Food ships were rushed in from other Caribbean ports and some vessels with food cargoes which happened to be in the vicinity were commandered and their cargoes transported to Santo Domingo. This prompt reinforcement of the stricken city's food supply was made possible by the promptness with which the Red Cross sent relief funds. No time was lost through the necessity for going out and raising the funds by popular subscription. The organization takes care of this in advance and had the funds readily available for use in just such an emergency.

A FULL report of the work done by the Red Cross in this recent disaster is not yet completed, but as the procedure followed was similar to that pursued two years ago when the Porto Rican hurricane struck the Florida coast, a description of the work done at that time serves as well to illustrate the point. The activity of the Red Cross preceding, during and following that storm was described by Howard W. Selby, chairman of the Red Cross chapter at West Palm Beach, Florida.

"In December, 1926, we were a short distance from a hurricane that had struck Miami with great force and damage," says Selby's report. "It was commonly said among people of that section that they had never experienced a storm of anything like its severity. There was no reason to believe that this would be repeated within another generation, but in spite of that fact we created organizations such as we had never had before in Palm Beach County. Stepping from the volunteer type of organization to one well organized and with a full-time secretary employed, we began to develop an interest in the community in Red Cross work. We began learning something of the Red Cross program for life saving, first aid work and so on. but also gave considerable attention to plans for disaster preparedness.

"We came to the period of September, 1928, when we heard of the disaster striking Porto Rico. We little realized on the first day what the extent of that storm and its damage was, but it began to appear more serious to us as we learned in 24 hours after the Porto Rican storm that it was approaching the east coast of Florida.

"Reports were conflicting. For a few hours we were told it was going to sea, and then we were told it was coming toward the mainland and would strike Northern Palm Beach. A day later we knew it was well on its way and might strike us at any hour.

"FORTUNATELY, we had been studying in a small group the nature of huricanes. We had, to some extent, made our people 'hurricane wise.' We learned in analyzing the storm in Miami—though with no idea we would ever suffer a similar experience—the types, tendencies and peculiarities of hurricanes. We learned they are shaped something like a doughnut 80 miles in diameter and with the hole in the doughnut about 15 miles across. That doughnut sweeps forward at about 18 miles an hour and as it goes forward it spins, or rotates. On the outer rim of the doughnut the velocity is around 60 miles an hour, and on the inner rim it is near 140 miles an hour. If a point is in the exact center of the storm area it means that the hole in the doughnut crosses this point and that there will be a lull after the first blow, to be followed in about an hour by another blow in the opposite direction from the first. In this case it took the hole 50 minutes to cross over West Palm Beach.

"People unacquainted with the nature of hurricanes often mistake the lull for an indication that the storm is over and venture out to see about their friends or their homes, only to find that they have passed through merely the first phase of the storm and that the second phase is yet to be faced. And this second phase, of course, starts in with the highest velocity of wind—precisely where the first left off. This mistake often is responsible for the greatest loss of life, and especially was this true of the Miami disaster. We had known of this fact and had given wide publicity to it. And we believe this was the reason that not a single life was lost during the lull in our storm.

"On the morning of Sunday, September 16, 1928, we called a meeting for the purpose of organization and in anticipation of an emergency. We had never been through a hurricane before.

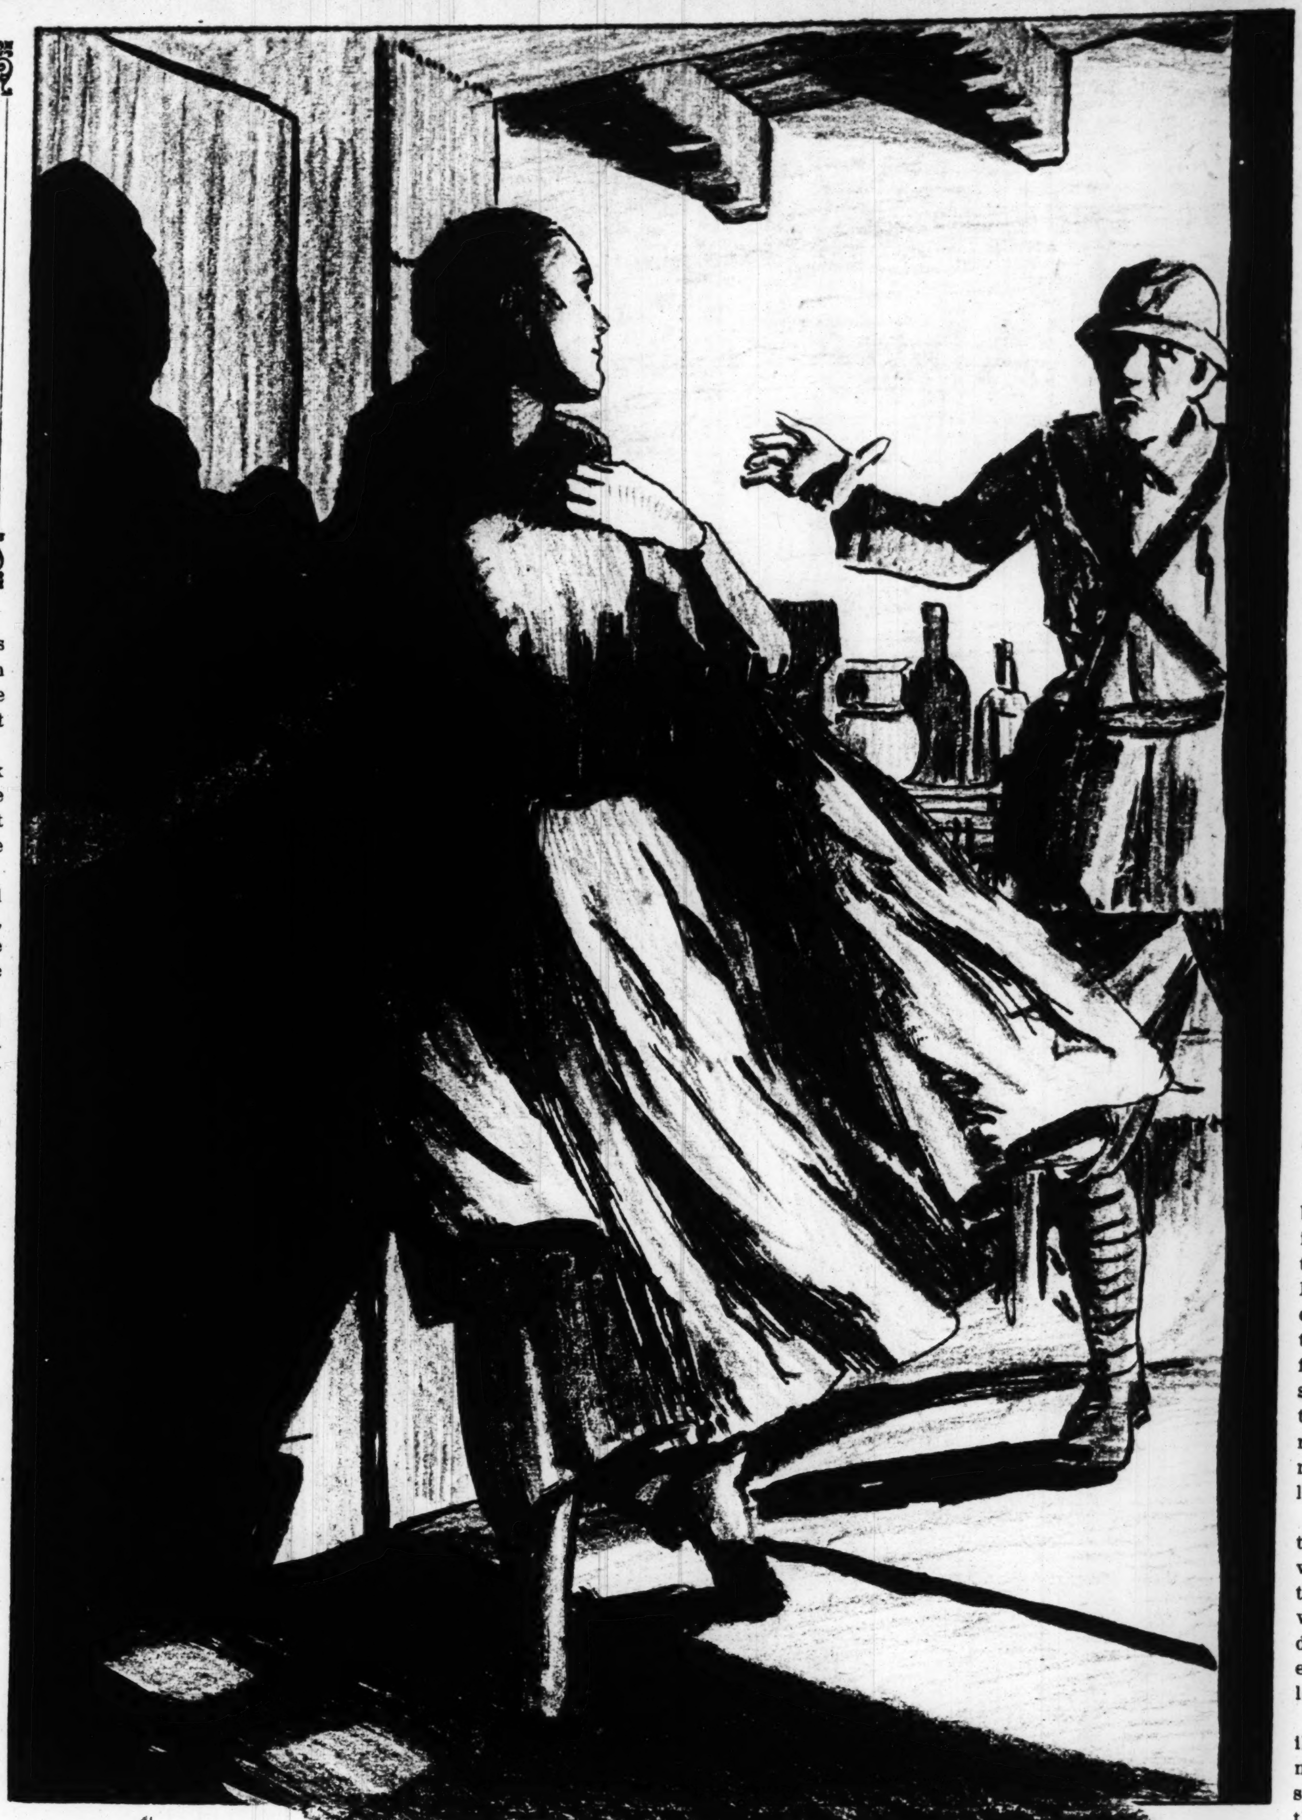
MARIE CELESTE

By

Bernice Brown



"Do not come," said Marie Celeste. "I want to remember, as I see you now."

THE Count de Marceau, having breakfasted, strolled down the poplar driveway of his estate.

In the rose garden the Count nodded to the gardener. Jacques Pelois was old, as old as the poplars, as old as the castle—and as out of repair.

"You have come back," said the gardener.

The young Count lit a cigarette. "Madame, the good wife, is well?"

The gardener shook his head. "It is the rheumatism. She can scarcely kneel to say her prayers."

"What does Madame, your wife, pray for while she sits in her chimney corner?"

"Mostly," said the old man, "she prays for Marie Celeste."

"Marie Celeste?" the young Count puzzled. "Ah, your son's child. I remember. She was scarcely out of pinafores when I last saw her."

"She is grown now. Sixteen almost." He stopped. "She is gay, as though the great curse had never fallen upon her. She can do anything about the house. It is a marvel. She can work in the garden, too, and she can make a bouquet the old Countess, your mother, would not have disdained to accept, such colors you have never seen together, so lovely, and all from our tiny garden, and she never having beheld a color in her whole life."

"It is strange," said the young Count. "I must congratulate her on her vocation."

The old man's face became alive. "You would be kind to speak to her, Andre. She remembers you. And when you speak to Marie Celeste," the old man went on, "would you say one thing to her; make one request?" His face was grave. "She might grant it for you, sir. Indeed, I think she might grant it."

"What?" said the young Count. "I should be glad to do anything you might ask of me."

"Would you ask her, sir, not to wander through the quarries?"

"The quarries?"

"Yes," said the gardener. "She plays there. She pretends they are her palaces."

"A strange delusion," said the young Count.

"Strange, indeed," the old man repeated. "Up and down those ledges she races as though they were but the steps of a terrace. It makes my heart stop in my throat to see her. One false step and she is dashed to eternity. It is marvelous," said the old man, "a miracle. But I wake up at night with the cold fear on me!"

"But why don't you forbid her?"

"I?" He lifted his hands in a gesture. "I have prayed, I have threatened. But she laughs at me. She says she is as safe there as I am in church. She says that a saint leads her. There is not an inch of the place she has not explored, sir, and each step is hers."

"And so each one of us deludes himself, if he is happy," said the young Count. "I shall speak to her. If you say, I will take her palace away from her. I shall say, 'This is not a palace. This is a quarry belonging to the family of De Marceau and worked out by them and the money lost before Napoleon lost Waterloo.' Yes, I will send her back to your garden, with the hedge around it, and command her to pick cabbages."

THEN he turned on his heel and strolled down the poplar avenue toward the gate. There might be a letter at the lodge for him.

No letter was there. No letter arrived next day, or the next. Well, it was better so. He had made up his mind. He had put all his cards on the table. Cards. What a fool he had been. And still, he had enjoyed himself.

Andre de Marceau was a gambler and a trifler. But he had at least been honest. He had even confessed his financial status to the radiant Colette.

"If the bonds from the Argentine fail me," he had said, "I shall not own a sou. You may be interested to know that, my delicate orchid, and make your plans for the season accordingly."

She had raised her eyes, exquisitely blue and faithless, to his. "When one cares, as I care, what difference does it make though you were a beggar on the street? You should try it some day. I am sure you would have great success as a beggar."

"Marry me and I will take you back to my castle. The sky above it is large and at night there are more stars at Marceau than in any spot in the universe."

"Mon ami," she had responded, and her lips touched the top of his nose, "I must think. I adore you. You are more to me than all the wealth of the Argentine"——

Thank the saints, she had a cool head. Instead of diamonds he had offered her stars, for an evening's gayety the strum of a cricket by the fireside. Marry him? Absurd. One must be rich, indeed, to marry into so distinguished a family.

"Good-by," he said, standing up very straight. "I was a fool to dream you loved me."

He ignored her gesture. "I shall endeavor to continue the payments on the necklace—bonne chance."

"Andre!"

But the door had closed.

"What a temper," sighed the fair Colette. "I did love him. He is unkind to me. Still, perhaps it is for the best. One cannot have everything."

So, in his lonely castle, the young Count waited for the letter and the letter never came. The fair Colette spelled but indifferently in the first place, and in the second, one could not be a dancer always.

IT was dreary, indeed, at the castle. There was no horse in the stable to ride. In the evening there was nothing to do. It was foolish to have managed one's life so that a silly little dancer in a Paris ballet could wreck it.

Well, as soon as his quarterly pittance arrived he would go at once to Nice and in the Casino recoup his losses. If he did not go to her empty handed she would welcome him.

The day that the pittance arrived the young Count remembered he had not yet spoken to the gardener's granddaughter. He would go to the cottage at once and read her a lecture. But Marie Celeste was not at the cottage.

"She has gone to the quarry, I suppose," said the old woman.

Andre de Marceau walked through the forest to the barren field where the quarry began. The Count stood on the edge and looked down. It was a canyon, white and bleak, where generations of De Marceau Counts had mined out their patrimony. There was nothing left now but the ridges.

Drearily he sat down and stared at the landscape. He would double his pittance, triple it, and go back to Paris. A wave of longing swept over him. Colette and Paris.

Then, at once, his eyes found someone—the girl, tripping along on the far ridge as though she did not dream one false step would dash her to destruction. She was young, slender. Her hands skimmed the rough sides as though they were polished marble of a palace hall. He wanted to shout, to warn her. But the words did not come. No, he mustn't startle her. He raced around the edge to meet her. Quickly he swung himself down from ledge to ledge. A pebble caught and bounded its way, sharp and metallic, into the canyon.

"A thousand devils," he stormed.

But the girl had stopped, one hand at her throat. She was frightened. There was an invader in her palace.

Forgetful of himself, he raced toward her. Imbecile—what could she be thinking of, standing there with death just beyond the edge of her shoe?

"Marie Celeste!" He caught her to him. He was angry. How could he frighten her, even as he had been frightened? Then, for an instant, he lost all thought of everything. He only knew that he had kissed her, fiercely, a dozen times. Was it relief that he had reached her, was it because he was a brute and she defenseless? He did not know. His arms dropped.

"Come back," he said. "I will lead you."

She put her hand in his. "You have come," she said. "I knew you would." Her trust made him ashamed.

On the way to the cottage he did not speak. What extraordinary thing was this that had happened to him? He was appalled and angry. He had no idea of letting his feelings go like that. She was a child, the daughter of his servant.

"You must see our garden," she prattled. "The carrots will be excellent this season and the salad has already headed out."

How amazing that she could talk on like this.

"I have planted gilly flowers along the wall," she went on. "Grandfather says it is a waste of ground. But I asked for them as a saint's day present."

SUDDENLY she drew back. She turned her face to him, but he looked away. Those sightless eyes would find his soul. "It is true," she said, "that you are going away tomorrow?"

Yes, he was going to Nice, going to retrieve his fortune at the gaming tables.

"No," he said, "I shall stay here in my moldy castle and listen to the pelter of the rain upon the eaves. But you are going." He stopped. "To Paris. There must be surgeons in Paris clever enough to give you back your eyes."

"I do not understand," she said. "Your voice sounds angry with yourself. You should not be. I only want my eyes that I may see you."

"God forgive me," said the young Count. "Is it necessary to be good when one can fool a saint so easily?"

"You will come to see gran'mere?" she asked. "She will not believe me when I tell her about the doctor."

He did not go into the cottage. He shrank from explanations. Also he shrank from gratitude. One did not receive thanks for attempting to make restitution for a wrong.

But the main reason he did not go was on account of the girl. He must go away from her at once. He must never see her again. She had no right to be young and lovely and look up to him with eyes so blind to his brutality.

"Good-by," he said. "Your grandfather will take you to Paris. I will explain to him tonight at the chateau and give him the letters to the doctors. You will stay at an inn I know well, on the left bank, quiet and with only the sound of the river in your ears. Good-by." He was not looking at her. The sooner he got away the better. "Do not thank me." His voice was hard. "Perhaps, some day, you may blame me for having opened your eyes. Everything one sees is not pleasant to look upon."

"Monsieur." In her darkness she found his hand and pressed her lips against it.

True, the young Count did not go to Nice and the gaming tables. But there was a hotel on the coast, much frequented by Americans, where the Count could stay for a pittance if in return he made himself agreeable to the guests of the management. He grew thin, however, and in his eyes was the look of an old man tortured by self-contempt.

He received a letter from the gardener's granddaughter two weeks after his departure. She could see. She was at home now, but she had been happy in Paris, even when they hurt her, because he had lived there. Who knew but what her footprints had fitted into his very own upon the streets. "He has been here, and here," she kept telling herself.

"Now I am seeing what he saw." God would reward him and all the saints would bless him. She prayed only to be allowed to thank him with her own lips. She knew so well what he looked like, her eyes could tell her nothing new. In the letter was a gilly flower. The last, she wrote, in the garden, but, when he saw it, it might make him think of home.

HE DID think of home, and decided, intolerable as life was, it was still less intolerable on the Riviera. But he had come back, hurriedly, on a stifling train, halted by interminable waits no one could explain, riddled with conflicting rumors, carrying on it anguish and reckless jollity, despair and courage.

It would not be a long war, they said. But it had come, that war that had slumbered ever since the French had too rapidly paid off their debts after the Franco-Prussian humiliation. The young Count had known all along it would come, but he had never believed it. Now it was here.

He thought of Colette in Paris. Would this catastrophe break through her? Or would it find her merely frightened and irritated, calculating and unmoved?

But he did not see Colette. At Paris he rejoined his regiment and went north. Things were extraordinary, those days that followed, the white roads, the sun, the fields heavy with wheat, the little villages. Along the road they kept meeting the refugees, in donkey carts, walking, their belongings strapped to their backs.

Count de Marceau was Captain de Marceau now. He was a good officer, resourceful, energetic. He was not surprised to find he had no fear.

At first it was like a ridiculous picnic, a picnic at which everything had gone wrong, but the weather was so fine and the fields so peaceful and the distant sound of the guns only like summer thunder that might dampen the ladies' frocks and send the party scurrying to shelter.

At last the business of war set in. There were trenches and trenches that swayed forward and back like the ebbing and incoming tide. It would seem, at first, as though the Germans would come no further. And then they came further. Captain de Marceau's company paid for each step of their advance, grimly and gallantly. But they came on. The young Count was injured. He did not wish to die now, but that was because he was busy, not because he was afraid.

He had heard no word from the chateau. There was no one to write to him but Henri and old Jacques. He supposed they had been caught in that first wave that broke over the border like a storm on a headland. Old Jacques and gran'mere would be too feeble to escape. He hoped the Germans would be kind to them. Perhaps, anyway, the old couple would be happier on their own soil than homeless, like those refugees with their belongings on their backs. Old Jacques could not strap his little garden to his shoulders, nor the forest with the black trunks, nor the early autumn sunset. Marie Celeste. He did not like to think of her. Perhaps the next man who kissed her as he had would not run away. She was 16 now.

OF COLETTE he never thought. Of course, she was exquisitely beautiful, but her face somehow had vanished from his belongings. It seemed, almost, as though she had never been.

The year sped on—Captain de Marceau received one leave. He went to Paris for three days. All of the time was consumed in offices. First in the office of the Minister of Supplies. There was no reason why those fellows in the mud should not be fed decently. The rest of the time was in a far more dreary office. He knew now that the Chauteau Marceau was inside the German lines, but there must be some way to find out what had become of old Jacques and gran'mere and the girl. One might find out through the Swiss, perhaps through the Red Cross.

The young Captain walked out into the afternoon twilight of the Paris street. It was not until he got back to his regiment he remembered that this was the street on which Colette had lived.

The young Captain became a Major.

"Curious," said his Colonel to a friend. "I have known young De Marceau a long time. One could never have predicted this of him. He is the most dependable man I have, except that he is careless about his own safety. He seems to have a personal grudge against the Germans."

"His home, you know," said the adjutant, "is inside their lines. That is enough to make a man violent."

"He had little affection for his home," said the Colonel. "Ah, one can never tell. The war has played tricks on all of us."

It was true. The young Major behaved as though he had a personal account to square with the enemy. It was insane to imagine, of course, that he was in any way defending her. And still he liked to imagine it.

THERE was a new plan at headquarters, some great scheme that gentlemen wearing red braid upon their collars had evolved in an office. One of the pawns in their game was the regiment to which Major de Marceau was attached and one of the moves of the game was the transferring of the Major's outfit from their present trench. The second trench was a long way from the first. There seemed to be no reason for their going, trenches were much alike, certainly in regard to their least attractive features.

Eventually, of course, they knew there was to be an offensive. Men were being massed from up and down the line to make a drive. Why or where, they had not been told. It didn't matter. Mud was mud and sooner or later would come along the bullet with one's name written on it.

The young Major was extraordinarily busy. Moving an army is even more difficult than managing an army sitting still. Major de Marceau had, therefore, a double responsibility, and all the time, he had a feeling they were moving into a country of interest to him for other than strategic reasons. He postponed inquiries as to their destination. He did not want to know. He would take each day as it came.

One night he had a sense he knew where he was. It was raining and dark. One could not see two paces ahead—and yet he knew. There is a different feel, even to the mud, when a Frenchman steps upon his own ground.

It had been a rapid advance under a screen of artillery fire. Orders were conflicting. There was confusion. The Major was disturbed for fear they had outrun their instructions. It would be a bad thing to get lost, to get divided. For the attack, scheduled to begin an hour before dawn, the outfit must be united. Otherwise the plans of the gentlemen with red braid on their collars would fail. They were in the woods now, those woods through which the summer dawn had marched so many times for him. The woods were all right. Bothersome but a protection. The only problem would be the quarry. That might work as a wedge between the companies.

IF, IN the darkness and the confusion, part of the outfit got on the wrong side of it, the very devil would be to pay. Each would be isolated as a ship upon the ocean. If there should be any change in the orders to advance next morning, how would they be communicated to the stragglers? The pit would be a nasty barrier, even in daytime. It would be impossible to traverse at night. No, there was no one, not even De Marceau himself, who could cross it with safety.

How ironical, he thought, if an outworn, discarded stone quarry on his own estate were to throw off the plans of the advance. No, it was too ironical to be likely. This was one thing at least that would never happen.

In the intermittent light of a cloud-swept moon the young Major saw his castle again. It had not been harmed. That was a miracle. Still, the Germans had used it probably for an officers' mess and some way, after the retreat, the guns of both sides had missed it. It stood there, as cold and permanent as it had stood for 100 years.

For a second he looked, but he did not enter. There was no time. It was deserted, of course—and he did not want to see it.

Of course, there was no one about

The Revolution Has Sent Rural Mexico to School

A Far-Flung Educational Program, Under Supervision of the Federal Government, Is Moulding the Country's Heterogeneous Population Into a Literate Nation.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MEXICO CITY.

MEXICO is engaged in a great social experiment. It is no less than an attempt to speed up the evolution of a national culture, to pull the masses of the people, running the whole scale from half-wild tribesmen to brutalized peons, up to the level of the modern world.

Education is the great force by which it is hoped to accomplish this. There is a fierce impetus behind this new educational movement. It has much of the strength and the zeal of the revolution that gave the government of Mexico into the hands of the people.

To meet the educational needs of the country the Government has worked out something new on the face of the earth. It is a rural school system unlike any other ever dreamed of. "Houses of the People" these new schools are called, perched on lofty mountain peaks, all but lost in the vast obscurities of desert country. They are just that, houses of the people. They have become in a few short years the focal centers of the life of the more than 6000 communities in which they have been implanted.

In a recent survey Dr. Moises Saenz, Assistant Secretary of Public Education, tells of the founding of the new rural schools, of their amazing growth and of the part which they already play in Mexican life.

The problem which faced the Federal department of education was a stupendous one. Rural schools existed before the revolution in some localities, but it was felt that they were only a little better than no schools at all. They were bound by tradition, they made no appeal whatsoever to the people, who simply said, "Why?" when it was proposed that they learn to read and write. It was necessary to work out a new system that would fit the peoples of the most diverse types and modes of living. "The catalogue of the native Mexican tribes," Dr. Saenz observes, "lists as many as 49 ethnic groups varying in numbers from a mere handful of individuals on the verge of extinction as is the case of the Seris of Sonora to something like 2,000,000 Aztecs in the center of the Republic."

"Someone will one day write a book on the folklore of these people," Dr. Saenz writes, "and I predict for the reader the most varied and exotic pageant of impressions, of languages spoken, of legends, costumes, myths, foods, taboos, fetishes, totems, ceremonies and festival days ever imaginable. To remember that in one of these villages it is customary to shut the little girls up in the houses at the age of 10 years, forbidding them under any circumstances to be seen outside the four walls until they have attained maturity, when they are brought forth in grand display at the solemn yearly festival and exhibited to the marriageable young men of the village—and at the same time not to forget the exaction we make, that everyone, boys and girls of every village, and those of this one included, attend openly a mixed school is but to think of one single aspect of the thousands wherein the indigenous mass presents problems to our program for their education.

"Such, then, is the human stage on which the rural school must function: country abrupt and sullen, slashed through with rugged ridges of mountains, country of dry, barren plains, of gently rolling uplands, prairies, virgin forests, torrential mountain passes, kindly, provident climate. People wise with the wisdom of many races, cherishing the memories of many traditions, tired at times, of virgin strength more often. Confused murmur of strange languages, kaleidoscopic pageant of folkways and customs; race fluid, constantly agitated by the underlying, churning currents of the process of mixing, pure here, turbid there; complex mentality of the Indian, the Moor, the Spaniard. Strange religion that scatters before the Christian cross the pagan petals of the zempatzuchil. Country of many peoples, united in emotion, divided in thinking, soul in gestation and above all this cosmos, the whirlwind of a revolution which has just passed, leaving the branches of the trees still torn, the leaves of the woods still trembling, the minds of the people awake and expectant, their faces turned upward to the heavens, where a new sun is shining.

"From the very beginning," Dr. Saenz relates, "the need for a new kind of education was recognized, as were also the facts of the geographical medium, the lack of incentives in the environment and the apathy of the people, necessitating in the beginning a sort of awakening, of motivation, of apostleship.

Small Mexican artists.

"DURING 1922 and 1923 this task of awakening was accomplished by the missionary teachers who traveled the country over finding out where the indigenous groups lived, under what economic conditions, what kind of culture they had, what kind of education should be given them, studying the native industries and how they could be encouraged and perfected, bringing encouragement to the people, clearing the way and working out the administrative channels through which the Federal Government was to operate later.

"Shortly after the work was started the missionary teachers began leaving behind them here and there permanent teachers. We called them monitors. The institutions which were coming into being were not at first called schools. They were baptized with the suggestive title of "Casas del Pueblo" (Houses of the People). By 1924 a real system of rural schools had started. At the end of that year we were able to point to 1089 schools served by 1146 teachers who in turn were helped on by 48 missionary teachers. To these rural schools came 65,000 pupils."

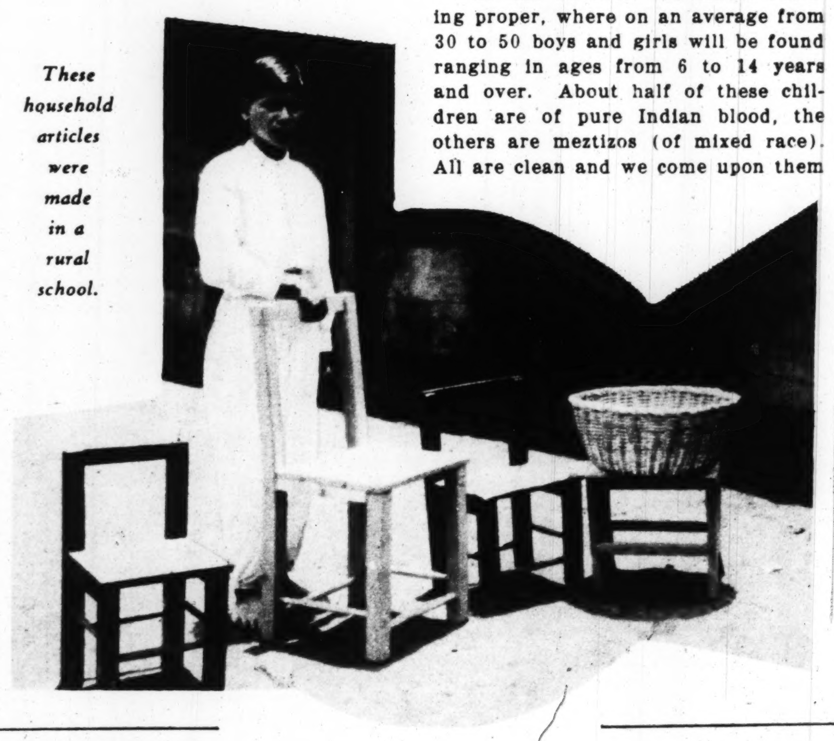
Today there are 6638 Federal rural schools, served by 8479 teachers and supervised by 125 inspectors. The greater portion of these schools have evening sessions for adults. Attendance of both boys and girls is very close to 300,000, that of adults 58,000.

Dr. Saenz spends a great deal of his time traveling, overseeing the development of this new school system. Here is his picture of a visit to a typical school:

"When on the occasions of visiting rural schools, we arrive at a pueblo, all the inhabitants come forth to show us where the school is and even from afar we have been able to make out the whitewashed building with the inscription in bold lettering above the main entrance announcing it as the 'House of the People,' or—sometimes—the 'Federal Rural School.' Throughout the Central Plateau and in the South, the length and breadth of the Sierra, the school is built close to the church, at times occupying its annexes, and not infrequently the spacious courtyard in front of the church serves as a playground for the children.

"Picture the school garden: rustic inclosure, microscopic and ingenious plots planted with our old-fashioned Mexican flowers, the poppy, the zinnia, marigold. Before entering the schoolroom we must perforce visit the annexes, the chicken house, the rabbit warren, a pigeon house, the hive of bees. If some day we should want to adopt an emblem for the rural school, surely one of these symbols would have to be selected, so typical are they coming to be. The plot of ground for the school's vegetable garden is quite frequently located some short distance from the schoolhouse proper; here corn, beans and potatoes are grown.

"At last we enter the school building proper, where on an average from 30 to 50 boys and girls will be found ranging in ages from 6 to 14 years and over. About half of these children are of pure Indian blood, the others are meztizos (of mixed race). All are clean and we come upon them engaged freely in various activities. This school is in charge of a woman teacher, but, as we have almost as many women rural teachers as men, this fact is merely accidental. This teacher is 22 years old and at once she impresses one as intelligent and energetic. The school equipment is of the new type—the children grouped around work tables, which are a combination desk and carpenter's bench.



These household articles were made in a rural school.

"If, as is probable, our visit was expected or if, perchance, we happen along toward the close of the school year, we find a most profuse and varied exposition of the things made in the school, textiles woven of thread, of woolen yarn and wool fibers, embroidery, furniture, baskets, drawings and paintings, breads, preserves, soaps, dresses. The pupils move about freely. One group will be working perhaps outside on the spacious veranda, sheltered by the projecting roof; others will be taking care of animals in the school's farmyard annexes; still another group will be digging in the garden; those in the schoolroom read or write.

"When the teacher calls them together, they all sing. If we question the children about their school life, they will tell us many unusual things and of much that is not learned out of books, such as, for instance, that they have co-operatives, that they themselves decorated their schoolroom and built the annexes, that they have an orchestra and any number of other things never dreamed of by the pedagogue.

"If the school is purely Indian, the teacher will tell us that those in the preparatory year form a heterogeneous group to whom she is trying to teach the Spanish language. Upon investigation we find that in proportion as the school is rich in activities and constitutes a real society, just so the pupils acquire our language readily. At times the progress is so rapid that, were it not for the testimony of everyone about, we would have said that those children knew Spanish before they came to school.

"DURING the whole time of our visit, groups of the people of the villages have been gathering in the school courtyard, crowding around the building, finally entering the schoolroom itself. They look at us in silence, follow with interest every detail of our visit, peer anxiously into our faces to discover the least sign of approbation.

"Two distinct groups, however, can always be defined among the interested parents: the representatives of the political authority and the Committee on Education. Both know the school and vouch for it. When, at the end of our visit, we pause to make recommendations, our words are received with equal acceptance of responsibility by the schoolmaster, the municipal authorities and the members of the Committee on Education.

"Towards evening, if we are staying the night in the village, we see the students of the night school arrive, mere youths some, youngish adults the most, although at times the old folks come too. The night school is not always inspiring, but I have never seen one where pupils did not work earnestly. Many times, however, one does find the ideal being carried out. Then the whole becomes an eminently social act. There are songs, there is conversation, there are simple lectures; problems of common interest to the community are discusssed. There is dancing, there is work."

These people have given the land for the school, they have given their labor in the building of it, they have given money. Out of their meager store of land they have given another plot for the school garden. They have contributed to the handicraft shop, which is a vital part of more than 2400 of these schools.

It has been a scramble to find teachers. At first, Dr. Saenz writes, they took everyone who showed the proper spirit of good will. That was about the only thing these teachers shared in common. Then the Federal Government organized groups of experts, known as the Cultural Missions, in each one a teacher, an agronomist, a man trained in the minor industries and handicrafts, an instructor in physical education and a social worker. These groups travel about the country, gathering in certain towns all the teachers of a region, generally about 50, and conducting with them a kind of institute of education.

MOREOVER, the visiting experts work with the people of the community. They vaccinate the children and adults, too. They organize the townspeople, outline a program of recreation for all, bring the community closer together and make a real effort to solve the actual, not the theoretical, problems affecting the public life in that particular locality.

"Free from prejudice," Dr. Saenz says of the teachers, "they do simply and sincerely what they are told to do and what their common sense dictates. Never having known bad models, they readily adopt the suggestions of the experts of the Cultural Missions or of the supervisor; by imitation they are being converted into good teachers."

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of these schools is their objective, their aim. Summarized, it is as follows:

"This new school aims to elevate the every-day occupation, to dignify and exalt the environment. It is a school of the country, for the people of the country, built upon the life of the country. It is meant to instill a love of the soil in our children, to teach them to extract from the earth a greater sweetness. Center of the tiny community where it is embedded, its influence radiates to all parts; it is opening up inner ways of communication, it is organizing the people, endeavoring to teach them the easy technique of collaboration and sharing. . . . . Thus this school fulfills the obligation which the most exacting of doctrine could possibly impose upon it, that of being socialized within itself and at the same time being a socializing influence."

Dr. Saenz is well aware of the enormous job still ahead. He cites the fact that five out of every ten children in Mexico have no school to go to, 1,756,000 children without a school. He speaks of the difficult task of transforming the old type of rural school, 7000 of which still exist. But he is undaunted. He knows the part education must play in making the new Mexico.

Mitigating the Hurricane's Horrors

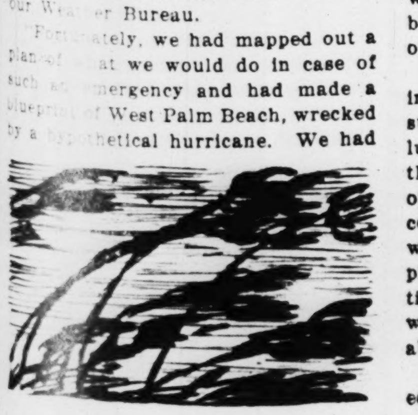
One was now almost upon us. Here is the Government telegraphic report that came to us that morning:

"Hoist hurricane warning, 10:30 a. m., Miami to Daytona; northeast storm warning from Daytona to Savannah; northwest storm warning from south of Miami to Key West and north of Key West to Punta Gorda. Nassau's morning report missing, but storm center near there. Hurricane center probably will reach Florida coast near Jupiter early tonight. Emergency. Advise all interests. Hurricane of wide extent and great severity. Destructive winds and high tides probable on Florida east coast, especially West Palm Beach to Daytona."

"That message was released on Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock and reached us about 11:30. It was considered one of the most serious and threatening of any reports sent out by our Weather Bureau.

"Fortunately, we had mapped out a plan of what we would do in case of such an emergency and had made a blueprint of West Palm Beach, wrecked by a hypothetical hurricane. We had no expectation of having to use it, but we had made it a year and eight months before the storm actually struck, and each year we had gone so far as to hold a sort of fire drill, carrying out a full relief program in a mock disaster. As it turned out, it was well that we had done that. We were destined very shortly to go through the whole program in a real disaster.



"AT THE meeting that Sunday morning we had representatives of all our relief committees and had between 90 and 100 persons present ready for service, ready to carry out any orders that might be given. At noon we set out to complete our committees and bring in individual workers, the plan being to report back at 2 o'clock, but by 1:30 the storm was upon us and we hastened back.

"At 3 that afternoon our quarters began to crack to such an extent that we had to leave and go to a hotel a block away, there to continue building our plan of organization.

"The storm continued with increasing fury until 6 o'clock, when the wind suddenly subsided and we knew the lull had come. We figured carefully the period of the first phase and knew, of course, that the second phase would cover a like period. When the lull was over, therefore, and the second phase began, we knew at exactly what time—1 o'clock in the morning—we would be able to go out with reasonable safety and start our work.

"By the time the storm had subsided, or within an hour afterward, an official organization was set up in an office building commandeered for the purpose, and all of the relief committees, with their subordinate committees, were formed, with a chairman and a vice chairman. Not a dollar of expenditure was authorized without a written requisition. There was no chaos or confusion. Work proceeded smoothly from the time it was possible to go out into the streets.

"Happily, about 2 o'clock, as the storm was just gaining headway, it occurred to us that we might communicate with some outside cities. We called the Mayors of Tampa and Miami and the Red Cross representative at Jacksonville. Strangely, the calls got through almost instantly. We reported the conditions as they were at the time and told these officials that if we were not heard from again within 12 hours to send relief. The Red Cross at Jacksonville, in turn, telephoned to national headquarters in Washington, so that before we had reached the lull, or half-way point, in the storm Washington headquarters already had dispatched special workers with ample funds to reach West Palm Beach at the earliest possible moment.

"As a result of these precautionary measures and steps of advance organization, relief work got under way by the time the buildings had stopped falling and was virtually completed, with the situation well in hand, by the time relief work ordinarily would have got started had not much of it been done before the storm actually struck."

the place. Old Jacques and gran'mere had gone, too, if, indeed, they were still alive. And Marie Celeste would surely have been ordered back with the Germans, lest she tell tales.

A Sergeant came up to the Major.

"Company B, sir," he said. "They are missing. It is feared they have split off from us and are on the other side of the quarry."

"They know when to attack," said the Major. "Their watches are as good as ours. We will go forth tomorrow at the same moment, even though we can not hear them say their prayers tonight."

THE night wore on but the young Major did not sleep. All was not well. In the darkness he found his way to the gardener's cottage. Then, at once, his heart stopped with amazement. There were no lights, of course, but smoke ascended from the chimney. He started running down the path. With his knee he pushed the door open.

"Marie Celeste!"

In the glow of the fire they faced each other.

"Why didn't you leave?" he asked.

She did not move. "There was nowhere for me to go."

She came close to him. "I have no wish to leave." There was peace in her voice. "I said you would come—if I wanted. You are here."

He drew her to him.

There was a knock on the door. They sprang apart. A soldier entered.

"Report from headquarters," he snapped. "Retreat ordered. Twenty kilometers back before daybreak."

"Has Company B received notice?"

The fellow shook his head. "There's a mistake, somehow. To get to them from the other side we've got to pass in range of our own guns. The two other runners have been killed trying it. I'm the last"—— He stopped. "To reach them we've got to go direct across, through the quarry."

"The quarry." The Major rubbed his hand across his eyes. There was only one person who could carry them the message, and she was dearer to him than the whole of France.

"I will go," said the Major. The runner saluted and departed.

She turned to him. She had not spoken since the soldier had entered. Now she laughed—a merry giggle.

"Marie Celeste!"

She laughed again. "You are ashamed to admit there is one thing I can do better. One thing in which I am a master. I can give that message to our soldiers. They will not be killed tomorrow—if I save them."

"This is madness," he said. "You might have done it once—when you were blind. But now you are like the rest of us—you would be dashed to the pit—just as I would."

"I have not forgotten the way," she said. "I—can see now. But I have the memory. I could no more make a misstep than I could forget your face." She tossed her head back and laughed again, gayly. "I shall go to them and we shall all meet again tomorrow."

"Tomorrow."

Before he had time to think she had slipped from him and to the door.

"Marie Celeste!"

She held up her hand. "Do not come. I want to remember, as I see you now, afraid that I shall be hurt, anxious for me, loving me."

"Yes," said the Major, "I love you."

"Good-by," said the girl. With her hands before her she stepped off the way. There was the gate, now the road, then the path to the right. Her hands touched the aspen bark that had always been her sign post.

AH, SHE could go there. She was safe. It might be black night, but she could see. Her heart was pounding, singing. It was not bad to be blind, except that it would make him sad.

She had never missed that turn, never, since she was a little child.

"He did not know," she sang. "Foolish one, he would not have come had he known I was blind." It was a blessed lie she had told him. He would forgive her. Even the saints would forgive her. But would it matter, indeed, though the saints withheld their forgiveness, in the blessed joy of tomorrow?"

OUT of a CLEAR SKY

A Plot for an Opera.

AGAIN the plot of the opera Im Wienerwurts, on which the eminent composer, Dr. Hans Leubenkleuber and I have been working for some years, has been changed.

The new plot concerns a young man named Fred Cszechyenwandowsklywzyz, who is a farmer at East Moriches, Long Island. Fred tires of the farm and wishes to come to New York to make his fortune.

"Mother," he says to the elderly, silver-haired female who is his mother, "I want to go to New York."

"All right," she says, gladly. "Here is your bag. I've had it packed, waiting for this moment for these three years."

"Don't cry, little mother o' mine," Fred says to her.

"Don't worry," says his mother. "Now you run along and be sure and make good in the big city."

"I will, mother o' mine, I will," Fred says cheerily.

"I doubt it extremely," says his mother, "and cut out that 'mother o' mine' stuff. Hurry up, you'll miss your train."

The next scene is in New York. Fred arrives on a very hot day, so he joins the New York Athletic Club and decides to take a swim in the pool. As fate would have it, as he enters the pool room a number of prominent lawyers, including Sam Untermyer, Delancey Nicoll, Charles H. Tuttle, Joe Choate, Newman Levy, Robert M. Benjamin and George W. Wickersham, are drowning. Fred jumps in and saves them all.

Naturally they are grateful. They ask what they can do to repay Fred. He tells them they can repay him by making him a lawyer. So Mr. Untermyer (Lawrence Tibbett) makes a few mystic passes in the air and in response a vision of Charles Evans Hughes (Nannie Larsen-Todsen) appears. Hughes touches Fred with a magic wand and Fred becomes a lawyer (Tonie Larsen-Nadsen).

In order to get on socially and professionally Fred then changes his name from Cszechyenwandowsklywzyz to Ellenbogenstein (Lannie Nodsen-Tarsen).

Fred then starts a brilliant career and finally as a climax the great day comes! He is made a Judge, and in an ecstasy of glee (Nonie Tannie-Lardsen) he takes a train for East Moriches to break the news to his mother.

The next scene shows Fred bursting in upon his mother.

"Mother!" says Fred, "what do you think?"

"I think all this Hoover prosperity is a myth," says his mother.

"Mother," cries Fred, "I have made good! I've made good in the big city."

"You could knock me over with a feather," says his mother. "Tell me about it. Shoot."

"Mother, I've been made a Judge."

"You mean you've been made a Judge in New York City?"

"Yes. Isn't it too divine?"

"A New York Judge, eh?"

"Yes, mother o' mine. Isn't it too incredibly ripping?"

Whether she thinks it is too incredibly ripping or whether she takes the opposite view is left to the imagination of the opera goer, for a moment at least. She speaks no word, but simply takes Fred by the seat of the pants and the nape of the neck and throws him out the door.

"There'll be no New York Judge in THIS house," she says grimly, readjusting her transformation.

APPEALING BEAUTY AWAITS YOU IN ONE OF THESE

3 FACE POWDERS

The alluring fragrance that comes to you from your own Plough Face Powder is just a prophecy of the new beauty that awaits you within the box!

For one of Plough's Three Face Powders is made especially for you . . . to keep your complexion looking lovely, not just for the moment but for hours at a time.

This fragrant clinging powder is the result of the modern knowledge that the three types of skin need three different powders to bring out their full beauty! Plough has met these needs with three distinctive face powders--one for oily skin, one for dry skin, one for normal skin.

The instant you apply your own Plough Powder you know that this is the powder you've always wanted ....you see that it really suits your skin and beautifies it as no powder has done before! It enhances the natural loveliness of your skin and lends a satin-smoothness, a radiant charm that makes you gloriously proud of your complexion.

IF YOUR SKIN IS OILY—choose heavy texture Plough's "Incense of Flowers" Face Powder, in the oval box, 75c.

IF YOUR SKIN IS DRY--choose light texture Plough's "Favorite Bouquet" Face Powder, in the square box, 30c.

IF YOUR SKIN IS NORMAL—choose Plough's "Exquisite" Face Powder, in the round box, 50c.

Each Plough Powder comes in white, flesh, pink, brunette and sun-tan tints, and is sensibly priced wherever beauty creations are sold.

Plough's Powders are as keenly in step with today's economy trend as they are with fashion's latest decrees. Fine quality without excessive cost is made possible by Plough's enormous volume.

. . it does act twice

MAKE THIS TEST— See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that Calumet specially provides to take place in the mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture reaches the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that Calumet holds in reserve to take place in the heat of your oven. Make this test to-day. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.

Millions of women know Calumet's Double-Action makes better baking

THEY know—the millions of women who praise Calumet, The Double-Acting Baking Powder. They have seen for themselves that Calumet's marvelous double-action brings new perfection to baking! New confidence of success! New pride!

Enjoy this great satisfaction of turning out one baking triumph after another. Use Calumet—and see what fluffy biscuits, what delicate, delicious cakes Calumet's Double-Action brings.

Calumet's first action, in the mixing bowl, starts the leavening. Then, in the oven, the second action begins. It carries on the leavening. Up! . . . up! . . . it keeps raising the batter and holds it high and light until your cake is beautifully baked.

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action nor in the amount that should be used. And not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action — Double-Action, your assurance of baking success. That is why Calumet is the largest-selling baking powder in the world.

To-day, get a can of Calumet and test it yourself. Remember to use only one level teaspoon of Calumet to each cup of sifted flour. This is the usual Calumet proportion and should be followed for best results—a splendid economy which the perfect efficiency of Calumet's leavening action makes possible.

SALVAGING GOLD FROM THE BAY OF BISCAY

The steamship "Egypt" sank in May, 1922, carrying $5,000,000 in bullion. Italian divers have located the hull and, using special apparatus, have finally reached the strongroom of the lost ship.

These photographs of the work show the divers descending, the model of the sunken ship, articles being brought to the surface, and the examination of the captain's safe in which were found the keys to the strongroom. The gold has not yet been recovered.

No woman need surrender her youth because of graying hair. A wonderful method—marvelously successful—brings radiant color that vies with nature's own. It is called Mary T. Goldman's. You may test it FREE.

Perhaps you are one of the many, many women who have said, "I would do something about my gray hair if I could only be sure of results." And you can be sure. Millions of women facing this identical problem have made a priceless beauty discovery. To many it has been a cherished secret of added years of youth. It is the famous hair color treatment known as Mary T. Goldman's.

No Experience Required

Without experience, or special equipment, you can bring radiantly youthful color to every gray or faded strand. Simply comb Mary T. Goldman's clear, colorless liquid through the hair. Color comes that successfully matches your type of hair whether black, brown, auburn or blonde.

Natural-Looking Results

Perhaps you have always looked upon such a step as involving a long, messy process of "hair dyeing." Not so with Mary T. Goldman's—this method is not complicated. Nor does it work radically. Color comes gradually—matches evenly. Results are therefore easy to control. There is no "artificial" look. Hair stays soft and lustrous, easy to curl or wave. Nor will color wash or rub off on hat linings or linens.

Entirely Safe to Use

Prominent medical school authorities have pronounced this method harmless to hair and scalp. Do not confuse Mary T. Goldman's with harsh hair coloring preparations. This way has been time-tested. Its results have been proved. Millions of discriminating women of stage, society and business have used it in over 30 years.

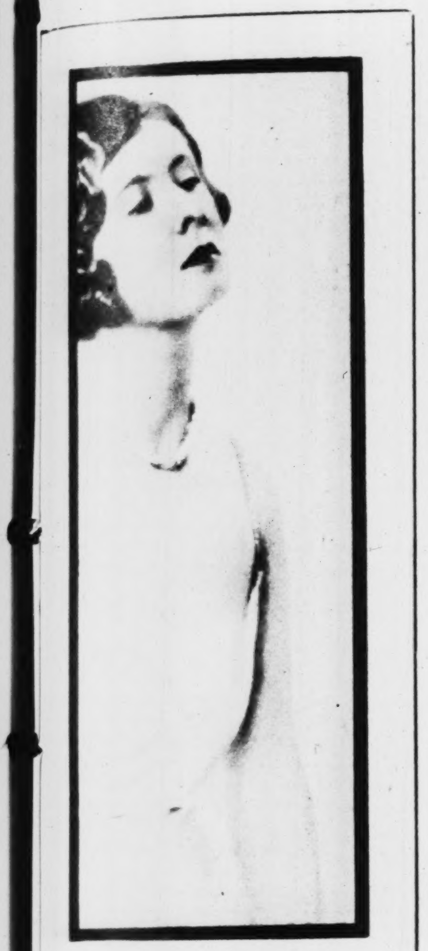
English and American Beauties entrust their flower-like skin to this same sure care . . . .



Lady Buchanan-Jardine

Lady Violet Astor

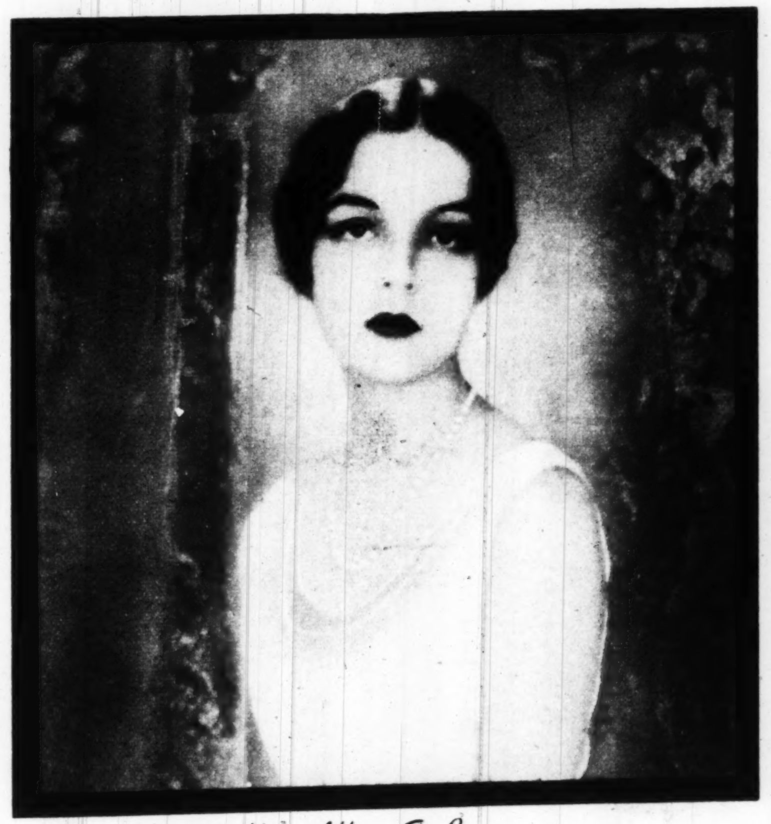
Mrs. Gifford Pinchot II

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt JR.

The Marchioness of Queensberry

The Countess Howe

Lady Ashley



Mrs. Allan A. Ryan JR.

Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel JR.

Miss Virginia Carter Randolph

WHAT is your taste in beauty? Do you prefer the pink and white and gold of English blondes . . . or are you loyal to our own American blonde, brunette and Titian beauties . . . with exquisite skin, delicate as apple blossoms, creamy as magnolia bloom, lily-pale or warmly tinted as a tea-rose?

Famous American and English beauties use Pond's . . . because these four delightful preparations assure the perfect cleansing and protection essential to safeguard their flower-like skin . . . keep it always radiantly fresh, fine and clear.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. declares: "One can keep one's skin lovely with just these Two marvelous Creams, the Tissues and the invigorating Tonic." Lady Violet Astor says: "Pond's makes our skin look younger and younger each year."

Pond's Method is so delightfully easy! "One can do it all oneself at home or in the country or wherever one may be," says the beautiful Countess Howe.

Piquant, laughing young Mrs. Gifford Pinchot II says: "Just the four steps, followed every day and never omitted, will keep one's skin exquisitely smooth and clear" . . . "Pond's is wonderful," says charming Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Jr. . . . "I'm devoted to Pond's," echoes the enchanting Mrs. Allan A. Ryan Jr.

"THE Cold Cream keeps your skin so marvelously clear," says Miss Virginia Carter Randolph, "and the ducky new Tissues are perfectly divine . . . the Freshener makes your cheeks as pink as roses and a little Vanishing Cream before you powder keeps you pretty as a picture all evening."

Pond's Method . . . four famous steps!

During the day—first, for thorough cleansing, amply apply Pond's Cold Cream over your face and neck, several times, always after exposure. Pat in with upward, outward strokes, waiting to let the fine oils sink into the pores.

Second—wipe away with Pond's Cleansing Tissues; soft, super-absorbent. (New! Tissues in peach-color, as well as white.)

Third—pat briskly with Pond's Freshener to banish oiliness, tone and firm.

Last—smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream for powder base and protection.

At bedtime—Cleanse immaculately with Cold Cream and wipe away with Tissues.

"I can't believe it!

that Oriental design I admired in the museum: $150!"

for the 9 by 12 foot size: other sizes in proportion (prices higher in Canada)

When Gulistan was placed on the market two years ago, a revolution in rug values took place.

The House of Karagheusian had produced in America the silky beauty of an Oriental Rug! The same shimmering sheen! The jewel-like colors! The luxurious deep pile!

Even experts hesitated to tell the difference!

Today, new Gulistans are in the stores. They reveal another amazing development.

Gulistan now places Old Masters of Oriental Rug Art within your reach!

Masterpieces of design originally created for the palaces and mosques of old Persia!

Rugs so cherished by museums that they are really the sentimental property of whole peoples and cannot be purchased even by multi-millionaires!

Moreover, rugs so intricate in design that even reproductions of them in imported Orientals are seldom found!

Does beauty such as this transform a home, a room? One glance gives the answer. Little wonder that rugs this Fall come ahead of other demands upon the family purse!

But to know exactly what you are getting when you go shopping for rugs, remember these plain facts.

Gulistan is the American product of Karagheusian, the largest makers of Oriental Rugs.

Only Karagheusian can make Gulistan. All rugs so marked come from this famous House.

In Gulistan you have the same sturdy Oriental wool yarns, the finest dyes, the very same finishing process as you get in their expensive Persian and Chinese rugs.

Naturally, all the best stores have Gulistans. Many of them have arranged art gallery displays to show these beautiful rugs appropriately.

Look on the back of the rug for the silken label pictured below. That is your guarantee of authenticity. No Gulistan Rug has been O. K.'d by Karagheusian without it.

There are many designs and color combinations. Sizes from 22½ by 36 inches ($10) to 11 feet 3 inches by 21 feet ($435). Also Stair Carpets and Hall Runners.

This historic design, woven 400 years ago, is known to experts all over the world. "The finest of its kind," says Bode, the great European authority. This Gulistan in your home will create as much comment among your friends as its famous original has among connoisseurs. The design reveals the influence of Chinese art in Persia. You will be able to distinguish the sacrificial vase, the cloud-band border which signifies long and happy life, and many other fascinating symbols. Five different color combinations.

THE THIRTY-SECOND NATIONAL BANK WAS JUST HELD UP–IT'S JUST AROUND THE CORNER–LET'S GO!
BOY! I HOPE WE GET SOMETHING UNUSUAL!
HARD LIQUOR WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR HIS DOWNFALL! I HIT HIM ON THE HEAD WITH AN EMPTY BOTTLE OF IT! YOU SEE, WHEN I HAPPENED TO LOOK INTO THE BANK I SAW HIM MENACING A CROWD OF BANK EMPLOYEES!
WHY DON'T YOU DROP HIM ON THE FLOOR?
I DON'T DARE– HE'S STILL HOLDING THE BOMBS HE WAS USING IN THE HOLDUP! WHEN I SOCKED HIM ON THE HEAD I CAUGHT HIM AS HE FELL!
SEPT 28 1930
NOW YOU SEE, BLACKIE– IT'S–
DON'T TELL ME–I GOT IT! IT'S OUR STORY–ONE WITH A TWIST! HERE IT IS: GIRL HOLDS UP HOLDUP MAN CAUGHT HOLDING UP BANK!

BY GEO. McMANUS
Registered U. S. Patent Office
GEE' I CAN'T TAKE ROSIE OUT TO DINNER TO-NIGHT- I'VE ONLY GOT ONE DOLLAR AND TEN CENTS-
I HAVE IT- I'LL CALL HER UP AND TELL HER I HAVE TO WORK UNTIL EIGHT O'CLOCK- THEN SHE'LL HAVE DINNER AT HOME-
-AND I'VE GOT ENOUGH TO TAKE HER TO THE SECOND SHOW AT THE MOVIES HOT-DOG-
YES- ROSIE DARLING- I'M SO SORRY- BUT YOU KNOW HOW BUSINESS IS- I CAN'T GET TO YOUR HOUSE UNTIL EIGHT O'CLOCK-
OH- THAT'S ALL RIGHT- DARLING- I DON'T MIND WAITING UNTIL THEN- BESIDES, THE RESTAURANT WON'T BE CROWDED AND WE'LL HAVE IT QUIET-
WOW' NOW SHE'LL BE TWICE AS HUNGRY- NOW- WHAT AM I TO DO?

YOU DON'T NEED ANY LESSONS -- THEY TELL ME GOLF IS AWFUL EASY
LET'S START RIGHT IN AND LEARN THE GAME WHILE WE PLAY, POP
YOU CAN START RIGHT IN, BUT I'M GOING TO TAKE SOME LESSONS FROM THE "PRO" BEFORE I START TO PLAY
MY FAMILY INSIST I TAKE UP GOLF --- I'VE NEVER PLAYED BEFORE IN MY LIFE -- CAN YOU GIVE ME SOME LESSONS?
SURE -- STEP OVER TO NO.1 AND DRIVE --- I WANT TO GET AN IDEA OF HOW YOU PLAY
YOUR FORM IS TERRIBLE
BUT I HIT IT ANYWAY!
WELL, THERE'S THE BALL THREE INCHES IN FRONT OF THE CUP ON THE FIRST STROKE -- NOW. WHAT DO I DO NEXT?
YOU'LL HAVE TO HIT IT AGAIN -- THE IDEA OF THE GAME IS TO GET THE BALL IN THE CUP WITH THE FEWEST STROKES POSSIBLE
WELL, WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL ME THAT BACK THERE AND I WOULD'VE HIT IT A LITTLE HARDER?

YESSIR - A NICE REFINED LITTLE WIDOW -- A BUSINESS WOMAN, AND SHE'S INVITED ME TO CALL ON HER THIS EVENING HAVEN'T WE BEEN TELLING YOU FOR YEARS AROUND THE CLUB THAT YOU NEED A WIFE AND A NICE QUIET LITTLE HOME OF YOUR OWN?
BLONDIE, THIS IS MOTHER -- I'VE INVITED A GENTLEMAN, MR JINKERS, OVER THIS EVENING - I'M DETAINED AT THE OFFICE SO BE A SWEET GIRL AND ENTERTAIN HIM UNTIL I GET THERE
LEAVE IT TO ME MOM'
SHE HAS A LITTLE DAUGHTER -- I MUST STOP IN A TOY SHOP AND GET SOME LITTLE THING FOR HER
GOOD LUCK, JINKERS, I'D LOVE TO BE THERE TO WATCH YOU BOUNCE THE BABY ON YOUR KNEE
I'M BLONDIE -- MOTHER TOLD ME TO ENTERTAIN YOU UNTIL SHE GETS HOME
HEY, KIDS - MEET MOTHER'S NEW BOY FRIEND AND NO WISE CRACKS --- JUST CALL HIM "POP" ISN'T HE CUTE?
POP, YOU'RE A BIG SUCCESS --
WHEEE --
GET A WHOOPEE BAND ON THE RADIO AND GET IT LOUD -- THE PARTY'S READY TO START IN A BIG WAY
LOOK, JOE
AW, LET ME HAVE ANOTHER DANCE WITH HIM
NOW TRY THAT STEP WHERE YOU TAKE THE BACK FLIP I'M NEXT
YOU MEAN TO SAY YOU'RE BROKE ALREADY, POP?
HOW ABOUT YOUR WATCH?
I'VE GOT A SWELL IDEA --- LET'S DRESS HIM UP IN SOME FUNNY OLD CLOTHES
I ALWAYS TELL MOTHER THAT TO HOLD A FELLOW THESE DAYS YOU MUST KEEP HIM WELL ENTERTAINED
MAYBE HE'LL TAKE US OUT DANCING AFTER MOTHER GETS HERE HAS JACK THE BURNT CORK READY?
HELLO, DEAR'E -- DID MR JINKERS GET HERE? I'M SO SORRY I'M LATE ---
HE'S HERE, MOTHER, AND DON'T WORRY -- HE'S HAD A PEACH OF A TIME
HE'S O.K., MOTHER -- IF YOU DECIDE TO MARRY HIM YOU HAVE MY CONSENT

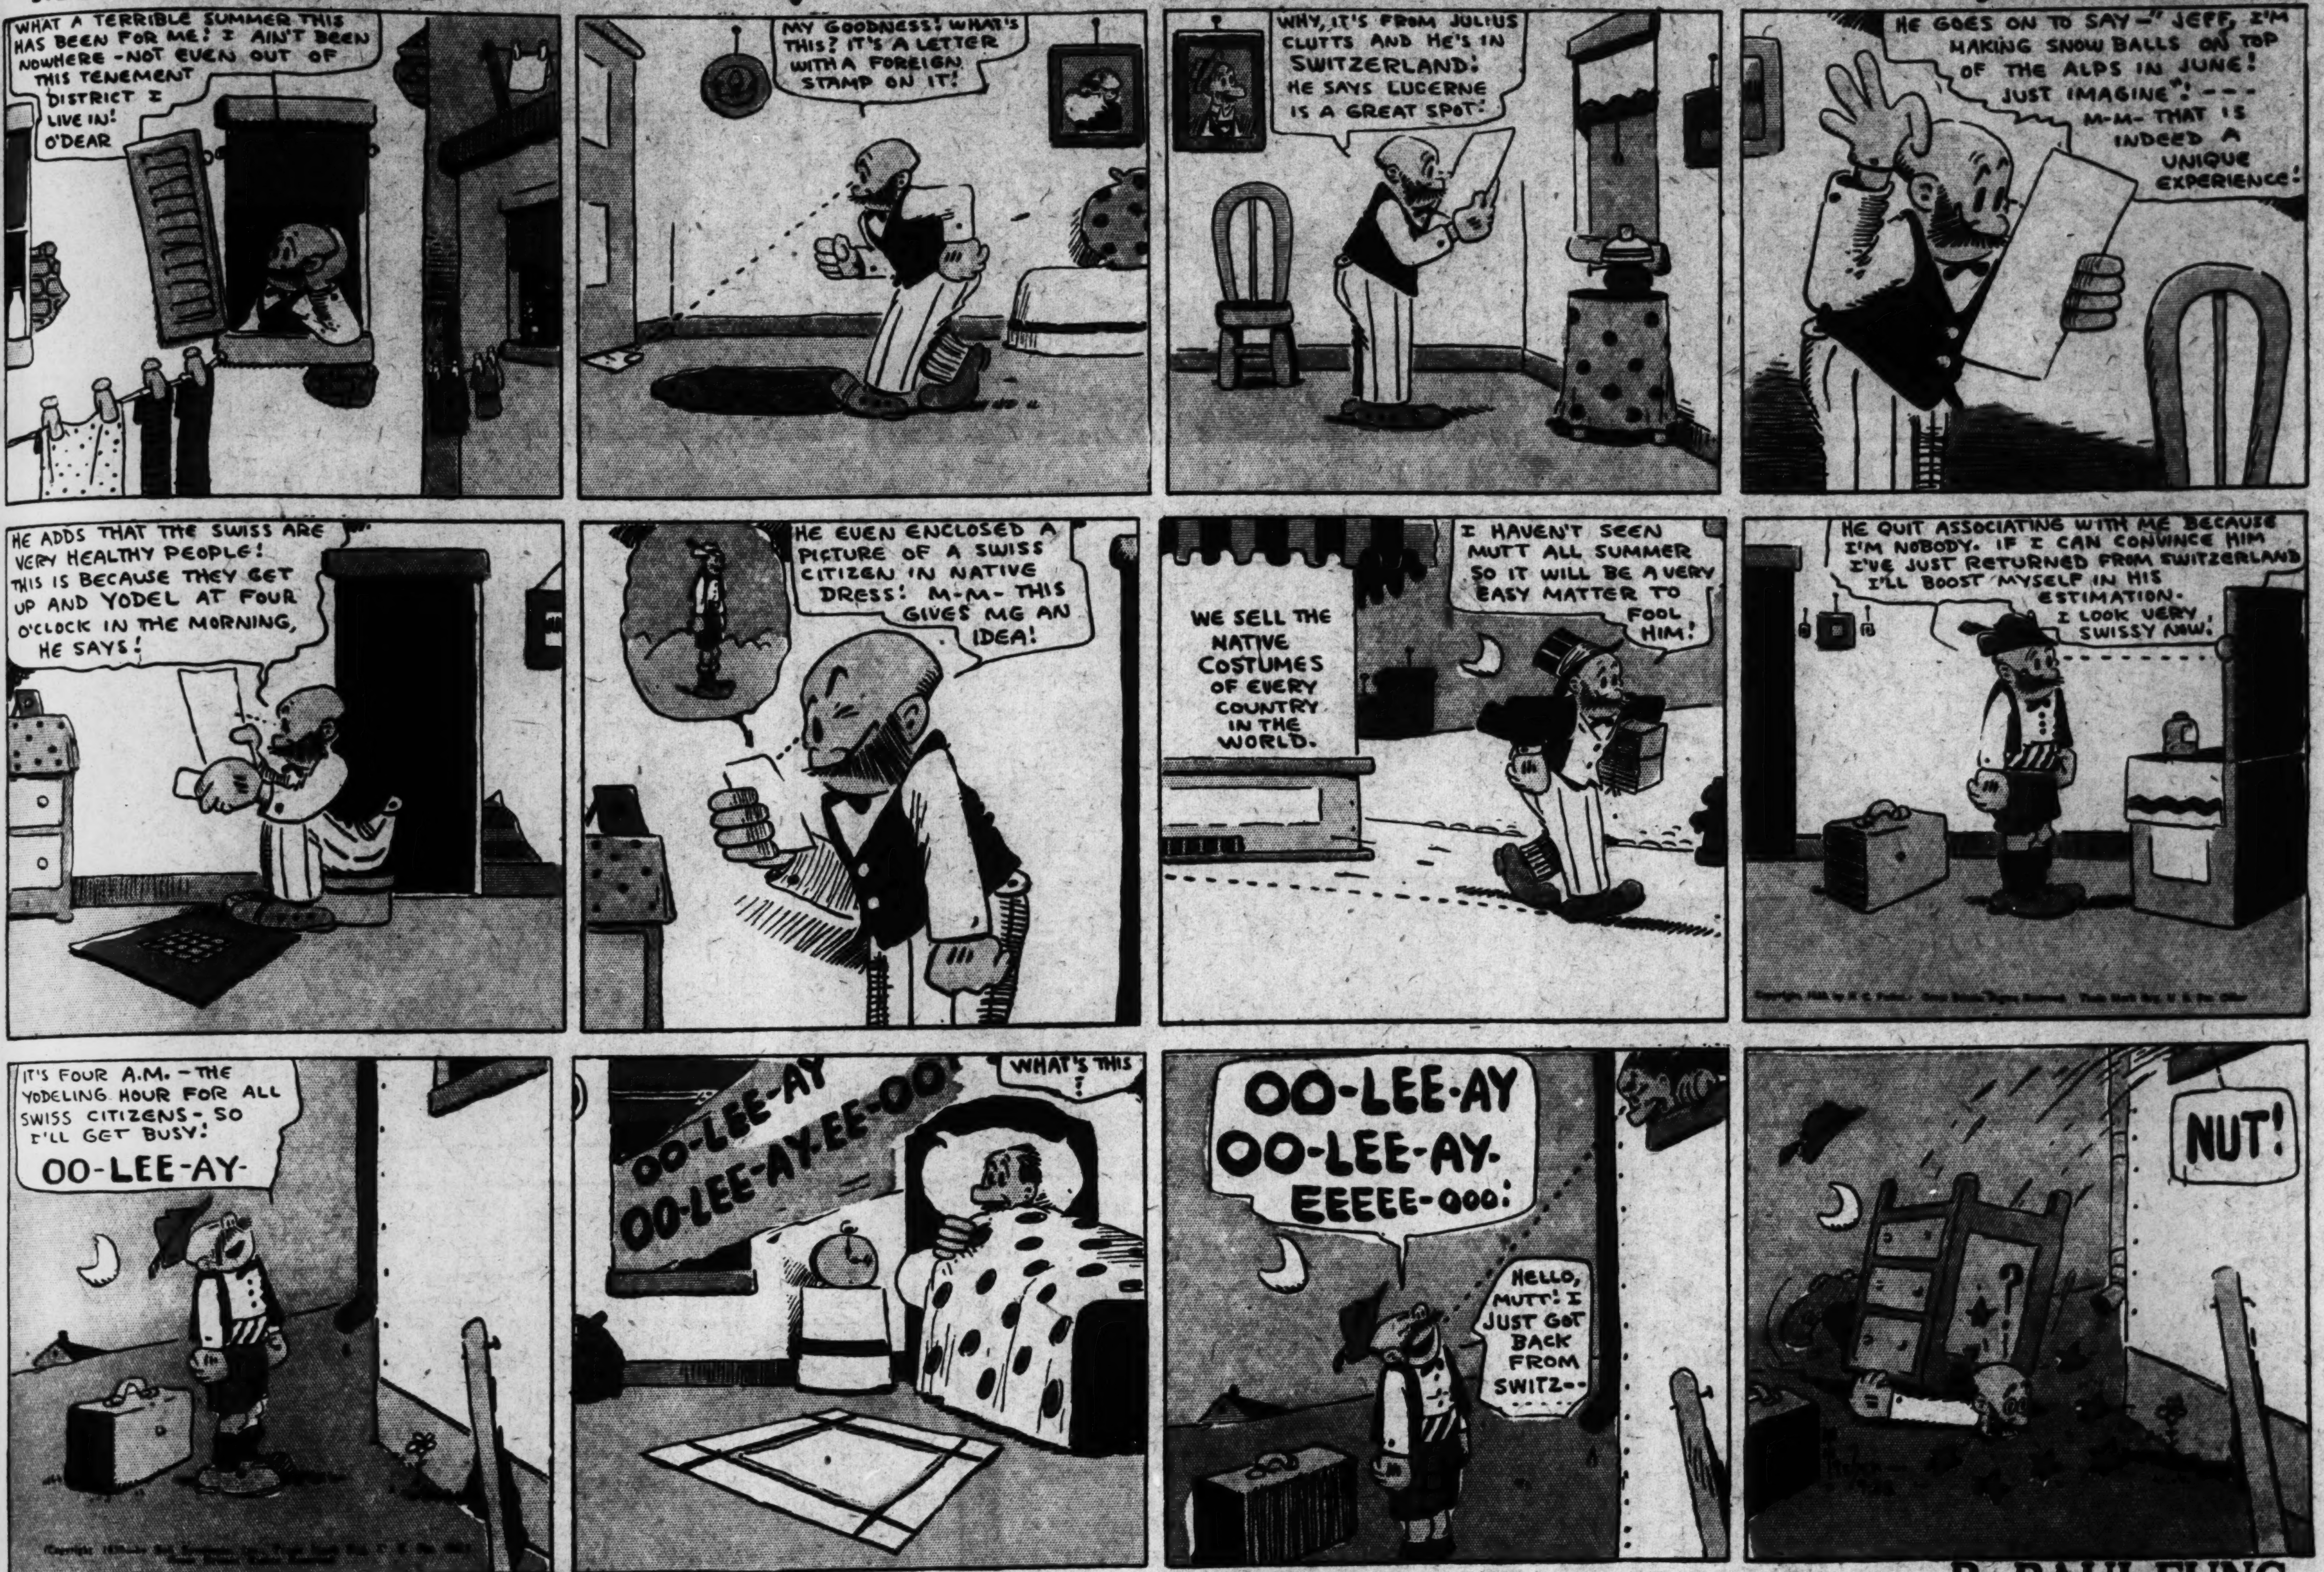
It's Still A Terrible Summer

By BUD FISHER



WHAT A TERRIBLE SUMMER THIS HAS BEEN FOR ME! I AIN'T BEEN NOWHERE - NOT EVEN OUT OF THIS TENEMENT DISTRICT I LIVE IN! O'DEAR
MY GOODNESS! WHAT'S THIS? IT'S A LETTER WITH A FOREIGN STAMP ON IT!
WHY, IT'S FROM JULIUS CLUTTS AND HE'S IN SWITZERLAND! HE SAYS LUCERNE IS A GREAT SPOT!
HE GOES ON TO SAY - "JEFF, I'M MAKING SNOW BALLS ON TOP OF THE ALPS IN JUNE! JUST IMAGINE"! --- M-M- THAT IS INDEED A UNIQUE EXPERIENCE!
HE ADDS THAT THE SWISS ARE VERY HEALTHY PEOPLE! THIS IS BECAUSE THEY GET UP AND YODEL AT FOUR O'CLOCK IN THE MORNING, HE SAYS!
HE EVEN ENCLOSED A PICTURE OF A SWISS CITIZEN IN NATIVE DRESS! M-M- THIS GIVES ME AN IDEA!
WE SELL THE NATIVE COSTUMES OF EVERY COUNTRY IN THE WORLD.
I HAVEN'T SEEN MUTT ALL SUMMER SO IT WILL BE A VERY EASY MATTER TO FOOL HIM!
HE QUIT ASSOCIATING WITH ME BECAUSE I'M NOBODY. IF I CAN CONVINCE HIM I'VE JUST RETURNED FROM SWITZERLAND I'LL BOOST MYSELF IN HIS ESTIMATION. I LOOK VERY SWISSY NOW!
IT'S FOUR A.M. - THE YODELING HOUR FOR ALL SWISS CITIZENS - SO I'LL GET BUSY! OO-LEE-AY-
OO-LEE-AY OO-LEE-AY-EE-OO
WHAT'S THIS ?
OO-LEE-AY OO-LEE-AY. EEEEE-OOO!
HELLO, MUTT! I JUST GOT BACK FROM SWITZ--
